"The Count of Luxembourg" at the Brandeis. "The Count of Luxembourg," a musical romance in two acts, by Franz Lehar; American book by Glen MacDonough, with lyrics by Adrian Ross and Basil Hood; staged by Herbert Gresham and Julian Mitchell under direction of Kiaw & Erlanger. The principals: Juliette.....Maude Gray Brieland, an artist.....Fred Walton Foyot, money lender.....Fred C. Jones Nicolai post.....Harold J. Rehill Count Rene of Luxembourg.....George Leo Moore Grand Duke Rutizov.....Frank Moulan Angole Didier.....Mildred Elaine Resistiar.....Fred C. Jones Princess Kokweeff.....Helen Gilmore Franz Lehar did not exhaust himself when he wrote "Zum Lustige Witwe"; not by a jugful. He had another waits theme in mind, and he presented it in the form of the "Luxembourg" waltz. Less serious, perhaps, if one waits to away said to be less serious than another, this later production of Lehar's has in its music something more of the true waltz quality—that which allures, caresses, but does not merely excite. It may be the conditions, for Rene and Angole are somewhat differently situated than were Danilo and Sonia, but the "Luxembourg" waltz is a more sedate and proper waits than that of "The Merry Widow," and yet its appeal is well known to those whose susceptibilities are moved by the music that stimulates a desire to sway and swing and turn in the dreamy measure of 3-4 time. Aside from the mere waltz, Lehar has produced in "The Count of Luxembourg" music far and away superior to that of the better known of his compositions. It is of excellent tuneful quality, and will be greatly enjoyed during the week by those who attend on its performance at the Brandeis. Messrs. Kiaw & Erlanger have added to the local orchestra such number of musicians as fairly crowd the orchestra pit, and the score is splendidly played.

which the play they are presenting at the American this week, forces upon them. "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," delighted Omaha's best judges of plays and players when seen at the Brandeis theater nearly two years ago. The Chester and Cohen combination is a sensation in itself, and the stars that toured the country with it then were wonderfully effective. Therefore much credit is due a stock company whose reproduction of such a play as this brings almost as complete satisfaction as that of the original company. J. Rufus Wallingford, as created by Randolph Chester, is too deep a character for an actor, who handles a new part each week, to master in the time allowed. However, Robert Wayne came as near doing it as seems possible. Without equivocation, his work is great, and while there are a few places wherein he was excelled by the fellow who devoted a season or more to the part, he no doubt will improve them as the week progresses. Miss Lang's versatility stretched very comfortably to cover the requirement of the astute stenographer role which she plays and her popularity didn't appear to suffer one bit though the heavy work of the piece rests on male shoulders. In fact the bouquet of exquisite carnations which was brought to the stage at the close of the second act was for her. Frank Denthorpe did exceedingly well with the role of Blackie Daw, and the rest of the parts were all handled ably. The play is very well staged.

Vaudeville at the Orpheum. Irene Franklin with Burt Green shine on the bill at the Orpheum this week, so brilliantly, that they were obliged to give many encores. In the song "Expression," Miss Franklin showed rare skill in both facial contortion and voice coloring. She is equally able in "Waiting for Hubby," "The Chorus Lady's Debut," "The Girl from Childa," "Farewell Broadway," "While in the Romance of the Chamber Maid," she adds an extra flavor that brings down the audience. Burt Green pleasantly plays a selection from "The Count of Luxembourg." The music itself is not only satisfying and entertaining, but Mr. Green's interpretation is excellent. The three Dolce Sisters sing a number of dainty songs, time-honored melodies, but none the less popular. Devine and Williams in the "Traveling Salesman and the Female Drummer," have a repartee that is witty and quite new. The feminine half of the bill is blessed with avoidupolis, looks the part of a woman salesman and can dance some, all things considered. Miss Connelly & Co. gave a comedy of modern life, where there are two men in a house and they need a woman to complete the circle. A girl is found, but in pleading for his son, the father gets tangled up and much verbal twisting is necessary to straighten him out. As aerial acrobats, the Cromwells know no fear. Their work is pleasing and high toned. Lew Hawkins sings lively parodies on "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" and "That's How I Need You," and tells of all the faith, hope and charity of a kiss. "Ted" Bailey company has some extraordinary dogs which pose like statues. The usual Pathe Weekly pictures close the program.

BEATEN UNCONSCIOUS AND HIS NOSE NEARLY CUT OFF HOUGHTON, Mich., Sept. 29.—Samuel Casson a former saloon keeper, was found in an alley way tonight beaten into unconsciousness and with his nose cut nearly off. He will be disfigured for life if he recovers. He formerly had acted as a deputy sheriff and it is thought the assault was due to strikers in the copper mine strike zone.

"Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" at the American. Eva Lang and her company stood up very well under the test of comparison.

Stomach Sour? Feel Costive, Bilious? Take Cascarets Tonight—Dime a Box

That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, feeling of fullness, distention and sick headache, means your stomach is sour—your liver is torpid—your bowels constipated. It isn't your stomach's fault—it isn't indigestion—it's biliousness and constipation. Try Cascarets; they sweeten the stomach, remove the sour, fermenting food and foul gases; take bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter from the bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended. A Cascaret tonight straightens you out by morning.

WESLEY MAY HAVE RECORD

Police Are Now Following Clues to His Identity.

DISGUISED SELF WITH CARE

Thought He Might Be Wanted in Several Other Places Where Similar Crimes Were Enacted and Several Killed.

New clues discovered by police detectives who are delving into the past record of Louis Wesley, the negro desperado slain early Sunday morning by Officer Arthur Cunningham, may prove the man to be the negro for whom police of a dozen large cities have been looking. The first clue in the discovery that Wesley came here from Grand Rapids, Mich., recently and that a crime carnival which had kept that town under a reign of terror for weeks suddenly ended with his disappearance. A month ago, in Grand Rapids, masked highwaymen entered a jewelry store and ordered three clerks to throw up their hands. Two reached for revolvers instead of complying and were shot dead instantly. Post-mortem examinations proved that the wounds were made by steel capped bullets fired from .46-caliber automatic pistols. The third clerk was so badly wounded that he died a week ago. The highwaymen escaped and as far as is known are still at large. Whether Wesley was a member of the Grand Rapids gang or not is a point which the local police home to have settled soon. He lived in Omaha four years ago and has not been seen here until a month ago.

Peculiar Disguise Wesley, when trapped in the ice box in Maurer's cellar, was garbed in a most peculiar disguise. His shoes were covered by heavy cotton socks. His head and shoulders were concealed by a long, black "nightgown" coat, under which was a white mask, which made him appear to be a white man masquerading as a negro. His hands were covered by black gloves, but the wrist bands were of flesh colored material, which at a hasty glance gave the appearance of Caucasian skin.

The negro's carefulness in attempting to cover his tracks has convinced the police that he is experienced in leading a dual existence—playing the role of waiter by day and that of burglar, bandit and highway robber by night. To the police his gloves carry a double meaning. It is apparent, the police say, that he not only wished to give the impression that he was a white man and thus throw off pursuit, but was exceedingly desirous of not leaving tell-tale finger prints behind him, where detectives skilled in the Bertillon identification system could arrive at a true identification. To test this latter belief, the dead man's hands will be covered with ink today at the coroner's morgue and then pressed on white paper, so that the skin formations of his hands may be compared with those of negro criminals who are wanted by the authorities in various cities. As no two prints compare, the police think that with a persistence, the negro identified as Louis Wesley may prove a criminal of more than local note.

Condition of Pope is Causing Anxiety

ROME, Sept. 29.—The condition of Pope Pius X is giving rise to some anxiety. Although not suffering from any specific malady, the state of his health is unsatisfactory. It is believed, however, that rest and care will restore him. Audiences have not been suspended officially, but the attending physicians have agreed to discourage receptions of any kind until the pontiff has recovered his strength.

In view of his present weakness it is not considered probable that the pope will preside, as originally arranged, at the great function at the closing of the Constantinian jubilee on December 8, the feast of the immaculate conception. LONDON, Sept. 29.—The pope has granted no audiences for three days, according to a dispatch received here. On Saturday he kept to his bed throughout the day. He is suffering from great weakness.

Electrical Cooker Proves Economical Saving in the End

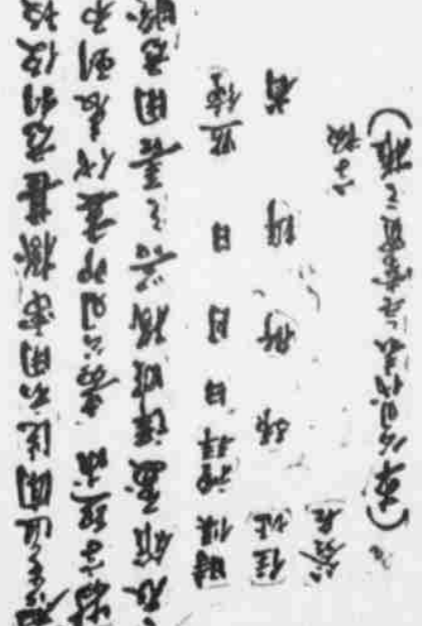

According to a recent test which was made with a gas range and this fireless cooker, it required 1 cent more to cook a five-pound roast of beef in the cooker than it would in a gas oven, but the elimination of shrinkage occasioned by the use of the electric cooker more than offset the extra cost of energy. The results of this test are shown in the following table: Cost of five-pound beef roasted in electric fireless cooker: First cost of cut, at 20c per lb.....$1.00 Shrinkage in weight, ounces......2 Cost of energy, at 10c kw-hr......20 Cost of five-pound beef roasted in a gas oven: First cost of cut, at 20c per lb.....$1.00 Shrinkage in weight, ounces......22 Cost of gas at $1 per 1,000 cu. ft......46

Stand Converts This Iron Into an Electrical Stove

Here is one way of converting an electric iron into a stove. A stand for this purpose may be had in almost any shop and where there is

During three days of this week, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, there will be a demonstration at the Wolfe Electric Shop, 1810 Farnam, of the famous Berkley electric cooker, which is said to be the most complete cooker on the market. Meals will be cooked upon the electric stove and then served to those in attendance who wish to partake.

PRISON COMMISSIONER WILL SERVE SHORT TERM AUBURN, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Thomas Mott Osborne, chairman of the commission on prison reform, entered Auburn prison today to serve a short term, self-imposed, for the purpose of studying the effect of the present prison system on the mental and physical condition of a man. He was assigned to the "idle gang," has a cell in the south wing and will live the life of a convict while in prison. His mustache was shaved off, but his hair, cropped closely normally, was untouched. He wears a convict's uniform.

Negroes Will Fight "Grandfather's" Laws

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—A bitter fight against alleged race discrimination in various sections of the country is to be made shortly on behalf of negroes before the supreme court. The Oklahoma and the Maryland "grandfather's" constitutional amendments, by which thousands of negroes have been disfranchised will be attacked as unconstitutional. An effort will be made to have the Oklahoma "Jim Crow" legislation annulled. An attempt will be made by Tennessee negro organizations to be permitted to use the name of "Knights of Pythias" for negro lodges, as well as white lodges.

Famous "Wild" Gas Well is Conquered

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 29.—The famous "wild" gas well in the Caddo oil field of Louisiana, which for six years has caused a daily waste of from 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 cubic feet of gas, was conquered today, according to reports received here. Some weeks ago another well was driven 150 feet from the "wild" well. Air was forced into this well with powerful pumps. It opened a fissure in the earth formation and it was discovered that air was being forced up into the "wild well." Then mud was forced into the new well. It followed the air and finally the pressure of gas in the "wild well" decreased.

BLOODY JACKET MAY TELL WHO MURDERED LITTLE BOY

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—A strong web of circumstantial evidence was woven today around Joseph O'Brien arrested as a suspect in the murder of 7-year-old Israel Goldman, according to the police. The boy's nude body was found yesterday on the links of the White Marsh Country club. In O'Brien's room, a few doors from the home of the murdered boy, detectives found a blood-stained knit jacket with the inside pockets torn away. The knit pockets found near the body, according to the police, are of similar texture to this jacket. Several boys living in the neighborhood told detectives that they had seen O'Brien on places on which they had been taken to O'Brien. He seemed unusually fond of children, they said and frequently purchased them ice cream soda and other delicacies.

TYPHOID CLAIMS YOUTH WALKING ACROSS COUNTRY

OGDEN, Utah, Sept. 29.—Taken sick while walking from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, Eric Nelson, 19 years old, of Southampton, L. I., was unable to overcome an attack of typhoid fever because of his weakened condition from the long journey and died this morning at a hospital here.
