AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Promise of Good-Sized Crowd of Boosters for Fair Trip.

MANY TICKETS ARE SOLD

Young Man, Injured, but Seeking Light Work, Gives His Experience While Engaged in the March for Employment.

Mayor Hoctor has issued a call to the citizens to go to Lincoln today—Omaha and South Omaha day at the state fair. Members of the boosting committee paid a visit to the merchants of Twenty-fourth street yesterday and sold many tickets. It is estimated that about 500 South Omaha people ought to join the Lincoln crowd when the Burlington train leaves the L street station at 8:15 this morning. Later in the day an automobile party will probably make the trip.

No One Aids This Man. This is the story of a man down on his luck and his views on organized and unorganized charity. His name is James Harland and he gave the interview without any intention of its getting into print. Harland is a young stationary engineer from the east. Early in the summer he sustained a heat stroke in South Omaha and lost his job running a traction engine. Then he went to work in a packing house. An accident resulted in the injury of a finger so that he cannot use one hand. The packing company gave him a temporary job as doorkeeper, but an underling boss made it so uncomfortable for him that he had to quit. Harland then began to look for work that would fit his condition until his hand had healed. His board was paid for a week, but the people he lived with were poor.

"I can not live off them," he said. He does not want to beg. He wants work—such work as he can do with one hand. He called on the mayor and on the associated charities and on the county physician's force and on the Young Men's Christian association—not looking for money, but seeking for work. Here is what he said:

"When a fellow is down and out no one has any time for you. I've been to all your charitable organizations looking for aid to assist me to a job that I could hold while disabled. Some of them kept me waiting a long time, others looked blankly at me, others sent me on to someone else who could not do anything, and some insulted me. I have exactly two quarters to my name and my right hand is injured so that I cannot use it. Well, I'm getting pretty tired, and when I get a little more tired of these things I shall say goodby to them all."

Omaha Girl in Men's Clothes is Arrested at St. Louis

Dressed in men's clothes a young woman who said at first she was Gertrude Roche and later declared her name to be Gertrude Hall of Omaha, was arrested while wandering about the Wabash railroad yards near Rosedale station, St. Louis.

Though her hair was cut short and though her clothes consisted of complete masculine attire—gray striped trousers, blue serge coat, light soft shirt, tan shoes and blue cap—she was betrayed by her carriage and walk. A patrolman questioned her and she confessed that she had donned men's clothing in order to "beat her way" from Lafayette, Ind., back home.

She stated that her father was Andrew Roche and that he died nine years ago; her mother, Gertrude, died three years ago. Since her mother's death she said she had been cook at St. Joseph's hospital, Omaha. There she became acquainted with a young woman who has since become a nun, known as Sister Berthilda and stationed at St. Elizabeth's Home, Lafayette.

She determined to visit Sister Berthilda with a view of becoming a nun herself. She packed her clothing in two suitcases and went to Lafayette. She saw Sister Berthilda, but found that there was no place for her in the convent. Also she lost or was robbed of $10 which she had when she arrived in Lafayette.

CREIGHTON MEN STILL MAD

Want School Board to Specify Policy on Use of Buildings.

SUGGEST SNEAKING THE KEY

R. Beecher Howell Makes Speech, Promising Cheap Water, After Which Guests Are Treated to Grape Juice.

Exasperated because the school board will not open school houses for meeting places of improvement clubs, the Creighton First Addition Improvement club last night decided that it would take some radical action. The members engaged in a very animated and somewhat acrimonious discussion over the board's policy.

J. W. Sutton, who has been chairman of the committee that was to present the club's arguments against the alleged injustice to the school board, reported that he and his committee were at least given a hearing, although they got little real satisfaction. "The board very courteously listened to the requests of the club and made the statement that they would take the matter under advisement and probably could take some definite action at the next meeting," said Mr. Sutton.

"It was a case of the board hesitating to take a stand until they were absolutely sure of the nature of public sentiment in the matter. I am in favor of creating a little public sentiment immediately."

CONTRACTOR'S YARD MAN IS ACCUSED OF THEFT

Using marked bills as a trap for Louis Stein, night yard man, whom he suspected of making off with over $3,000 worth of building material within the last month, Detective Eddie Fleming, at the request of Henry Gross, contractor, arrested the man last night.

A third person was used in order to get Stein to take the money. A wagon was loaded with lumber and building material and the marked bills were paid over. When the third man drove away, Fleming made the arrest and the lumber was taken back to the lumberyard. Gross says within the last month over $3,000 worth of stuff has been stolen.

CLUBS WILL INVESTIGATE DEMOTION OF BERNSTEIN

An investigation of the demotion of Prof. Nathan Bernstein was the most vital consideration before the meeting of the Federation of Improvement club's meeting last night at the city hall. It was the unanimous voice of the assembly that Mr. Bernstein's position should be investigated and that if any injustice had been done him, ways and means adopted to help rectify the wrong. The meeting had been dedicated originally to the consideration of the new Union passenger depot plans, but the speakers of the evening did not show up, consequently the issue went by the board.
