

WILL FIGHT CUT IN RATES

Railroad Traffic Men Now Considering Mode of Procedure.

OLD CASE IS NOW REVIVED

One Which Was Ordered Some Time Ago Held Up Awaiting the Decision in the Minnesota Rate Case.

Freight traffic men of the Nebraska railroads have discovered that they are up against what they consider one of the most serious problems that have ever confronted them, and consequently all of the traffic and legal heads of the roads have hurried to Chicago, where they will meet in conference with freight traffic directors to figure out a way to combat order No. 19 of the Nebraska State Railroad commission, which, if enforced, would put the Nebraska lines out of business.

In September, 1909, the Nebraska commission promulgated order No. 19, providing for a freight rate reduction of from 20 to 60 per cent on all classifications, excepting grain, lumber and coal. The date for the order to go into effect was fixed, but in the meantime the Minnesota freight rate case was started and the order was suspended pending a decision of the court.

Recently the Minnesota case was decided by the courts and adversely to the railroads. Now the Nebraska commission has notified the officers of the Nebraska roads to appear at Lincoln during the first week in October and show cause why order No. 19 should not be put in force.

That the railroads will fight order No. 19 before the Nebraska commission and all the courts is a foregone conclusion. And the meeting in Chicago is for the purpose of determining along what lines the legal battle shall be waged.

Like the Minnesota Case.

Railroad men hope to win, but among them there is a feeling that it will be one of the hardest fights ever undertaken, especially when the decision in the Minnesota case is squarely against them. There are some issues in the Nebraska case that are at variance with the issues in the Minnesota case, but in a general way, the two cases are on all fours.

As to the Nebraska grain, lumber and coal rates, the railroad traffic men say they are now so low that there is no money in hauling the commodities, and, they believe, is the reason why a still further reduction is not ordered.

The classifications that are to be affected by the order takes in merchandise of all kinds, machinery and practically everything that is hauled. The more bulky freight, now hauled at the lowest rate, is the kind that is to come in on the 20 per cent cut, while high-class freight, like merchandise in cases, takes the 60 per cent reduction.

Members of Social Service Board to See Opening Bills

A member of the social service board will attend the first performance of every show in Omaha this winter and if there is objectional lines the secretary of the board will be notified and the manager will be instructed to eliminate the offensive parts. This was agreed upon by the members of the board at a meeting at the city hall Thursday.

The members will appeal to Chief of Police Dunn to order the policemen to respect the social service badge. The members have had difficulty impressing upon coppers the fact that their stars are to be respected. It is said one member of the board was refused admittance to a circus last year and that this resulted in the request to the police chief.

New York Man Loses Shoes and Cash in Jefferson Square

W. L. Hillman, a laborer of New York City, fell asleep in Jefferson square Thursday evening and awoke about midnight to discover a stranger removing his pair of new shoes, which he had purchased that afternoon. Hillman started up with a whoop and the man fled, taking the shoes with him, and as the victim later discovered $25 in bills which he had secured from the laborer's pockets by cutting them open with a pair of shears. Besides the shoes and cash, the evil one also made way with Mr. Hillman's hat, a gold ring, a knife and a pair of cuff buttons. Mr. Hillman told the officers at the station that life in a great city has its difficulties, and expressed his intentions of returning to the peace and quietude of New York City at the earliest opportunity.

INTERESTING ARABIC TABLETS RECEIVED HERE

Henry F. Kieser, of Kieser's book store, has just received some most interesting tablets from Edgar J. Banks, who has probably made more explorations into Babylonian history than any man of the present time and who but recently returned from there, bringing with him a large number of tablets. These were found by Arabs, under his direction. They all bear inscriptions which are readable to men who understand the hieroglyphic languages. These tablets have been scattered through the United States, among about forty museums and public libraries, including the Congressional library at Washington. It is possible that some of them will be retained in the city for the Omaha Public Library and museum. They are of a peculiar construction, representing materials somewhat like modern clay. They are very light and yet the substance seems to be quite hard. The inscriptions are more like fine carving. They will be arranged so that they can be seen and read by those interested in the Kieser book store, in the Young Men's Christian association building. Many of them are 5,000 years old.

Fort School Opens on Monday With Twenty Enrolled

Twenty boys will enter the Fort school for boys Monday morning and Principal E. D. Gepon says as many more will be refused admittance because they do not need the special instruction they would receive at this school.

Major Hartman has conceded the use of the Fort Omaha gridiron and base ball diamond for the students in Fort school. The boys in this school, who do not like books, will be allowed to play and to work at the things which appeal to them.

For the benefit of boys who cannot spell and refuse to learn Superintendent E. U. Graff has installed a printing press at Fort school.

"We will not produce printers at this school," said the superintendent, "but as far as we go we will teach the boys practical composing and pressroom work. It is the best way to give them the fundamentals of the education they reject in the public schools."

Principal Gepon has letters from hundreds of parents who believe their boys ought to go to this school. As fast as he can the principal is investigating these cases.

Gepon says the case of the boy of 15 or 16 years of age who has been compelled to remain in the fourth or fifth grade appeals especially to him. Several such boys are to be taught in Fort school.

Principal Gepon believes the school will ultimately have an attendance of 200 or 400. Two hundred would enter Monday if the principal could take care of them.

George L. Hammer Back from the East; Looks Well as Ever

George L. Hammer of the Byrne & Hammer Dry Goods company, who was so seriously injured in the tornado wreckage last spring, requiring the amputation of a leg, is back in Omaha from a summer spent with Mrs. Hammer chiefly in New England. Friends who greeted him say he appears thoroughly rested, and declares he feels fine. He hopes later to be able to make use of an artificial limb. Mr. and Mrs. Hammer have taken apartments at the Clarinda on Farnam street and the boulevard, their former residence having been completely demolished by the storm.

PHILOSOPHICAL SOCIETY RESUMES MEETING SOON

Beginning with the first Sunday in October the Omaha Philosophical society will resume its weekly meetings at Labor Temple, Nineteenth and Farnam streets. Opening addresses at the assemblies will be limited to forty minutes and discussions to ten minutes, excepting in such instances when occasion seems to warrant an extension. An effort will be made to start the meetings promptly at 8 o'clock and close them at 9 o'clock. The program of speakers for the rest of the year follows:

- October 6—J. W. Woodruff, "Protection of Property."
- October 13—H. W. Morrow, "Efficiency."
- October 20—C. G. Cunningham, "The Man of Gallies."
- October 27—J. A. C. Kennedy, "The Mexican Situation."
- November 3—Dr. C. B. Atzen, "The Human Organism as an Adaptive Mechanism."
- November 10—Edwin S. Jewell, "What Attitude of Mind Produces Greatest Satisfaction?"
- November 17—Rev. W. Jasper Howell, "Thomas Paine."
- November 24—J. J. Points, "International Arbitration and Universal Peace."
- December 1—Rev. J. H. Ramsay, "Something Primary in Ethics."
- December 8—T. W. McCullough, "Function of the Newspaper."
- December 15—Frank G. Odell, "Trend of American Education."
- December 22—William F. Baxter, "Use of City Credit."
- December 29—Rev. J. A. Jenkins, "Philosophy of Rudolph Eucken."

LIBRARY DISTRIBUTING STATIONS OPEN TODAY

In accordance with a plan for distributing library delivery stations throughout the city, two of these stations will open Saturday, one at the Saratoga Drug company's, Twenty-fourth street and Ames avenue, and another at Hays restaurant, 1915 Cuming street. A small deposit of books will be made at the stations and a delivery will be made by automobile three times each week. These places have been selected because they are important transfer points of the city, and a large circulation of books is anticipated.

The delivery stations in public schools will open next week for the use of both grown people and children, this plan following the "open-school" idea recently advocated. The distributions are as follows:

- Monday, Castellar school, Eighteenth and Castellar streets, 1 until 5 p. m.
- Wednesday, Monmouth Park school, Thirty-third street and Ames avenue, 1 until 5 p. m.
- Friday, Kellom school, Twenty-third and Nicholas streets, 1 until 5 p. m.

Although these school stations serve mostly children, they are also for the use of grown people, and books may be had here on the same plan as from the main library.

H. S. REGISTER TO PRINT MORE NEWS OF THE SCHOOL

The executive committee of the High School Register, at a meeting held Thursday morning, approved the entire appointive staff of class and department editors, selected by the editor-in-chief, Edmund Booth. The staff of the paper have been busily engaged during the last week in preparation for the opening issue of the Register, which will be published the latter part of the month.

A number of innovations have been planned for the paper during the year. A standard cover design will be used throughout the entire season. An attempt will be made this year to include in the school paper more material pertaining to the course of study at the high school.

The elected staff, which consists of the editor, Edmund Booth; business manager, Arno Truesen, assistant editor, Marie Rovley, and assistant business manager, Robert Edwards, felt that in former years the material in the publication has been of a character foreign to the life of the pupils at the school, and this year will attempt to confine the write-ups almost exclusively to the various departments in the school curriculum.

To People the West is the Aim of Union Pacific, Says Mohler

President Mohler of the Union Pacific is back from Salt Lake City, where he attended a meeting of traffic officials of the Harriman lines. As to what was done, he says it was simply a sort of a family gathering for the purpose of discussing traffic problems and discussing the matter of getting more people into the central west. Said Mr. Mohler:

"The aim of the railroad is to put more people on the land, that it may haul their products to market. This may seem selfish, but we want to get the lands populated and then see the crops move, and right now we are figuring out plans to bring more settlers into the sections along our lines."

"I found the company lines in excellent condition, owing to the constant improvements which have been made and are now under way. There is nothing to say relative to future improvements, or extensions, as those are matters to be taken up later."

LABORER GOES INSANE OVER GREEK-TURKISH WAR

Peter Janikot, Greek laborer, was arrested at Thirtieth and Jackson streets by Officer Francis and booked at the station as insane. When taken into custody Janikot was climbing fire escapes in the neighborhood and then jumping to the ground, where he would throw himself against the walls of the building in a manner sufficiently violent to hurt himself. Patrol investigated and discovered that the insane man had been kept a prisoner by his friends for over a week, in the hope that he might recover. His friends say that he was laboring under hallucination that he was a Greek general and in command of forces who were storming a Turkish stronghold and that they had placed him in a room where he would hurt no one. He escaped, however, and after his arrest gave officers Murphy and Francis quite a scare when he reached for something shiny in his hip pocket. To their relief it was only a harmless glass insulator of a telephone pole.

Heating Plant at City Hall Worn Out

The heat and power plant at the city hall, after twenty-two years of service, is worn out and must be entirely rebuilt. The city commissioners are considering the advisability of installing a new plant or accepting the proposition of The Bee Publishing company, which proposes to heat and furnish power for the building for $3,200 a year. According to the statements in the comptroller's office it has been costing $4,700 per year for eight years to operate the plant. The commission may reach a decision at the meeting of the committee of the whole Monday, when the matter will be discussed.

Nebraska Farmers Holding Their Grain

Only a fair run of grain is being received at the Omaha Grain Exchange this month. With half the month gone grain men say that only a fair average month's run can be expected, according to the receipts thus far. In spite of the wonderful record run of last month. The farmers are getting a little more conservative just now about letting go of their grain in view of the possibility of even higher prices later in the winter. Besides the demand of the southern mills for wheat has not yet come this fall, but will come a little later.

GOULD LOSES OUT ON GOOD FEED OF CLAMS

William Gould of the National Live Stock Commission company of South Omaha was the butt of many a jest from his friends because of the way he lost on getting his fill of clams at the Elks' clam bake Thursday. Gould left his office at the stock yards at 4:15 and hid himself in Seymour lake club, where the bake was held last year. Finding no one there but a few waiters, he soon found his mistake, but it was then too late to get to Carter lake, several miles away, in time to get any clams.
