Mayor of New York is Dead

WILLIAM J. GAYNOR.

MAYOR GAYNOR DIES ON STEAMSHIP AS IT NEARS OTHER SIDE

fall sharply, politically, as soon as he returned to the city. Before his departure he issued a characteristic statement, leveled at Tammany hall leaders and other political opponents, in which he referred to them as "miserable scamps," and asserted that they were seeking his "moral assassination."

Bullet Still in Throat.
The bullet that lodged in his throat three years ago had never been removed. It was the mayor's plan to remain abroad less than a week. He expected to sail from New York for Liverpool on September 13, and to reach this city a week later.

Mayor Gaynor's sudden death completely overthrew the municipal political situation. It removed from the field a candidate for mayor, who was expected to cut heavily into the vote of the fusion nominee, John Purroy Mitchell, and leaves only the tickets nominated by the Democrats and the Fusionists. The former is headed by Edward E. McCall, former chairman of the public service commission of this district.

The mayor's renomination was brought about by no particular political faction or party, but represented only his personal popularity. Politicians who discussed his health today expected that his followers would make no attempt to nominate a candidate in his place. No other places on the Gaynor ticket have yet been filled.

Denies Report of Illness.
Before the mayor called, his secretary issued a statement denying reports of the mayor's serious illness.

The recent attack of the old throat trouble, due to the wound inflicted on August 15, 1910, by James J. Gallagher, just as the mayor was about to leave this city for a brief vacation in Europe, had entirely disappeared, according to Mr. Adamson, and Mr. Gaynor expected to return and enter the campaign with his old time vigor. The mayor, himself, just before leaving, spoke of his condition as follows:

"I have been nearly four years mayor and have not yet had any vacation. I suppose almost everybody will concede that I may have one now. I have been laid up a few days with one of the sharp attacks I occasionally have from my mishap of a few years ago, but I am now over it and hope I never shall have another."

Mayor Gaynor was placed at the head of the Independent ticket after Tammany Hall had refused him a renomination. He was to lead those who opposed the regular democratic organization and yet were unwilling to join the fusion of republicans and progressives. His standard was the shovel, reminding voters of his efforts to favor the building of the new subways. The mayor also said it was emblematic of his intention to "clean the grafters out."

The passing of Mayor Gaynor recalled the sudden death of Henry George of single tax fame, and a third party candidate, almost on the eve of a New York majority election sixteen years ago.

Kline Will Be Acting Mayor.
Secretary Adamson received the cablegram announcing the mayor's death while he was at his home in Brooklyn. Mr. Adamson notified Mrs. Gaynor at the mayor's country home at St. James and then endeavored to reach by telephone Adolph L. Kline, the acting mayor, who will be New York's chief executive until the inauguration of Mayor Gaynor's successor, to be elected in November. In this he was unsuccessful. Colonel Kline had left the home of his son-in-law, after a nearly breakfast, and at 10 o'clock had not heard of the mayor's death. At that hour the flags on the city hall were at half-staff, by Adamson's orders.

Mayor Gaynor's death recalls the attempt on his life made by an assassin at Hoboken in August of 1910. On the occasion the mayor had decided to take a brief vacation abroad under the same circumstances under which he left here a week ago. He was standing on the deck of the steamer Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse, talking with friends and the center of a group of city officials at the time.

Into this friendly gathering James J. Gallagher, the would-be assassin, made his way unobserved. When close to the mayor he drew a revolver and fired a shot. The bullet penetrated Mr. Gaynor's throat. He suffered from this serious injury for many weeks, but finally recovered to a sufficient degree to enable him to resume his duties and was apparently none the worse for his experience until recently, when the wound began to trouble him again.

Gallagher had been dismissed from the dock department of the city of New York under Mayor Gaynor, and had repeatedly endeavored to induce the mayor to reinstate him. For his crime he was sentenced to twelve years' imprisonment. After little more than a year in prison he was transferred to the New Jersey state hospital for the insane at Trenton and died there last February.

Sketch of His Active Career.

William Jay Gaynor was born on a farm near Whitesboro, N. Y., in 1831. He had to help the family there in his struggle for existence and in this fight he had to take time for his own education. He graduated from the Whitesboro seminary, went to Boston to teach school and afterwards studied law in the office of Ward Hunt, of Utica, who later became a justice of the supreme court of New York. In 1853 young Gaynor went to Brooklyn and became a newspaper reporter. Two years later he was admitted to the bar.

From that moment until his death, Gaynor has lived in the midst of continual political warfare. He started it with an attack on the unlicensed saloons in Flatbush, a section of Brooklyn, and won. Two years later he led a successful fight against the so-called McLaughlin ring in Brooklyn. His battle against John Y. McKane, boss of sheephead Bay and Coney Island attracted nation wide attention. McKane died in Sing Sing. Gaynor was elected a justice of the supreme court of New York in 1883 on a nomination given him by republican and independent democrats, was re-elected in 1887, but resigned to accept the nomination of mayor of New York City, to which office he was elected in November, 1890.

His career as mayor of New York bore the imprint of his personality in many striking innovations. As he expressed it, "I never quarreled with the organized leaders, because I was too busy. I simply went on and did my work from day to day, and kept their hands out of the public treasury."

Prior to the democratic national convention in Baltimore in June, 1912, mention of his name was frequent in connection with the democratic nomination for president. He did not have the support of the democratic organization in this, however, and was not an active candidate for the honor.

Testate from Mr. Bryan.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—"Mayor Gaynor was a strong man, with a genius for public life," said Secretary Bryan today on learning of the death. "He was strong not only in the sense that he showed ability in the discussion of public questions, but his sympathies were broad and his heart was enlarged in reform. His place will be hard to fill. I am distressed to learn of his death."

QUIT PULPIT BECAUSE OF HIGH COST OF LIVING

WAUKEGON, Ill., Sept. 11.—Seven preachers have resigned their pastorates here since May 1, giving as their reason the high cost of living. One has become a traveling salesman, another has gone to an eastern church where the salary is larger, a third has taken an executive position in the business society of his church, a fourth is an instructor in a western college, a fifth is manager of a charitable institution, another has gone into the newspaper business, and the seventh has become a real estate agent.

The pastor of the German Reformed church, who resigned last Sunday, asserting he could not live upon his stipend, announced today he was going to run a country newspaper.

BOY CRUSHED TO DEATH UNDER A TOMBSTONE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Bertam Spies, the young son of Mrs. Rhina C. Spies, met a gruesome fate today when he was fatally crushed beneath a tombstone in St. Mary's cemetery. The lad had climbed on the headstone when it toppled over. He had accompanied his mother to the burial ground to strew flowers on his uncle's grave.

Good Reason for His Enthusiasm.

When a man has suffered for several days with colic, diarrhoea or other form of bowel complaint and is then cured sound and well by one or two doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, as is often the case, it is but natural that he should be enthusiastic in his praise of the remedy, and especially in the case of a severe attack when life is threatened. Try it when in need of such a remedy. It never fails. For sale by all druggists.—Advertisement.

The board of supervisors today filed in court answer to the suit of Ralph Bolton of the Greater Des Moines committee to secure an injunction to prevent the board from continuing the arrangement with Kistler and Wright of Council Bluffs for collection of several million dollars' worth of back taxes from the Rock Island. The answer shows that a new contract was made and the old abandoned. Whether Bolton will amend his petition and try to stop the new suit proposed is not known.
