WIMMING is becoming a popular fad in society during the heated term. But so far only a few private swimming pools are owned by Omaha people. Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy, who recently moved to Chicago from here and who have a beautiful summer home at Mackinac, are building a private swimming pool on their estate. The only private pool in Omaha at present is that in the spacious grounds of the George A. Joslyn home.

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Kirkendall have a private lake at their country home, Kirkwood, near Florence.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Love have a very small lake at their country place beyond Elmwood Park. Many awimming parties are being given at Carter lake, Seymour Lake club and the Metropolitan pool.

Almost any evening you will find a dozen automobiles from Omaha at passengers saved. The crew ran away Ferres lake, at Valley, which is about an hour and a half motor trip from with the life boats." here. The motorists usually take a picnic supper along.

At Happy Hollow.

An interesting musical is planned for Tuesday evening at Happy Hollow, when Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Fremantel will give the program.

Preceding the musical many dinner parties will be given. Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Stirling will entertain at dinner, when their guests will be:

"My wife was with me-we had been narried only two weeks. It was about 2 o'clock in the morning when we struck the iceberg. I stepped into the main saloon and noticed the bow was slanted toward the lcy water. I then went into couple left the same afternoon for a the smoking compartment, where I found a number of men smoking, and trying October 1 in Sait Lake City, Utah, where on life preservers; but not one was mak-Mr. Phelan has accepted a responsible ing any effort to escape. The mate ran position with the Oregon Short Line rail- in, out of breath, and told up there was no danger; that the boat would right itself in a minute, and that we should return to our staterooms. I felt the ship jar a trifle, and slip, and I returned to my wife. She hastily dressed, and with only out outer clothing we sought the deck. I went to the rall and could see the position of our ship. It seemed stationary, caught on a portion of the iceter, Miss Mildred McMurphy, who is to berg, with its bow hidden in the waves and the propeller fifteen feet above water.

> Only One Lifebont. "There was only one life boat in sight. The crew had in its haste to escape, taken the others. There were two people in the life boat when my wife and I climbed in. We tried to cut away, but in the excitement, some one cut one rope and left the other, which caused the life boat to hand perpendicular in the water. We hung on somehow until the remaining rope was cut and the boat righted herself. One passenger slid overboard, but we picked him up afterward. Then we started rowing, not knowing where, but just anywhere, and in the cold night the drenched occupants of the lifeboat, of whom there were fourteen, were anxious for the exercise. We had just cleared the propeller, when we heard an explosion and the ship plunged into the water as swift as an arrow. And from the time we struck the leeberg until the ship sank but ourteen minutes elapsed.

"We could see nothing that resembled s shore at first, on account of the darkness. But somewhere in the direction of the sunken ship we heard the cries of women. We debated a moment. Should we return to the ship and try to save gers and badly leaking. So we rowed away, and their cries became fainter and fainter, until at last we could hear them Washington, New York and Atlantic no longer. Then a deep sense of dejection and silence settled upon all of us there in that frail little leaking craft. We thought Mrs. Edmund V. Krug, of St. Louis, left that we had done right, but still-still even cled we still heard them. Half frozen, Misses Margaret and Mabel Stirling stung by the salty spray and conscience will leave Wednesday evening for Port- stricken by those cries, we rowed on and not have done otherwise. Was it not better to save even these fourteen than to go back and swamp the entire craft? "A long while after, we heard a water TO fall, and knew we were near land. It was Mrs. Lee Herdman and children, Kath- an island-Douglas island; and we spent leen and Virginia, returned Friday from a miserable night there. #### ABUSES WIFE WHEN SHE ASKS TO GO TO A PICTURE SHOW

Herbert E. Cross, traveling salesman for a St. Paul firm, who is charged with wife desertion, was bound over to the district court by Judge Altstadt on bonds placed at $1,000. Mrs. Mabel E. Cross. wife of the defendant, testified that Cross had choked and struck her when she asked him to take her to a picture show. Several days afterward he deserted his wife, without a penny, merely providing for her board and room at the Flatiron otel for three days.

Matt Gering represented Cross, who testified that he had no invention of deserting his wife, but had merely left to proride a permanent home for her in the west. Mrs. Cross, during the four years of her married life, has accompanied her husband, who was constantly on the road, Judge Altstadt administered a severe rebuke to Cross for his conduct, before
