EASTERN BUYERS TAKE THEM York and Chicago Dealers Get the Cream of the Crop and Nebraskans Have to Buy

Elsewhere. (From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 13,-(Special.)-What is the reason that Nebraska people cannot buy the high grade apples grown in Nebraska, but have to take those from the northwest, or from Iowa or eastern states?" was asked Secretary Marshall of the State Horticultural

"That is a very easy question to answer," said the secretary. "Eastern buyers, especially from Chicago and New York, come to Nebraska early in the fall and buy up the best orchards they can get hold of. As a result of this, the cream of the apple crop is shipped to the east, and people-in Nebraska have to be content with what is left. Right now in Chicago, in cold storage, is held an enormous amount of Nebraska apples, which eastern people will enjoy buy apples from other states.
