L. Street Citizens Unable to Get City Water.

HOUSES BURN TO THE GROUND

August Miller Sends Letter to City Council Complaining of the Situation Now Presented.

August Miller, former councilman, says that the destruction of two houses by fire a few days ago was directly due to the lack of water supply on L street. In a communication to the city council Miller says the firemen did their work well, but that the simple fact is that there was no water to put the fire out. He says that the people in that district have been fed with promises of a water supply for so long that it exceeds the memory of the oldest inhabitant.

At the late election Mayor Hooker promised the residents in the west end section of the city that he would have water supplied them. After election the people were told that City Attorney Murphy could get the water. The city attorney promptly showed the people that the legal department was doing all that it could do to assist, but that it rested with the mayor and council to get water for the city.

Mayor Hooker and a number of the city councilmen made a visit to Lord High Water Commissioner Howe, but that potentate was unable to do anything more than give an indefinite assurance of water mains to the poor people of South Omaha. So in the meantime, while the water commissioner is sending out modest testimonials to the efficiency of the municipal water district, the houses of the people on West L street in South Omaha are burning down because of lack of water. It may be, however, that August Miller has not yet received the printed assurance of the water commissioner as to the efficiency of the Omaha water district.

As a matter of fact all the city officials are powerless in the matter of installing water mains under the supreme domination of the Omaha Water board, which in South Omaha is popularly believed to be R. B. Howell.

Established Standards.

It's the simplest truth, test it out and you can't get by. The goods are there. What does it mean you if you pay 50 cents or $1.00 less and don't get the goods. You always get the goods at Flynn's, because we sell the best there is. All we ask is comparison. Compare this beautiful line of winter suits and overcoats with any other line. Take note of the prices. We carry more standard lines that are sold at established prices and close margins than any other house in Nebraska. The nameless makes are the ones that pile up the profits. A visit here will pay you and afford us a chance to explain more fully what we are doing.

Ask for Patrol Barn.

In the hope of worrying the city council into a frame of mind that will cause it to appropriate enough money for the erection of a police barn between the city hall and the police station, a number of men yesterday began a campaign. The council has just bought a new team of horses for the police patrol and also a patrol wagon. The new team was purchased for $300 and the old one sold for $250. The new wagon is to be a second-hand affair from Omaha, and is expected down here as soon as the firemen have trained the new police team. It may be that the police team will be shifted to the fire department for a fire team already trained.

The city engineer a year ago drew plans and specifications for a barn between the city hall and the police jail. The plans were shelved for lack of money. It is hoped that they will be drawn out now and that the long expected barn will be erected. The policemen say it will mean a great convenience and saving of time to have the wagon and team right next to the station. It will also save the extra cost of stabling the horses.

SEE AN IRISH LABOR PARTY

Many Believe Strike Indicates New Alignment in Erin.

BOYS AT SCHOOLS WALK OUT

Object to Using Books Supplied by Firm Which Had Locked Out Workmen of Transport Union.

DUBLIN, Sept. 18.—The strike of the transport workers here is believed by some observers to indicate the birth throes of an Irish labor party, destined to wipe out many of the traditional lines of cleavage in the political, religious and industrial life of Ireland. The historic and bitter feud between nationalist residents and the members of the royal Irish constabulary added to the ferocity of the street fighting during the riots, but the strike itself was a clear cut issue between employer and employee over the question of labor unionism.

The master mind of the street carmen's side of the controversy, James Larkin, is a picturesque character, who imbibed his union principles while working in the steel mills of the United States. The old rally cries incident to the question of home rule were forgotten when the strike broke out actually began. Nationalists, Catholics and the anti-home rule Orangemen were allied on each side.

Larkin boycotted by all the Irish press and by several of the powerful organizations which put home rule above everything else, but in spite of this opposition he has rallied about him a force which promises to develop into a political party.

The boys at the schools connected with the Catholic cathedral here struck today. The pupils objected to using books supplied by a firm which had locked out workmen belonging to the transport workers' union. An attempt at coercion was followed by an attack on the masters. Boys armed with slates fiercely assailed their teachers, two of whom had to be taken to a hospital.

Strike Still Threatened. LONDON, Sept. 18.—Despite the intervention of the lord mayor, which led the Tilling's Bus company to concede the right of men to wear union badges, a general strike of the traction employees is still imminent on the clear cut issue of recognition of the union. Explaining the failure of a conference held at the Mansion house today, Organizer Ben Smith at a mass meeting of the strikers declared tonight: "We are preparing to stop every passenger carrying vehicle in London before we will lose the fight. Tilling's will come first, then the General Omnibus company then the tubes and after that, if we are forced to it, the street cars." The strikers declared that the union must be recognized and the grievances with reference to wages and hours adjusted.
