WHEN preparing your summer wardrobe you should have several dainty white tulle scarfs to wear with summer evening frocks—at least that is what the travelers returning from New York and Paris tell me.

Daintiness seems to be the keynote for the summer wardrobe this year, and bolts and yards of lace and net will be used in combination with more substantial taffeta.

Every kind of a gown or frock must have a girle. It does not matter whether in contrasting shade or not, or it does not seem to be important how it is made; in fact, the simple girle with a bow either back or front is as popular as any. Soft Japanese silks are favored in girles for the summer frocks.

Probably the newest note in dress accessories is the "back comb." This is one part of the wardrobe which is not so dainty, for the fancy combs and immense hairpins which are jauntily worn on the bias, so to speak, are both large and brilliant.

Mr. Walfrid Jacobson, president of the Athenian Debating society, entertained the members at his home, 3515 Lafayette avenue, Friday evening. A short business meeting was held, followed by a program. Robert Booth opened the program by telling an interesting story about two of the guests present. Richard Lucke then gave a flute solo; then a debate was held on the question, "Resolved, That the United States Should Intervene in Mexico." Richard Lucke took the affirmative and Donald Smith the negative. The judges unanimously decided in favor of the affirmative. Then the Athenian Debating society quartet, consisting of Phillip Romoneck, Harold Aldrich, Clifton Cooper and Arthur Shrum, sang the newboys' quartet song, "Roll Them Bones." The president then announced to the society that he had a serious matter, which proved to be a humorous debate concerning the part of the society teacher, Mr. E. H. Orchard. He was proved "not guilty."

The quartet then sang. Two games were played, Walker Rule getting first prize in one and John Tallafiero in the other. Merrill Ady drew straws to see which one should act the prize; Walker Rule was the fortunate one. As a reward he was given a volume of Shakespeare's works.

Refreshments were served. After the refreshments Arthur Roemer sang three solos. Then the whole society sang the High school song, "Style All the While." As they were leaving the house they gave a cheer for the president. The following were present:

Florence Council Will Not Confirm the Mayor's List

War broke out in the Florence city council Monday night when Mayor Tucker made his appointments. He named Kelso Morgan as city attorney, but the council refused to confirm it, and excited language filled the council chamber, each councilman trying to outdo the other, and the mayor holding up his end.

The pool hall license question was taken up and two were turned down and one granted. The lucky man was C. C. Logan. Four applications for liquor license are up for consideration. Only one, John Nicholas, was able to respond. Mayor Tucker says he will stand pat on his appointments, and the council says it will not under any circumstances confirm the same, and, further, there will be no business until the mayor backs up and appoints those whom the council thinks the right ones for the position. Councilmen Thomas, Bohman and Kelly are against the appointments and Councilman Johnson for them.

McShane Forces Suit to Collect for Meals to County Prisoners

Sheriff Felix McShane, refusing to wait one more month for final adjudication of the jail feeding issue in supreme court, has forced to trial in district court another suit to collect 50 cents per day for feeding each prisoner in county jail. According to counsel for the county, when the first of seven suits for monthly feeding bills, amounting to about $2,400 each, was carried to the supreme court an agreement was made to "hold up" the others till the question was decided by the tribunal of last resort. Decision recently was rendered for the sheriff by the supreme court. A motion for a rehearing was filed and, according to the county attorney, will be passed upon in about one month.

Sheriff McShane, however, has forced the other suits to trial and as a result the county will be compelled to pay court costs. The sheriff declares he believes the county "does not intend to pay the bills until it has to."
