

LIKES INCINERATOR PLAN

Ryder Approves Suggestion Made by County Commissioner Lynch.

WOULD BURN CITY'S REFUSE

Such a Disposition of Rubbish is Pointed Out as an Effective Means Beyond the Experimental Stage.

Police Commissioner J. J. Ryder approves the suggestion of County Commissioner Lynch, who advocated the construction of an incinerator plant to burn city refuse.

"It will be one of the best things ever accomplished in this city and county if the Board of County Commissioners act on the suggestion of Commissioner Lynch after his visit to Minneapolis. I have personally visited the Minneapolis plant, as well as those at Cleveland and Detroit, and the Canadian 'honor farm' at Guelph, Ontario.

Police Commissioner J. J. Ryder approves the suggestion of County Commissioner Lynch, who advocated the construction of an incinerator plant to burn city refuse.

"At Minneapolis, as pointed out by Commissioner Lynch, the incinerator plant is on the workhouse grounds and the prisoners do the work. As at the Guelph farm in Ontario, the men are given to understand that the kind of treatment they receive depends on themselves, and the same is true of Dr. Cooley's institution at Cleveland. It is also true of many other places. So that, aside from the merely economic reasons for the establishment of such a city farm, the men sent there for one reason or another—very often the victims of crass misfortune—are turned out with at least some sense of self-respect left and are not shorn of all ambition.

"Omaha must have this kind of an institution sooner or later, and perhaps the ideal plan would be for the city and county to join in its creation. With it, as a right arm of strength and help, we should have a board of public welfare on the Cleveland and Kansas City lines, conducted in broad spirit. But with or without the welfare board we must have the farm plan for best results. The old workhouse plan—punishment, slave-driving—is about dead. Work all prisoners, and chronic idlers and loafers, but give them decent sleeping quarters, nourishing food, good medical treatment, a manly deal all the way through. Then we can hope to benefit those who pass through our court rooms.

"From the standpoint of the conservation of city funds, and the even more important consideration of the public health and comfort, we cannot very long continue the present antiquated plan of gathering and disposing of city garbage and refuse. It is in every sense bad, and sooner or later will become almost an intolerable nuisance to the residents of the north section of the city, especially those living within a block or two of the bluffs surrounding the north bottom. If we do not get quick action on the county and city farm plan, we will soon be forced to erect incinerator plants to destroy our garbage and refuse.

"How will we get started, then, the natural question. As the law passed by the legislature gives the county the right of initiative, perhaps the county board can at once call a conference that will develop a way to make proper beginning."

Mrs. Harriman on Her Way East from Idaho Ranch

Mrs. E. H. Harriman, accompanied by the members of her family and a coterie of servants, went east on a special train enroute to her home in New York.

Mrs. Harriman came in over the Union Pacific and here was met by President Mohler of the Union Pacific, who conferred with her thirty minutes or so, while the train was being transferred to the Illinois Central, that takes her to Chicago.

At Island Park, twenty-six miles from the west entrance to Yellowstone National Park, Mrs. Harriman has a ranch of several thousand acres. It is close to the Three Tetons and a branch of the Snake river flows through it from north to south.

OMAHA PEOPLE IN BAD WRECK

M. Levy and Family in Horrible Collision on New Haven Road.

ALL HAVE MIRACULOUS ESCAPE

Are Shut In for a Time in Their Compartments, but Finally Get Out to See Where Many Are Killed.

Mr. Levy and his wife of Omaha, were in the train wreck at Wallingford, Conn., Tuesday morning. The Omaha couple and their daughter and son-in-law, Daniel Korn, of New York City, were in their compartments at the front of the Bar Harbor train.

"It happened about 7 o'clock in the morning," Mr. Levy said yesterday at the Hotel Loyal. "I was partly dressed, when there came a terrific shock. My wife was thrown to the floor and I fell against the wall of the compartment. At first I thought the shock was caused by the train stopping to take on a diner. But when the tracks and wheels continued to stand still I suspected something had happened. So I tried to open our door.

"The sudden jar had dislocated the lock and I could not open the door. I hammered on the door that led into by daughter and son-in-law's room, and told them I could not get out. His reply was that his door was caught, too. Finally he opened the connecting door and his door that led into the passage way.

"I could see men and women hurrying by the window, and they seemed frightened and excited. When we finally reached the tracks and looked to the rear, we saw a most horrible sight.

"No Doctors Present. Men and women were writhing in the cinders, and people were carrying them to grassy places at the side of the right-of-way. There was no system at first—everybody was so excited. There was not a physician on either train. There was one trained nurse, but I do not remember her name.

"The train that crashed into our was the White Mountain Express. The White Mountain train burrowed deep—three cars—into our train of eleven coaches. One of the cars stood upright one shattered, vestibule on the ground, and the other straight in the air. Just how the people got out of that coach, may only be surmised. Perhaps they fell through the windows; maybe they rolled down the aisle into a head at the bottom.

"An electric interurban car from New Haven to Wallingford stopped, alighted its passengers and carried the injured into New Haven. That was repeated several times. At last a corps of doctors and physicians arrived.

"Women Hysterical. One woman, partly dressed, walked about aimlessly, her hair flying in the breeze. Thinking God that she was uninjured and praying that as few as possible of the passengers might be injured. It took some time to quiet the woman. It was feared others might be affected by her frenzy and become hysterical also.

"People ran among the crowd calling for others, with whom they had been traveling, and the result would be either a wild display of happiness or of despair. It was the first wreck I have ever been in, and once is enough for me."

When shown the story in The Bee regarding the robbery of the injured, Mr. Levy said that must have occurred after he and his family had left.

"There was only a wild scene of disorder and frantic efforts to pull the injured from beneath the wreckage when we were there," Mr. Levy said.

Mrs. King Wants Alimony—Mrs. Leslie King, now of Chicago, whom her husband, who is manager of the Omaha Wool and Storage company, is suing for divorce after less than a year of married life, has filed a motion in district court asking that she be awarded temporary alimony of $50 a month, with attorney's fees of $1,000. She alleges that Mr. King makes $5,000 a year.

Consent to Agree—Jacob and Rose Goldberger, participants in a divorce suit, whom Judge Troup a few weeks ago sought to reconcile, came into court again and by their attitude towards each other convinced the judge that they could not live happily together, so the case will take its place again on the regular docket. The judge at the former hearing advised Goldwars to help his wife with the housework, saying that he had often washed dishes.

Nebraska Grain is Shipped to England

The fall movement of Nebraska grain toward the south has started. Yesterday a train of thirty cars of oats went out, destined for export to England. From Omaha the oats go to Galveston by rail and thence to destination by vessel. Omaha freight men connected with lines having gulf port terminals are of the opinion that the amount of export grain going out of Nebraska will be much greater than during any year in the past. The shipments of corn will be less, but those of wheat and oats will be more than doubled.

PASSENGER MEN MEET HERE

Will All Leave This Evening for Convention at St. Paul.

LOCAL OFFICIALS TO ATTEND

Messrs. Fort, Melton and Shields Will Be Among Representatives that Are to Go from Omaha.

Passenger men of the country are gathering here to go to St. Paul, where next week will be held the convention of the National Railway Passenger Agents' association. Sunday night the party will go out over the Northwestern, extra sleepers being attached to the regular train for their convention.

W. H. Doll, general agent of the passenger department of the Western Maryland railway, was among the first to arrive. He made a trip about the city, and upon his return was loud in extolling praise of its good streets and substantial buildings. Mr. Doll is from the south and would be presumed to be accustomed to hot weather, but he is not. Living in Maryland, Virginia and Florida for years, he said that not until today had he ever looked at a thermometer when it was marking the 100-degree point. To him this was a trying novelty.

The Union Pacific passenger agents from the western states are due to arrive Sunday morning, some fifteen or twenty of them. They will be the guests of Passenger Traffic Manager Fort at luncheon and at the headquarters during the afternoon will hold a sort of a family meeting.

From Omaha Mr. Fort of the Union Pacific, John Melton, general agent of the Northwestern, and Harry Shields, general agent of the passenger department of the Wabash, are the only ones who have decided to attend the convention. At the close of the meeting Mr. Melton will make a trip through Glacier park, and Mr. Shields, who will be accompanied by Mrs. Shields, will join the party that tours Yellowstone park.

THINK HE IS OLD CRIMINAL

Negro Waters is Measured and His Record Being Investigated.

SUSPECTED OF VILLISCA CRIME

Authorities There Believe that He Was the Individual Who Killed the Moore Family Little Over Year Ago.

William I. Devereese, registrar of the local Bertillon record of criminals, has obtained complete measurements of Joe Waters, who died at South Omaha Thursday, and who is supposed to have been guilty of the double murder at Fremont. The similarity of the Villisca murder horror, when the Moore family of six and two guests were killed with an axe on June 10, 1912, to that of Fremont led the authorities at the former place to request a complete description of the negro. They were especially anxious to learn all they could of him when a rough outline of the man's features were sent them. For these tallied with those of a mysterious individual seen about the Moore home several days before the crimes were committed.

SOUTH OMAHA BARBER FALLS FROM ROOF AND BREAKS LEG

Dennis Milfont, barber, twenty-fifth and N streets, South Omaha, suffered a broken leg and minor scalp wounds when he fell off of the roof where he has been sleeping since the hot weather started in. Milfont resides at 214 N. streets and the oppressive heat had driven him to take his bed up where he would get the benefit of any breeze that might be sent. The accident occurred as he slipped on the ladder in making his descent. He was taken to the South Omaha hospital where he was given medical attention.

Fitch Says City is Trying to Confiscate His Two City Lots

Whether the city may pile up taxes for public improvements against a lot until the sum total is more than the value of the property and then sell the lot to pay the taxes is the issue in a suit brought by F. W. Fitch, the attorney.

Mr. Fitch has enjoined City Treasurer Ure from collecting taxes assessed against two lots owned by him at Forty-third and Hamilton streets and has asked the district court to quiet the title to the lots in himself and forbid their confiscation, alleging that the city otherwise will violate his constitutional rights by taking his property for public purposes without compensation and without due process of law. The plaintiff alleges that Hamilton street was raised far above the lots by a grading contractor, that a sewer was installed in Hamilton street which will be of no benefit to the lots, that a sidewalk was built and that an assessment for paving was levied, the expenses of all of which were taxed against the two lots. He alleges that the lots were valued by the assessor at $10 each.

That Waters was a degenerate was quite apparent from the countenance of the corpse as it lay in the Larkin establishment at South Omaha. Heavy lines of dissipation were depicted by death and the physical structure of the body was an unnatural one. A massive head, entirely out of proportion with the trunk and limbs of the man, also lent a grotesque appearance to the corpse. Extraordinarily small feet and hands added themselves to the effect, and while Waters was probably far from an idiot it also was evident that he was not a well-balanced individual.

"There is no question in my mind but that this man has a record behind him," said Captain Maloney. "He appeared a born criminal and I would not be at all surprised if the Villisca trouble is finally traced to his hand."

Devereese, who measured hundreds of criminals during the year, is of the same opinion of Maloney, and is quite confident that more concerning Waters will be brought to light by the investigation.

Lawyers Return from Meeting of the Bar Association

The advance guard of Omaha lawyers returning from the American Bar association meeting at Montreal is here, the first to report being Arthur Wakeley.

"We had a fine meeting and a very interesting one," said Mr. Wakeley, and most remarkable was the large attendance from Omaha, the largest delegation that ever went. We got together there and renewed acquaintance with some former members of the legal fraternity here, Henry Estabrook and J. H. McIntosh of New York. Here is our own roll call: T. J. Mahoney, J. A. C. Kennedy, L. F. Dexter, John L. Webster, E. E. Condon, W. D. McHugh, W. F. Gurley, E. A. Hogan, E. M. Moran, Edgar Scott, W. A. Redick, N. H. Loomis and myself. George Wright of Council Bluffs was also there and E. P. Davidson of Tecumseh.

"Mrs. Wakeley and I went to New York first to receive the body of Mrs. Nettie Collins Gates and arrange for sending it on to Omaha. It was lucky we did, and that we got the body quickly, for it was only a few hours afterward that the fire broke out in the Imperator, which would otherwise surely have made a great delay and might possibly have burned the body."

Officer Charged With Taking Cash Given Reprimand

Police Officer Charles Whalen, charged by Bertha Jones, alias Bertha Huddleston, with accepting $5 "protection" money after he had accepted her on the street, was reinstated on the force by unanimous vote of the city commission after a hearing. His salary, however, for the period of his suspension was withheld. Police Commissioner J. J. Ryder publicly rebuked Officer Whalen. He said:

"When this kind of a thing comes up a policeman has no option. He should arrest the woman if she deserves to be arrested. I want to say this to you, Officer Whalen, that if this thing comes up again with you or with any other member of the police force, you will get worse treatment than you received this time. You have no business to trifle with these women, and I am announcing to the police force that officers guilty of so doing will not be lightly dealt with."

Captain Henry Heiford, Chief of Police Dunin and two detectives testified that they had spoken with the woman and that she had charged the officer with keeping the money. Whalen said if he received $5 he didn't know it and did not later find it on himself.

H. B. Fleharty defended Whalen and Assistant City Attorney W. C. Lambert acted as prosecuting attorney.
