Big Trees Being Cut Down.—The big cottonwood trees on the lot at the southeast corner of Twentieth and Douglas are being cut down, proving to be a big job for the workmen. It is understood that the property will be improved not later than this spring.

Dewey Hotel Barely Paid.—That the Dewey hotel for a considerable period before it was destroyed by fire last spring was scarcely paying expenses, was information given to the district court in papers filed in connection with the winding up of the receivership of Mrs. Agnes Wilkins. Judge English signed an order discharging her.

Make Money on Stand.—The spectators' stand, erected for the parade in front of the city hall and court house, are being already pulled down. This elevator conductors and janitors who erected the city hall stand on their own resources in the absence of an appropriation by the council, say the sale of tickets has given them their money back, and about $25 surplus.

McKenzie Visits Old Friends.—Charles McKenzie, for many years a resident of Nebraska and in business at Pender, but now a member of the city council of Los Angeles, Cal., is in the city, enroute to Boston, where he will attend the meeting of bankers. During his stay in the city Mr. McKenzie called on his numerous friends and boosted for California, where he says most of the Nebraskans are prospecting.

Philosophical Society Will Open.—The Omaha Philosophical society opens its fall term on Sunday, October 5, at 3 o'clock, in the Labor temple, Nineteenth and Farnam streets, third floor. The speaker of the day is J. W. Woodruff, well known Omaha lawyer and one of the instructors in the Creighton Law school. His subject is "Protection or Free Trade," a subject of greater economic importance than any other now before the American people.

Mrs. Walter I. Smith to Lecture.—"Responsibility" will be the subject of a lecture by Mrs. Walter I. Smith of Council Bluffs, before the Theosophical society, room 20, Baldrige-Wead building, Twentieth and Farnam streets, on Sunday evening. That man is responsible to a greater extent than he perhaps realizes for existing conditions, even though he denies that responsibility, and can remedy by his thoughts and actions many of the so-called misfortunes usually laid to other causes will be discussed from the Theosophical standpoint. The lecture is open to the public and is free.

Deutsches Haus Welcomes Merry Making Visitors

The German Home, 466 South Thirtieth street, was the scene of an avalanche of jovial Germans Thursday evening, who congregated at the Deutsches Haus to make merry after what was considered by many the biggest and best parade of the Ak-Sar-Ben pageants.

A program of entertainment had been prepared for the guests, but owing to the tremendous and unexpected crowd, this was abandoned and the evening was spent in dancing and an all-around good time. The festivities kept up unabated until well after midnight and songs both German and American made the walls of the structure shiver with the strength of their singing. It was the largest crowd by far that has ever gathered at the home, and all who enjoyed the hospitality of the house, which was tendered in the wholesome German manner, left the building loud in praises of the hosts.

Mrs. Joseph H. Cooper, 65 years old, was found dead and her husband, 70 years old, was found lying in their home at Mount Vernon, Ark., yesterday by a neighbor who went to investigate when the couple had not been seen for several days. Physicians say the aged couple starved to death.

It took most of the officials and pages an hour yesterday to "shoot" out of the solemn chamber of the house of representatives a young whippoorwill which got in past the doorkeepers and could not find its way out. After many expedients had been tried a page opened a skylight and the bird flew out.

TOO MANY CHILDREN

are pale and frail—backward in studies—with pinched faces and poor blood—their minds and bodies are actually starved because their regular food does not nourish.

Such children need Scott's Emulsion above everything else; it contains nature's rarest life-giving fats; it is essentially food value—blood-food and bone-food, free from wine, alcohol or harmful drug.

Scott's Emulsion often builds many times its weight in solid flesh—its medicinal, tonic and nutritive properties make all good food do good. IT IS NOT A PROP, BUT A FOUNDATION FOR STURDY GROWTH. Every Druggist Has It. Avoid Substitutes.

AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

New Manual Training Department Soon Under Way.

STEPPING STONE TO TRADES

Hog Speculators See Signs of Higher Prices on Record for Porkers Before the Winter is Over.

Within a week it is expected that the new manual training department of the South Omaha High school will be in full operation at the new quarters, Twenty-fourth and J streets. The new department is a late departure in the local high school and is being introduced under the combined approval of the school board and Superintendent N. M. Graham. During several recent trips to the east Superintendent Graham made investigations of manual training where it has been adopted. At the closing exercises a year ago he publicly insisted upon a need of such a department in the South Omaha high school.

President E. R. Leigh and the members of the board after carefully studying the situation decided to spend several thousand dollars on the new department. It is especially designed to assist those high school students who have not the aptitude to continue their academic studies at the university or who intend to pursue some trade as a means of livelihood.

For the present the students will be given the rudimentary work in wood-craft and machine work. Later, however, it is hoped that the idea will blossom into a trade school where the young high school graduate may fit himself for a means of livelihood while at the same time developing his mind in the academic branches. Heretofore many of the South Omaha High school boys have gone into laboring work or into a poorly paid clerkship because they were unable to attend the university or because they could not afford the extra time needed to learn a trade. It is hoped that the trade school will allow the student to complete the regular school work and enough of the trade apprenticeship to enable him to need but a short time under a journeyman after he quits or graduates from school.

Expect High Hog Prices.—Hog speculators and commission men at the Union Stock Yards noted with interest yesterday the beginning of an advance in the price of hogs which is privately said may eventuate in record pork prices this year. The market yesterday opened with a promise that faltered when it appeared that the big buyers were going to buy at their own prices or not at all.

Shipments of hogs are coming in with a liberality that is in line with the season. Men handling the receipts, however, say that the market in hogs this year is going to be quiet. Various reasons for the expected fancy prices are assigned, but it was said confidently by heavy buyers that the prices of hogs this year would touch a record never before attained.

Lavelle in Howard's Place.—As has been expected for some time, Pat Lavelle, democratic councilman from the Fifth ward, has been appointed to the place of Jerry Howard. The letter of appointment was received by Lavelle some days ago. Under pressure Howard resigned some time ago, the resignation to take effect October 1.

Lavelle, until recently, worked for the Union Stock Yards.

Plan Elevation of Belt Line Tracks

According to a statement by General Superintendent A. DeBernard of the Missouri Pacific railroad elevation of the Belt Line tracks, north from Farnam street to Walnut Hill, is to be accomplished in the near future. He promised that work would be begun within the next year. Enlargement of the Leavenworth street yards and those between Nicholas and Locust streets is another achievement which Mr. DeBernard expects will be accomplished at about the same time.

HIS GREAT IDEA SQUELCHED

Gentlemanly Salesman, Muffed at the Start, Gets His Revenge

The tall, slender man in the faded suit of black had gained admission to the private office of the financial magnate.

"I shall occupy your time only a few moments, Mr. Muntoburn," he said. "My object in coming to you is to enlist your interest in my recent invention, which is destined, I am confident, to revolutionize."

"Say, Mr.—" "Glaspy, sir; my name is Glaspy, I am the inventor of Glaspy's Automatic Footpad Discourager, Glaspy's Infallible Burglar Alarm, and—"

"I don't care what you're the inventor of, I haven't any time to—"

"As I said a moment ago, Mr. Muntoburn, I shall be very brief. To come to the point at once, you own a fine automobile, doubtless half a dozen or more. You need not tell me how, when your motor car is standing at the end of the sidewalk, every passing boy squeezes the bulb of your squawker. My invention will stop that sort of thing absolutely. It is a combination of the phonograph and the ordinary horn. By a turn of the wrist you can make it sound a fierce, raucous alarm, followed by words such as these: 'Out of my way, you turtlehead!'"

ICE WATER FROM THE DEPTHS

Spokane's New Hotel So Equipped as to Dispense with the Ice Man.

Twenty-five thousand dollars for ice water is an item in the cost of a $1,200,000 hotel being erected by a group of Spokane capitalists, headed by L. M. Davenport, whose name the hotel will take. This amount is being expended in drilling a well, already 225 feet down, and installing the system of pipes to carry the water to all of the twelve floors and to more than 400 different rooms. Thus will the craft of man supplement the underground river flowing far beneath the city in eliminating need for many ice-water trips by bell-boys, together with the tips which custom demands.

To force the water to the top of the big hotel a twenty-five-horsepower pump of 150 gallons a minute capacity will be installed in the sub-basement. The water will be first pumped into a tank cooled by ammonia coils to a temperature of 40 degrees. The distributing pipes will be insulated to keep the water at an even temperature throughout its journey. Every four minutes the entire supply in the tank will be emptied, thus putting ice water close to every faucet in the structure at every moment of the day.

At a depth of 220 feet below the sub-basement the big 2,500-pound drill encountered a good supply of water, but drilling is being continued to tap beyond doubt the underground stream which filters through the rock and gravel underneath the city, and which is tapped a few miles up the valley to supply pure water for the residents of Spokane.

Between 25,000 and 30,000 feet of pipe will distribute the water from basement to roof. Cork casing is being used to insulate the pipe. Mr. Davenport says that the system has been planned with such precision that it will not be necessary to let the water run before getting it at a temperature of 40 degrees.—Spokane Review.

MANN URGES ORGANIZATION

London Labor Orator Gives Address at Washington Hall.

GET INSIDE UNIONS, HE SAYS

Nothing Lasting Will Be Accomplished by Workers Against Capital Unless Under One Banner for All.

Tom Mann of London delivered an address to a large audience last night in Washington hall on "Industrial Solidarity." He pleaded for the combined organization of all unions and told of the results in the past in failure to organize and told of the results gained by organization. One instance that he cited was what he termed the "war of the folded arms" on the part of the sailors and all men who work on board ship which occurred two years ago.

"Time was when there was opportunity for the working classes. Time was when the workmen were told they might graze their cattle on the public lands in England. But it would be folly to tell them that now, for the workmen have no cattle and there is no more public land in England. That was 600 years ago, when workmen organized in guilds. Then there was a perfect harmony between employer and employe. The men went about with their work with no bitter hatred in their hearts for the moneyed class. Why? Because the workmen decided under what conditions and scale of wages they would work. It was then that the great cathedrals and public buildings were erected, such as pose today as the acme of architecture. They attempt at times in the present day to duplicate those remarkable works of architecture, but the result is a poor copy. The men feel oppressed, and when men feel oppressed they cannot do good work.

"We will come to those conditions again that we observe in the middle ages. But we will have to organize. We cannot reach that condition through an appeal to the capitalistic class. We will not appeal to the governments, to the judiciary or to the churches. There is no assistance there. The only solution is within ourselves. If we cannot save ourselves we are lost."

MERE MAN CAN NEVER KNOW

Girls Need Pockets, but Where on Earth Are They Going to Put Them?

Our reverence for Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch, who writes to the newspapers, is so profound that we have never doubted the ultimate success of that surprising woman in her search for the causes of feminine subjugation. We have sometimes felt it necessary to conceal our veneration, but it has been there all the same, and now at last comes its justification.

Mrs. Blatch has just returned from a suffrage tour, and she says that henceforth every woman must have a pocket, but I don't believe there ever was a skirt made that didn't have a place for a pocket somewhere.

Now—here Mrs. Blatch spoke without that mature deliberation that we usually associate with her utterances. She should always count on as a remedy for a tendency to emptiness in speech. When the detective in the novels is trying to find the secret chamber he always takes the outside measurements of the house and then proceeds to account for the space by measuring the rooms, halls and stairways. We are not able practically to apply the same rule in the search for the woman's pocket, or rather for the space where it might be placed. Heaven forbid that we should try. We are of the male sex and therefore baneful, modest and retiring, but we have our eyesight and we think our little thoughts. We cannot for the life of us imagine where such a pocket could be put and we would like Mrs. Blatch to tell us. Nor are we wholly the victims of ignorance, of the feminine anatomy. Only last week we saw a woman in a diaphanous skirt. We were behind her, and the glorious orb of day was just ahead of her. She was a most transparent and confiding disposition, and although we hurried rapidly down a side street to hide our mantling blushes we saw enough to convince us that there was no room for a pocket in that skirt. There was no room for a one-cent stamp. There was barely room for the lady herself. In a moment of vertigo we caught ourselves wondering how she ever got into it or how she would ever get out of it. But these are things that we are never likely to know.—San Francisco Argonaut.
