Line with Results that They Have Hoped For. OMAHA. January 18, 1913. There is an enormous shortage in the July wheat future at Chicago. It is be-lieved by well-posted men in the trade that the longs in May wheat have taken the opposite end of July. In case the May

Lived by well-posted men in the trade hat the longs in May wheat have taken the opposite end of July. In case the May wheat is boosted to higher levels the July output is more than likely to ympathize. With a crop scare and the cover, there will be enough investment it in the May measy and inclined to over, there will be enough investment it char future. Those who are now carry-ing the May in Chicago, and who have be July sold, have domites taken their position with the intention of delivering wheat taken during May on July con-tracts. The wheat market has for some little time been tied up rather tightly and the May future. Recent price changes, as well as recent changes in sentiment, have been brought about by the forced swinging of the speculative pendulum, with the May bulls at the lower. The time is rapidly approaching when the into is rapidly approaching when the post of the speculative pendulum, with the May bulls at the lower. The ince is rapidly approaching when the prop promise will become more and more uncertain. The corn buils were somewhat disap-pointed because of a change in the cash situation as exporters reported bids out of line and the offerings on the increase. Growers in the interior were freer sellers of cash corn and with the car situation easier the movement to primary markets will doubtless be much larger. Caah corn, %@lc lower.
