Scattered White Hope Possibilities at Bottom of it All.

FINDS YOUNG GIANT ABROAD

Promoter Booked Passage for Him, When a Girl Puts in Appearance and Disappears with Promising Pug.

NEW YORK, April 4.—Jack McAuliffe recently returned from Europe, where he spent about three months delivering a monologue in the English and French music halls. Jack returned here a much disappointed man. A white hope lies at the bottom of all Jack's dejection. Maybe he should be called a green hope, as he hails from Thurles, which is between Cork and Dublin, and is practically a novice, as far as ring experience is concerned. This is Jack's story of the white hope that failed:

"You see, it was this way," said Jack. "I had gone to Dublin for a visit and was treated like a king. So well was I known there that I thought it would be a good idea to hold a heavyweight tournament. I made arrangements for one and invited all the white hopes to enter. Can you imagine my surprise when the various white hopes in sight of me then demanded $50 apiece for appearance. I was knocked silly and had to call off the tournament, as it would have been a financial failure with the hopes asking for such big pay. The high cost of boxing sure has hit Ireland.

Wonderful Looking Fellow.

"One of the heavies who demanded a bout was a great big fellow from Thurles. He impressed me so much that I asked him to let me try him out. He made a wonderful appearance stripped for fighting. He is a light-haired, blue-eye six-footer with the strength of an ox. And what is more, he is a descendant of Dan Connelly, the famous Irish fighter. He is also what they call a great 'teper,' though you can bet that he isn't like some of our white hopes who take a leap out of the ring when the going is rough. This chap, whose name is Bill Lane, has a good head on his shoulders, which he proved in his tryout. He also has a stiff punch, although his hands, like his feet, are small.

"Lane told me that he had been boxing for a couple of years and had gained wide experience, going to all the fairs within fifty miles radius of his home and entering in the tournaments. I asked him if he would like to visit America and meet some of the heavyweights there. He jumped at the chance.

McAuliffe, then signed as the word 'Jump' brought to his mind the calamity that befell his White or Green Hope.

Had Booked Passage.

"I had booked transportation from Queenstown for the pair of us," continued Jack. "I was walking on this air, thinking to myself the great hit that Lane would make in the United States. Lane, though, was looking rather sad. This didn't strike me as strange for an Irishman, filled with sentiment like all Irishmen are, and hating to leave the old folk. We went waiting down near the water for the tender that was to carry us out to the ship. Suddenly Lane's face lit up like a Christmas tree, and I looked around and saw the prettiest Irish girl that I have ever seen. Lane left my side like a flash. He ran to her, grabbed her up with one arm, and ran up the hill for all he was worth. I'm not very good at sprinting nowadays, but I followed the couple as fast as any Irish fellow ever followed an eligible couple, but when I got to the crest of the hill my White Hope was nowhere to be seen.

"I never felt so disappointed in my life. I knew that if I brought him here he would create a sensation which would net me a fortune. There was just one more trip for the tender to make, so I had to get aboard and leave my wandering 'Hope' behind. I am now wondering where is my wandering Hope tonight, but I kind of believe that he has run off and got married, though I am in hopes of getting in correspondence with him and inducing him to make the trip across."

NEW ENGLANDERS WILL INVADE HENLEY REGATTA

BOSTON, Mass., April 4.—The Union Boat club, one of the largest rowing organizations in New England, voted to send an eight-oared crew and a single sculler to the English Henley regatta next July.

The Union crewmen will sail for England late in June and arrive at Henley only a day or two before the regatta starts. The crew will be accompanied by the club coach William Hains, a well known English professional sculler.

As now made up the eight-oared crew consists of Frank Whiting, stroke; James Wald; Roger Oyster; R. B. Ayer; L. L. Lott; and William H. Hains. The single sculler is William Hains, a well known English professional sculler.

Australia Tennis Teams Confident

NEW YORK, April 4.—In a survey of the teams that are expected to compete in this year's Davis cup matches, "Australia," the well known Sydney lawn tennis writer, asking if for granted that the Australian team will meet the United States in the challenge round, says about the chances of his own countrymen:

"Unless something very untoward happens, Brooks and Wilding will be shortly enraging Parks and his team mates in England, and, if the world's critics anticipate truly, the victorious Australian team will travel across the herring pond to engage the present holders of the famous Davis cup, and without being too much let down by American anticipation, we hope that the quest will prove successful."

A team chosen from Brooks, Wilding, Dunlop, Doubt, A. B. Jones, and if he can be E. F. Parker, will be very hard to defeat. But pride goeth, as it went last November, before a fall. At any rate, our team will try hard and accept either fortune with equanimity as good sportsman, not unduly puffed up by success, nor cast down by defeat.

Harvard Preparing For Big Ball Season

BOSTON, Mass., April 4.—Base ball is expected to take a boom at Harvard this year, and to accommodate the additional crowds at Soldiers field the Harvard Athletic association has given a contract for the extension of the first and third base bleachers and the addition of several tiers of seats. The new stands will increase the capacity of the Harvard grandstand by 1,800.

The additional profits that the Harvard Athletic association now reaps from base ball has given the powers an idea that the game will draw a greater patronage from Boston during the coming season. Foot ball has heretofore been recognized as the big money maker at Harvard, but since Boston will not have a Federal league team to take a third of the flouting base ball patronage Harvard may perhaps be able to get extra watchers, an the 1,800 extra bleachers are accordingly being built up.

FRANK HINKEY TALKS LITTLE

SAYS THINGS MOVED BACKWARD

DISSENTION AMONG COACHES AND CRITICISM OF UNDERGRADUATES HAS BROKEN UP THE OLD YALE SYSTEM.

NEW YORK, April 4.—Is Frank Hinkey no longer the "silent man?" Yale graduates who have met him in various parts of the country since last fall report an appreciable increase in his voluble tendencies, which means, if he keeps on, that he will be in great demand at alumni gatherings as Dr. Spaeth, Princeton's rowing coach, is Hinkey's latest appearance, according to a Yale man who returned from the middle west recently, was at a meeting of Yale graduates at the Blackstone hotel in Chicago, where he talked freely upon the subject of Yale athletics.

"I went down to New Haven last fall to stay two weeks," he is quoted as saying to the graduate dinner, "and I stayed out the season. It was my hobby, and found to my surprise that in that time things had gone backward. Things had drifted away entirely from the old Yale standards. And I found the cause for it. What they called the old Yale system had gone to pieces. As a matter of fact, we never had any system except the good-fellowship of Yale men, coaches, graduates, students and the like—all pulling together for the sake of the team. That old system that nobody created was gone. Dissension among the coaches, criticism among the graduates and the undergraduates had taken its place.

"I do not think anyone realizes the job that was put up to Howard Jones. Under the conditions he did well, very well, indeed. He took the brunt of the work; he made it 75 per cent easier for me to start this fall than if I had started last year. It is no easy task under any circumstances; the fire and cross-fire of criticism and comment make it hard for any man to keep his head, and I believe that we have the captain and the plan to make things go next year. It is our hope to make foot ball more of a sport and less of a business. We believe this will be better for foot ball. We expect to create more skilled players because of their enjoyment of the sport and thus to create a better team. We are lucky to have such a captain as Talbot, who will be a real Yale captain, win or lose. He is watching now the scholarship of the sixty men who are playing next fall, for he believes, and I believe, we will have a better man on the field when that man is keeping up with his studies."

German Prince Has Registered Colors

NEW YORK, April 4.—The German crown prince has just registered his colors, "white with black belt and cap," with the German racing authorities. His royal highness has some choice steeds in training in his own stables, but his royal highness has only entered his horses for military races. The official registration of his colors is thought to indicate an intention of appearing as an owner in other races.

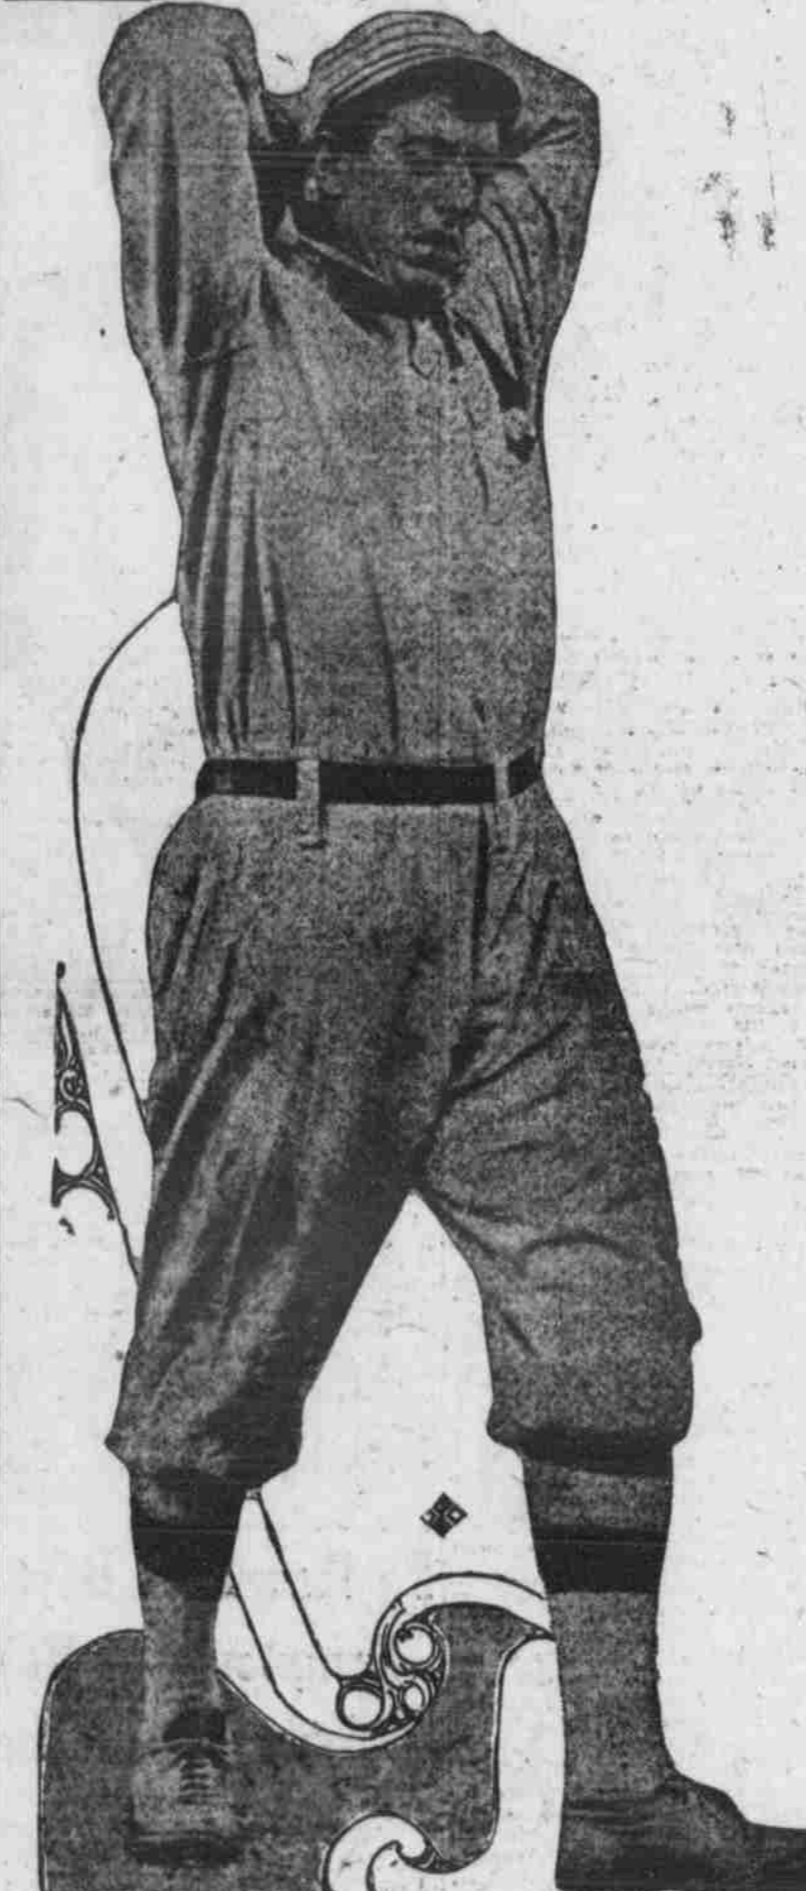

CARPENTIER HAS MADE GOOD SHOWING ABROAD

NEW YORK, April 4.—If George Carpentier goes through with all the matches he is reported to have made, the noted Frenchman will have a strenuous time during the next few months. Langford, Jeannette and McGorty are all on the Frenchman's schedule, according to various reports. Any one of the three should give him his hardest fight.

Whatever is in store for Carpentier it must be admitted that he has already made a remarkable record for himself. He is probably the only pugilist who has held a championship in every class from bantam to heavyweight.

YALE GOLF SCHEDULE WILL START ON MAY 2

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 4.—W. H. Gardner, captain of the Yale golf team, has announced the spring schedule, as follows: May 2, Princeton; course unchanged; May 8, Hartford golf club, at Hartford; May 15, Williams, at Nassau, L. I.

Looked On as Mack's Leading Pitcher

Eddie Plank, the veteran twirler of the Philadelphia Athletics, had hero of the last world's series, who has delighted Manager Connie Mack, by his form in the practice games at the spring training camp. It is quite probable that Plank will bear the brunt of the pitching work again this season.

May 15, Greenwich Country club, at Greenwich; May 23, Nassau Country club, at Nassau, L. I.

The intercollegiate will be played at Garden City, September 7 to 12, inclusive.

Boston Americans Score Seven to Four

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 4.—The Boston Americans defeated the Nashville Southern association club, 7 to 4. Score: R. H. E. Boston, 7; Nashville, 4. Batteries: Boston, Rosser, Coumbe and Carrigan; Nashville, Zetter, Snyder and Smith.

ANNUAL MOTORCYCLE EVENT IS 442 MILES

NEWARK, N. J., April 4.—The annual endurance run of the New Jersey Motorcycle club will be held May 30 and confined to New Jersey, but the contest this year will be to Baltimore and return. The distance of the course is 442 miles, which the riders are expected to cover in the two days.

PROFESSIONAL SOCCER TEAMS COMING NEXT YEAR

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 4.—All arrangements have been completed to bring two professional soccer teams to the city during the season of 1915. The teams will be the champions and runners up of the present season. Games will be played in all of the large cities of this country and Canada. Whenever possible

Ryan Sees No Reason Why Gunboat Smith or Moran Should Fail

NEW YORK, April 4.—Tommy Ryan thinks there's no reason why Gunboat Smith or Frank Moran should fail to make good. "I haven't seen Smith fight," he said, "but a lot of people have told me he is an awkward fellow. What does that signify? No two men box alike. Fitzsimmons was awkward, wasn't he? But he certainly knew how to fight. He knew how to win fights, and Smith seems to know how, judging by his record. I haven't a doubt that he beat Langford when he got the decision over him in Boston, and any one who can beat Langford is a fighter. He isn't afraid of any one, and he'd have a chance with Johnson. The big negro was a great fighter at his best, but I don't care who they are or what color they are, when they dissipate they go down like all the others. Johnson has lasted a long time, but he'll go down hard when he does go. To my mind Jeffries was the greatest man physically the ring ever saw. His strength was wonderful. He wasn't aggressive, but he was game, and he could beat any man who came at him. I knew Fitzsimmons would rush Jeffries at Coney Island, and never stop rushing, and I told Jeffries to keep his guard up and nail Fitz as he rushed in. He did it and won the championship. Jeffries was at his best that night. Afterward he went back like all champions who live too fast a life.

New World Toney Figures.

Reports of the money cleared on the world tour seems to have been exaggerated—about $30,000, McGraw says, instead of $75,000.

Argentine Corn Will Be Dumped Upon the Chicago Market Soon

CHICAGO, April 4.—A report was circulated in grain circles here today that Argentine corn in large quantities would soon be put on the Chicago market for the first time. Local elevator men were credited in the report with having negotiated for the purchase of 300,000 bushels of it, the shipments to start before April 15. There was much discussion of the probable effect of an influx of Argentine corn in the Chicago market. The shipments would take an all-water route to Chicago, coming by way of the St. Lawrence river and the Great Lakes, in time for delivery on May contracts here.

Although Argentine corn is no novelty at ports on the Atlantic and the Gulf, the bringing of it to Chicago would be almost as much of a revolution in traffic as the celebrated carrying of coals to Newcastle.

Domestic Troubles End in a Suicide

When his wife, from whom he had been separated for three months, refused to live with him again, Marinus Peterson, age 31, a laborer living in Council Bluffs, shot himself through the head with a .41 caliber revolver, dying instantly.

Early in January Marinus Peterson and his wife decided that as a result of their numerous differences, life together was unendurable. They separated, he going to live with his relatives in Council Bluffs at 213 Sixteenth avenue, and she coming to the home of her sister, Mrs. Sadie Roberts, who lives with her husband, I. N. Roberts, a motorman, at 2391 North Twelfth street.

Last night Peterson called on his wife, and after a long argument with her, during which she repeatedly refused to return to live with him; the man thrust one hand to his hip pocket, and threatened to kill himself.

As Peterson reached for his revolver his wife darted back into the apartments of the Robert's family, and closed the door. Scarcely had the door been closed, when the shot was fired.

Mr. Peterson worked for a packing house in South Omaha for several years, and relatives said that he had often threatened to kill himself, during periods of despondency.
