Wattles' Letter is Statement of Facts and Not Threats

"The socialists are unfair when they say that Mr. Wattles' letter to the public contains veiled threats to discontinue extensions and to reduce wages of the men," said R. A. Leusser, assistant general manager of the street railway company after the report of the meeting Sunday. "This is not true. Mr. Wattles is simply stating facts, pointing out what we can do and what we cannot do. They say they would resort to the initiative and referendum to compel extensions and to force a raise in wages. That is illogical. Any one can see its absurdity. One might as well try to compel a buried hen to lay its eggs in a hole. It is the same with us. If our credit is destroyed it will be absolutely impossible to build extensions. "The policy of the company has been to do the best it could and this will continue to be the policy, no matter what happens. It goes without saying that we can do certain things if fares are left alone that we won't be able to do if the fares are reduced."

Big Eaters Get Kidney Trouble

Take Salts at first sign of bladder irritation or Backache. The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health. When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizziness, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacy about four ounces of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending the bladder sufferings. This salt is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time. Official Synopsis of Proposed Home Rule Charter for the City of Omaha as Framed by the Charter Convention, now Submitted to the Voters for Their Approval or Rejection.

The charter convention herewith submits the home rule charter which it has drafted for Omaha. In framing this charter we have endeavored to insure to the people of Omaha the management of their own city affairs through an efficient government fully accountable, and directly responsive to every well founded popular demand. We have sought to do this by retaining the commission plan of government, with more centered responsibility, and by providing an effective control by initiative, referendum, recall and impeachment, at the same time reducing the play of politics by means of nonpartisan nominations and merit appointments and promotions under civil service. While steadfastly guided by the principle of home rule, we have also kept in view the Greater Omaha of the near future, sure to include the adjoining city of South Omaha and other suburban territory, and the merger as far as feasible of corresponding city and county offices. Looking toward the Greater Omaha, an elastic scheme of revenues has been adopted, permitting of increases necessary from time to time to meet enlarged demands. The present combined machinery of the city and county for assessing property for taxation and for a joint office of treasurer has been continued, and the foundation laid for a similar merger of city and county auditing offices, and city and county election bureaus whenever proper enabling legislation is had safeguarding home rule by making these offices elective by our own people. In the same way, regarding the city and county as one household for local self-government, provision has been made for them to unite in the erection and maintenance of workhouses, reformatories and similar institutions that will prevent duplication and needless expense to the taxpayers. The chapter relating to the granting of franchises, and regulation of public utility service conforms, we believe, to the experience lessons of this and other cities and the best thought on that subject. It provides for short term franchises, optional purchase without payment for franchise value, full regulation of rates and conditions of service and, above all, a prerequisite vote of approval by the people for every franchise granted. It makes the present occupation tax a minimum, materially reducing existing rates for water and light and places on the street railway the full burden of paving and maintaining the entire street space it occupies. For the first time in the history of Omaha a definite limit is fixed upon the salaries, including the issue of new licenses in the residence districts and providing against a transfer into Omaha of saloon licenses held in South Omaha at the event of consolidation. Further synopsis of the more salient provisions is contained in the following chapters: Chapter I. Corporate Powers. The city acting through its official authorities is given the widest and most plenary powers in all matters of local public character. Chapter II. Elections. The elective officers are enumerated, continuing the present commission plan of government and providing for nonpartisan nomination, short ballot and four-year instead of three-year terms. To secure stability of government, however, the terms are made to overlap so that half of the membership of the council is renewed every two years. Chapter III. Municipal Departments. Affairs of the city under control of the council are divided for administrative purposes, as now, into seven departments, with power to arrange and rearrange assigned activities. The council selects its president, who is to be mayor and superintendent of the Department of Public Affairs, and a vice president, who is to be superintendent of the department of accounts and finances and to serve as mayor in the event of the latter's absence or disability. The procedure prescribed for the council in the enactment of ordinances insures full publicity and ample opportunity and time for remonstrance. The commissioner in charge of each department is to appoint, and to be responsible for, all the subordinates in his department, subject to civil service requirements, with the exception of certain specified positions to be filled by the whole council, such as city attorney, corporation counsel, city clerk and city engineer. Chapter IV. Local Improvements. The system of making local improvements, whose cost is to be assessed to the property benefited, is greatly simplified for the purpose of expediting such work when desired by the resident property owners affected. Improvement districts may be created and work ordered by the council within a certain radius of the city hall. Outside of that area, the council may create the districts and order the work, subject to a protest right of the owners of 40 per cent of the abutting frontage, and the materials may be designated after according a hearing to the property owners. The most important change is the requirement of open specifications for paving materials, and prohibition of the specification of materials from any particular mine or factory, and the sole application of the standard quality and endurance tests, the design being to secure lowest bids by free competition, and to minimize the so-called paving promotion and its large train of evils. Chapter V. Department of Parks and Public Property. The administration of parks and boulevards is subjected to several changes amplifying the powers. Wires and poles along boulevards are to come down within three years. Improvements where boulevards and parks intersect the streets are to be paid for out of the intersection bond fund. Free musical concerts in the parks are provided for. Chapter VI. Department of Public Safety. The police force and all the jails, stations and equipment are placed under the control of the superintendent, who, with the approval of the council, is to prescribe the rules of discipline.

Chapter VII. Department of Fire Protection and Water Supply. The fire department with all its engine houses and apparatus is placed under the control of the superintendent in a similar manner as the police department. Chapter VIII. Health Commissioner. The health commissioner, made elective, must be a physician of five years' active practice, and is to have charge of the city's hospitals, food inspection and sanitary regulations, and to render undivided service unless private employment is expressly permitted, in which case such private employments must be reported promptly to the council. Chapter IX. Auditor, Claims, Judgments. An independent elective auditor is to check accounts of all departments without being subordinate to any of them. All claims must be first passed by him. Salaries of officers, however, are hereafter to be paid in cash twice a month, and day laborers weekly, or oftener, subject to precautionary certification and receipts. Appeal may be taken on rejected claims. Chapter X. City Treasurer. This chapter continues the present arrangement by which the county treasurer is to act as city treasurer, and the collection and disbursement of city and county revenues handled in one office at joint expense. Chapter XI. Finance. An approach to the budget system is herein provided, which may be made a true budget system as soon as the county board is empowered to make the annual levy for the city in January instead of July. The limits of the various funds which may be raised by taxation are increased to correspond with the increasing requirements of the city in the nature of things these increases cannot be available prior to the fiscal year of 1915. The statutory limits for the year 1913 were $1,250,000 and for the year 1914 are $1,410,000. For the year 1915 they will be $1,600,000, of which increase $3,000 goes to interest and sinking funds and $18,000 to various purposes drawn upon for the several municipal departments. To give elasticity to the budget the limits are to increase automatically thereafter at the rate of 5 per cent per year. Chapter XII. Municipal Bonds. The limitations on the issue of municipal bonds are twofold, relating to the amount of the bonds, and to the manner of authorizing them. In restricted amounts the council may issue bonds for certain purposes such as paving intersections, permanent park improvements, building sewers, etc., without a vote of the people, and may issue additional bonds for these purposes, and for other authorized purposes, upon vote of the people. Chapter XIII. Sinking Fund. A new fund, known as the sinking fund, is created for redemption of the bonded debt, into which, in addition to the annual tax levy for that purpose, is to be covered the revenues from miscellaneous sources in excess of requirements to make up the deficiency of current tax collections.

Chapter XIV. Officers' Salaries and Bonds. The salaries of the mayor and councilmen remain unchanged at $5,000 and $4,000, respectively. The city treasurer is to have a combined salary of $4,500 for his services as city treasurer and county treasurer. The health commissioner is to be paid $3,000 a year, and to turn into the treasury his registration fees, now amounting to $1,700 a year. The auditor's salary is fixed at $3,000. Salaries and bonds of other officials are to be fixed by ordinance, and are hereby fixed to render undivided service unless private employment is expressly permitted, in which case such private employments must be reported promptly to the council. Chapter XV. Civil Service. A civil service commission of three members is created with authority to classify city employees in the various departments, and make them eligible for a permanent list after a probationary period of one year, after which they are to be removed from the list only for cause. The commission is to hold open competitive examination for places upon the eligible lists, from which appointees are to be selected or promotions made, and in the performance of these duties are under oath not to be governed by personal, political or party considerations. Officers removed by recall or impeachment within three years are barred from appointive places, as are likewise persons within the first degree of consanguinity to any officer charged with making or recommending the appointment. The present relief and retirement pension systems are retained for police and fire departments and public library employees. The civil service commission is also to make the eligible list from which all election officers are to be appointed, and to make rules governing hours of work, vacations, sick leave and rest days for city employees. Chapter XVI. Initiative, Referendum and Recall. Control by the people of legislation and official action is to be had by the initiative, referendum, recall and impeachment. The aim is to respond to the demand that these powers be made "workable," at the same time preventing abuse of them. All these petitions need be signed by 15 per cent of the qualified voters. Another direct and speedy means of removing corrupt officials by impeachment is made easily available. Chapter XVII. Public Utility Service. This chapter prescribes conditions for submitting franchises—a short term of not to exceed twenty-one years, stipulation of rate schedules for not to exceed ten years, royalties based on a percentage of gross receipts or equal division of profits, optional purchase without payment for franchise value, supplementary power to condemn; forfeiture for failure to live up to conditions or pay taxes, or other obligations to the city, and, finally, prerequisite reference and approval by the people. The power to regulate is likewise broad and affirmative, embracing construction, operation, service and rates—for the latter, not to exceed a maximum of $1 per 1,000 cubic feet for gas, 25 cents per 1,000 gallons for water, 11 cents per kilowatt hour for electric light, and the present rates for unlicensed telephones. On vote of the people the city may construct, purchase or operate, by itself, or through lease, any public utility service. Chapter XVIII. Excise Board. Restrictions are placed upon issuing licenses to sell liquor for consumption on the premises, limiting the total to $60 until the population may justify additions at the rate of one to 1,000, and drawing the line at Twenty-fourth street, so no more saloons may be licensed in the residence districts; nor may any more saloons be located in alleys or on boulevards. Anticipating consolidation with South Omaha, provision is made to prevent saloon licenses issued in South Omaha from being transplanted into Omaha. Chapter XIX. Police Court. The status of the police court, and the duties of its officers are defined with a view to securing the proper keeping of the records and speedy and fair trials for all prisoners arrested and particularly to stop the alleged abuse of "boring prisoners" in jail without trial. Chapter XX. Penalties. This chapter sets forth what acts are unlawful for city officers and employees, and what acts are prohibited for contractors, franchisees, corporations and railroad companies, their officers, employees and agents, and other persons having relations with the city government. It covers corrupt practices in elections and corruption and malfeasance in general and prescribes adequate penalties for offenders, including removal from office for such as are public officers or employees. Chapter XXI. City Planning, Building Restrictions, Consolidation. Under this heading is included sections providing for a city planning commission, for the manner of establishing building restrictions upon the use of property for purposes objectionable to the neighborhood, and for conditions of consolidation with adjoining incorporated cities and villages. Conclusion. Finally, it should, perhaps, be added that the constitution of the state prescribes the manner of adopting and amending a home rule charter. It should be further explained that the desire to make a short charter was met with the fact that provisions of the charter to be superseded, particularly those relating to corporate powers, local improvements and special assessments, had undergone the test of the courts and that seemed preferable to sacrifice brevity rather than to make needless risks of endless involving litigation. Realizing that no charter can be perfect, we yet submit this draft as a distinct improvement upon our preceding charters, as a charter making the people of the city directly responsible for the character of their government and governing officials, freeing the management of city affairs from partisan politics as far as possible, and giving the people of Omaha what they so long have demanded—real home rule.

Ryder Reiterates that Incinerators Can Be Bought in Any Size.

HOG FEEDING IS A NUISANCE

Street Commissioner Declares that to Dispose of Garbage that Way is Archaic and Disagreeable to a Mayor.

"There seems to be a misunderstanding about the council's attitude toward the incinerator bonds," said Street Commissioner J. J. Ryder to the city commission in committee of the whole. "Let me say that it is not necessary to prepare plans and specifications for these incinerators may be purchased as a boiler or water meter, or even an office chair, for there are twenty standard makes on the market." It has been charged by R. Beecher Howell and others who are opposing the incinerator bonds, which will be voted on Tuesday, that the council has been hasty and that the city engineering department has not prepared plans. Commissioner Ryder, who investigated incinerators in several cities before recommending these bonds to the council, said: "It is not possible to find a location in the city where garbage to be fed to hogs without creating a nuisance in that part of the city. That is an archaic method of disposing of garbage, anyway. Also, it is expensive. An incinerator will soon be a self-supporting, or at least an inexpensive proposition, and it will be clean and effective." At a meeting of the city commission in committee of the whole the communication of J. Wieland, dead animal collector, who stated he would remove garbage less than the city is paying, was laid over, pending the result of the election. Limit Fixed Where Junk Yards May Be Kept in the City After five votes had been taken the city commission finally recommended the junk yard ordinance for passage. This ordinance fixes limits beyond which junk yards may not be maintained. A score of junk dealers protested. One vote was taken on amendment, and then other amendments were offered and voted down, and finally Police Commissioner Kugel, changing his vote, voted for the ordinance, under the provision that he would have the privilege of fighting for the amendment when the measure came up for passage. Kugel's amendment would exclude old

Her clothing stuck to the blisters on her body. "I saw the Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertisement and with little faith I decided I would try them so sent for a sample.
