MRS. FRANK L. HALLER and Mrs. F. H. Cole, and Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Somers, who have just returned from an extended stay in London, had interesting experiences with the suffragists.

While attending the special services for the International Medical convention, which was held Sunday morning at Westminster Abbey, the visitors were quite startled, for while the congregation and choir were chanting the Litany about forty suffragists crossed the aisle from them in practiced harmony began the following chant: "Save Emmeline Pankhurst; spare her, spare her; give her life and set her free. Save her, save her; hear us while we pray to Thee." The suffragists were then requested to leave the church, which they did quietly, but the service had been interrupted.

The week preceding the same suffragists were at St. Paul's cathedral. Before being admitted to Windsor castle, London Tower and many of the art galleries and museums in London, the visitors were requested to leave all bags or hand luggage, as they fear the suffragists' bombs. Mrs. Cole had a large, black silk bag which proved very useful, but which she almost discarded, for every place she went she received suspicious looks, some sympathetic and others scornful, for they thought she was carrying bombs for the militant suffragists.

Credentials from Secretary Bryan proved to be of much assistance to the travelers.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS ARE OPEN

Indications Are Attendance Larger Than Last Year.

SEVERAL SCHOOLS CROWDED

Number at Central High and High School of Commerce Greater Than Ever Before—Most Teachers Here.

With the exception of Miller Park, all public schools opened yesterday, the initial attendance at noon being about 17,000. Seats for Miller Park school had been delayed and the opening of the building was postponed until Wednesday. The Fort school for boys will be opened in two weeks.

Miss Mary Sullivan of the English literature department of the high school, is in Europe and was granted a week's leave of absence. Miss Sara Vove Taylor, head of constructive English, is ill. These were the only two teachers in the public schools who were absent.

Leader Hays, graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, is one of the new teachers at the high school, going into the science department as teacher of mathematics. Miss Marie Schmidt is teaching German and is acting head of the department. Miss Albin Cowen resigned to take special work in Peru.

Superintendent E. U. Graff said the attendance this year was greater than on the first day of any previous year. The number enrolled at the close of the day will probably be 800 more than the number enrolled on the first day of school last year, when the attendance on the initial day reached 14,801.

Some Schools Crowded.
Central and Lathrop schools were crowded beyond capacity early in the day. Castellar was also crowded so that it was necessary to open a class in the basement. Attendance at the High school and the High School of Commerce indicated the largest enrollment in years.

Superintendent Graff said he would issue no permits for students outside the districts of Lathrop, Central and Castellar to attend either of these schools.

Dr. E. Holovitchner, president of the Board of Education, received a letter from Mrs. E. R. Jewell of Weeping Water asking that her son be admitted to the Fort school for boys. After conference with Superintendent Graff, Dr. Holovitchner said the boy would be admitted, but until all Omaha boys who would attend this school are cared for non-resident pupils will not be invited. Non-residents will be charged tuition for the Fort school, which is $30 a year for the four high grades and $15 a year for the four lower grades.

Passenger Men Are Disappointed Over Yellowstone Trip

The last of the railroad passenger men got away to the big convention at St. Paul, leaving on early morning trains.

And while they expect to have a most interesting meeting, the plan of the Northern Pacific to run a special train from St. Paul to the Yellowstone National park, and there have 500 of the passenger men as its guests for five days, is leaving a number of sore spots.

When the Northern Pacific proposed the free ride and free meals, invitations were sent out to all of the passenger men of the west. Immediately 700 accepted by sending in word that they would become company guests. Now it turns out the train can handle but 300 men on the train and through the park. The other 400, if they go, will have to shift for themselves, as best they can.

In selecting the 300 for the trip, it is said the Northern Pacific reserved accommodations for those whose acceptances were first received.

Shamp is Cornered by the Engineers

Chauncey L. Shamp, secretary of the Stationary Firemen's association, has been cornered by the Stationary Engineers' association and must either fight or surrender.

Shamp introduced an ordinance providing for the licensing of firemen so that they could have charge of heating plants. He asked the city commission to pass the ordinance forthwith. That was a year ago and today Shamp asked for an indefinite postponement until he could, with the help of the real estate men, the Commercial club and the manufacturers prepare a new ordinance.

"You have left us out of this altogether," said an engineer to Shamp. "Why don't you ask us to help you frame this ordinance? We are more interested in it than you are."

"You have never intimated that you wanted to help."

"We sent you a letter asking you to invite us to help," shouted a second engineer.

"Nothin' to it," Shamp replied, and busied himself with reading the petition to postpone which was signed by himself, F. E. Sanborn of the Manufacturers' association, Byron R. Hastings of the Real Estate exchange and Gould Dietz for the Commercial club.

SOUTH DAKOTAN BACKS UP ON HIS FALSE ENTRY

If the man from South Dakota had attempted to enlist in the army a month ago, he would now be in a fort some where with officers, cannon, horses, flags and other military paraphernalia around him. As it is, he is back in South Dakota, deeply interested in railroad work.

He entered the army recruiting office Saturday, passed all physical examinations and went out on the street again to take a good look at the recruiting posters. He gathered from the posters that he would stand around amid inspiring scenery, looking off serenely into space with a telescope. He told the officers in charge that he was 31 years old.

This morning he came back for the finishing touches of the examination. Everything was satisfactory until this suggestion was put:

"Of course, you understand that if you get into the service by making any false representations and answers, you may be subject to a court-martial trial."

The man from South Dakota thought it over a moment.

May Use Phonograph to Announce Trains at Passenger Depot

Hereafter, if all goes well, a talking machine, something on the plan of a phonograph, will call the trains at the Union station. The machine has been tried out and will be put in operation shortly after Dr. Millener of the Union Pacific returns from his Colorado fishing trip.

There has been all kinds of trouble and dissatisfaction at the Union station over the method of announcing the departure of the passenger trains. The caller does the best he can, but his voice is not strong enough to fill the big waiting room. It does not carry, and what is worse, his articulation is not of the best, and a dozen or more station names are jumbled into one word, ending with all aboard, aboard being about all that can be understood.

The system, of which Dr. Millener is the originator, consists of four immense funnels, one in each corner of the room, high up in the ceiling. Facing one of these funnels, the train caller talks at it in an ordinary tone of voice. His words are caught by the mechanism inside the funnel and repeated back, clear and distinct and loud enough to be heard a block away. Turning about he talks at another funnel, and so on until the announcing is completed.

Dr. Millener is of the opinion that he has hit upon a plan that will be adopted at all passenger stations of the big cities, and one that will prove satisfactory in every particular.

YEISER BELIEVES THAT HANGER SHOULD BE PAROLED

John O. Yeiser, member of the State Pardon board, in a minority opinion, dissents from the decision of the board that William Hanger, sentenced to a penitentiary term for an assault upon his wife, must remain in prison because, it is alleged, he broke parole. Mr. Yeiser believes that Hanger should be paroled to a resident of the western part of the state and says in his opinion that he believes Hanger is anxious to take his two daughters who have grown to young womanhood, from the custody of their mother, rather than to do Mrs. Hanger any harm.

Father of M. Tattle is Being Detained at Ellis Island

For the last two days M. Tattle, the furniture and antique man, has been having an experience even warmer than the weather, and has been keeping wires hot between Omaha and New York. It all comes about over Mr. Tattle's desire to have his aged father, whom he left when he came to this country twenty-five years ago, join him here and make his home with him. The father, Pincus Tattle, was to have arrived three weeks ago, when the son went to New York to meet him, only to learn that the old man, after reaching Hamburg, had either lost or been robbed of his ticket, and thus prevented from embarking. Arrangements were made for providing passage in another boat, but Mr. Tattle could not wait, and so returned to Omaha. His next information was that the father had landed last Friday from the "Adriatic," but was being detained at Ellis Island, and denied admission because of his advanced age.

The efforts of Mr. Tattle have been directed to securing release on assurance or bond that the father will be properly provided for if he concludes to stay in this country.

Visiting Nurses to Have Headquarters at City Hall Soon

The work of the Visiting Nurse association has grown to such a large extent in Omaha that the directory of the association has decided to have a central office, where the work may be handled. The rooms vacated by the Associated Charities in the city hall, have been secured and after October 1 calls may be made at this office. The rooms are being made ready now and it is hoped that everything will be completed by that time. The regular monthly meetings of the directory and committees will be held there instead of in the parlors of the Paxton hotel, where they have always been held.

Miss Louise McPherson, ex-president of the association, will leave this evening for the east and will visit the central office of this society in the larger cities that she may gain new ideas for the local work. It is the plan now to secure a supervisor who will be in charge of the office and who will take calls for the nurses.
