General Henderson describes with much interesting detail his really serious disagreements with General Grant and Mr. Summer on the question of impeachment. These disagreements caused a break of or to learn his fate proved futile. Six friendship, but in each case it was healed by time. Of his relations with Mr. Sumner General Henderson says:

"The coldness between us lasted for several years. In fact, it was not until the controversy over the treaty for annexing Santo Domingo arose that I had any further relations with him. At that time I been demanded by mail. The Ross family had sone to Washington to argue a case collected the money and were about to before the supreme court and Mr. Sumpay it when they were deterred by the ner asked me to dinner.
