The federal general, Maas, has established his headquarters at Soleda, about sixteen miles from Vera Cruz, and his men are tearing up the railroad tracks. The gap between Tejera, the water supply 1.100 station, which is guarded by Americans, and Soleda, has grown greatly and it is now no simple task for the refugees, whether foreigners fleeing from Huerta or Mexicans proceeding from Vera Cruz towards the capital, to get across the open space. Sir Christopher Craddock, through Sir

Lionel Carden, who has resumed charge of the British embassy at the capital, is urging President Huerta to permit the departure of all foreigners from Mexico City, and it is considered possible that one or more trains at least will be perfallen under the displeasure of Huerta and are in the custody of his forces will be held for an indeterminate period.
