When All Fashions Change

When the brightness of Spring bids us discard our dull winter clothes, then we choose new apparel.

To determine rightly one must try to decide three things:

- FIRST—Where they get the best quality.
- SECOND—Where they will find the lowest price for the best quality.
- THIRD—Where the service will best respond to their demands.

Our Apparel Buyer is now in New York and from day to day we receive his latest selections of really new fashions, chosen to meet the demands of women of refinement.

There is nothing freakish about these styles—it's easy to be conspicuous, but not often desirable.

There is, though, an air of pleasing individuality to these Spring Fashions of ours.

This season is one of many colors, and Dame Fashion shows her latest ideas best in suits.

RESERVE COMMITTEE DEPENDS ITS ACTION IN LOCATING BANKS

Omaha was opposed to its selection and preferred other cities.

It seemed impossible, the statement said, "to serve the great section from Kansas City to the mountains in any other way than by creating a bank with Kansas City as headquarters or to provide for the northwestern section except by creating a district with Minneapolis as headquarters."

Deemed Inadvisable.
The only other thing that could have been done with Nebraska, under the conditions which presented themselves, was to relate it to Chicago and this seemed to be inadvisable in the circumstances.

The Kansas City banks serve a very distinctive territory and will serve it more satisfactorily than St. Louis could have done. The relations of that territory on the whole are much more largely with Kansas City than with any other city in the middle west with which it could have been connected.

"It will, of course, be recognized by those who are informed that of the four cities Kansas City is the most dominant banking and business center."

Statistics Submitted.
The following statistics as of March, 1914, will throw light on the situation:

Capital	Individual	Surplus	Deposits
Kansas City	$1,000,000	$500,000	$40,415,000
Omaha	$670,000	$3,648,000	$7,268,000
Denver	$440,000	$1,022,000	$13,259,000
Lincoln	$1,200,000	$698,000	4,482,000

Stolen Silverware and Jewelry Found
A large amount of jewelry and silverware was found today wrapped in a tablecloth. Men were out in the eastern part of the city walking through a meadow when they discovered the package. They picked it up and when they heard a jingling they made the examination. The silverware had a value of several hundred dollars, but it has evidently been exposed to the weather for at least a year and is badly damaged. There are no marks on any of the goods indicating the owner.

NEW HAVEN RAILROAD REFUSES TO PRODUCE RECORDS AND PAPERS

"That the senate resolution has gone far beyond the powers either of this commission or of congress. Neither the commission nor congress has any power to investigate the relations, if any, of the Billard company and the New Haven railroad."

A series of questions were put to Whipple, intended to develop evidence of financial relations between the Billard company and the New Haven, or the Billard company and the New England Navigation company. He declined to answer every instance to answer. He refused to say whether there had been a transaction between the Billard company and the New England Navigation company, involving $1,000,000; whether the New Haven, through its subsidiary, the New England Navigation company, did not advance to John L. Billard $1,000,000 on his four promissory notes, or whether Billard was indebted to the New England Navigation company for $1,000,000.

Refusals to Produce Books.
Counsel for the commission said Mr. Whipple had been directed by subpoena to bring books, documents and contracts of the Billard company.
"Are you prepared," he inquired, "to produce those books and documents?"
"I am not," Whipple responded, and declined to say whether his refusal was or was not because the books were too bulky.

To Samuel Hemingway, president of the Second National Bank of New Haven, a similar line of questions was put. He also declined to answer. His counsel, Homer B. Cummings of New Haven, said he had concluded that "responses to such inquiries by the witness would be inappropriate, as they were quite beyond the powers of the commission."

"Suppose it could be shown," suggested Mr. Folk, "that the Billard company was owned and controlled by the New Haven road through dummy directors and officials, would that have nothing to do with an inquiry into the New Haven's financial transactions?"
"I do not regard this," said Mr. Cummings, "as a proper tribunal to conduct this inquiry. Congress has no power to investigate the Billard company."

"Even though," interjected Mr. Folk, "the Billard company be a holding company of an interstate railroad?"
"I am not on the witness stand," responded Mr. Cummings.

By direction of Commissioner McChord the record of the proceedings is to show the witnesses refused to answer essential questions in the face of a ruling by the commission that the questions be answered, that despite the order witnesses persisted in their refusal.

Billard Gives Notice.
A. E. May, treasurer of the New Haven, testified that the road did not hold securities of the New England Navigation company, but did own all the stock.
"What obligations of John L. Billard, or of the Billard company, were held by the New Haven or the New England Navigation company?"
"Only such," replied Mr. May, "as were necessary to the conduct of the affairs of the New Haven."

"Did Mr. Billard give his note to the New England Navigation company for $1,000,000?"

"I think so," responded Mr. May.
"What transaction did that note represent?"
"It is impossible," responded the witness, "for me to explain all the details, but I think the transaction was in connection with the acquisition of Boston & Maine stock."

Mr. May said he knew nothing about $1,000,000 said to have been turned over by the New England Navigation company to Billard.
"Did the New Haven own a note of John L. Billard for $1,000,000 and did the New England Navigation company for one of equal amount?" Mr. May was asked.

"I think so, but I do not recall the details."
He explained that all relations between the New Haven and the Billard company had ceased last month.
"After the institution of this investigation?"
"Oh, yes," he replied.

Mr. Hines explained that the relations of the companies ceased with an exchange of securities.

Profit in Exchanging Stock.
The Billard company, the witness said, had no other business than that with the New Haven that he knew of.
"Is it a fact," inquired Counsel Doherty of the commission, "that Billard bought of the New England Navigation company Boston & Maine stock for $15 a share and subsequently sold it back to the navigation company for $16 a share?"
"I think some such transaction occurred."
"Did the profit on that transaction amount to about $2,000,000?"
"I can express no opinion as to that."
"Do you know whether Billard acted in that transaction as an individual or for the New Haven company?"
"I do not know," responded Mr. May.

He added that the Billard company securities were kept in the New Haven's road's vaults and it apparently had no other office.
"Do you know how much of a loss the New Haven sustained through its connection with the Billard company?" Mr. May was asked.
"I do not."
"Do you know what a loss it sustained through the Boston & Maine, or through John L. Billard?"
"No, sir."
"Do you know," inquired Mr. Doherty, "of anything that is being covered up in the books of the New Haven?"
"I do not."

Big Items Explained.
"I do not know," he replied. He explained that the books of the New Haven would show all the transactions. He could not explain why large payments in form of loans to former President Melba were made, except that they had been ordered by the board of directors. A particular loan of $25,000 to Mr. Melba had been repaid with interest at 5 per cent.

"Is John L. Billard a director of the New Haven—the John L. Billard of the Billard company?" inquired Counsel Gar-diner for the commission.

"I think so," Mr. May replied.
Witness was asked about certain securities amounting to about $18,000,000 which had passed between the New Haven, the New England Navigation company and the Billard company.
"Do you think this transaction was a juggling of securities between the New Haven and its subsidiaries?"
"I do not know that there was any juggling, and I cannot say why the transaction was conducted, but assume there must have been some good reason. My books would not disclose the reason."

A. E. Clark, secretary of the New Haven, produced minutes of the meetings of directors containing details of the transactions between the New Haven and the New England Navigation company and the Billard company. Special information was sought by counsel for the commission as to the passage of securities between the navigation company and the Billard company.

Whitewash by Magnates.
One of the minutes showed that a committee consisting of J. P. Morgan, William Rockefeller, Lewis Cass Ledyard and General Counsel Robbins of the New Haven had been appointed to investigate the proposed purchase of about $8,000,000 of gold notes of the Billard company. Later the committee reported that no action was recommended. Another minute showed a loan of $75,000 to Charles E. Mallen, then president of the New Haven, bearing interest at 5 per cent and having as security 12,500 shares of the Billard company.

Various details of the financial operations of the New Haven and the New England Navigation company were developed by the reading of the minutes. The Billard company is a corporation which figured prominently in New Haven fiscal transactions which have been attacked. To determine exactly what its relations and purposes were is one of the objects of the present investigation.

Increase in Deficits.
NEW YORK, April 10.—Increased deficits are shown by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad company and virtually all its subsidiaries for the month of February. The Maine line reports a deficit in net income of $775,486, against $623,997 in the preceding month.

JURY FREES YOUTH WHOSE AUTO KILLED BOY

ABERDEEN, S. D., April 10.—(Special Telegram.)—The coroner's jury which probed the killing of 7-year-old Irvin Christianson by Shelby Whaley, aged 17, who ran over the lad with an automobile, late this afternoon returned a verdict finding Whaley guilty of negligence, but not to a degree justifying holding him for manslaughter. The jury then severely censured the police department of the city for lax observance of the traffic ordinances.
