tinues to Come In for Distribution. OMAHA, April 4, 1814.

"Will corn hold up without props" is a question asked by many of the more a question asked by many of the more conservative men in the trade. This market has drifted into a huge "scalping affair," and, not unlike the penduium of a clock, it swings to liberal proportions every day. The price changes were $40 light, and while the best values of the session were not held because of profit taking by longs, there was a firmer undertone, and especially for the May future.

CATTLE—Receipts have been very light all this week, not only here, but at other market points as well. At the same time the demand has been so moderate that values at the beginning of the week declined sharply even in the face of meager receipts. This was the case not only at this market, but at other markets as well conditions the country over being practically the same. Later on in the week there was some reaction in the market, but the advance was eventually lost, so that the present week in spite of the light runs, is closing with prices just as low as they were a week ago. It has been a most unsatisfactory trade from start to finish, neither buyers nor sellers being satisfied with existing conditions. Buyers are complaining about the poor demand for beef products at the big eastern markets and are giving that as the reason for the light buying of cattle.

With killing cattle of all kinds in such an unsatisfactory cendition, it could hardly be expected that the country would buy very freely of feeders, and the market searcordingly has been very slow and CATTLE-Receipts have been very light
