

Brandeis Stores

To the thousands of visitors to the Omaha Automobile Show this week and to the thousands of people in this vicinity who naturally regard Brandeis Stores as the foremost western style authority, we present this attractive advance array in

Women's Spring Attire

This advance showing, like this store itself—is larger and more complete than any other in this western country—no matter how large may be the community it serves. The combined efforts of our own army of buyers, our New York representatives and our own active Paris office, makes it possible to show the authentic new models in millinery and outer apparel just as soon as shown in New York's most fashionable shops.

Every Model is Authentic—Every Quality Dependable

The advantage in trusting the judgment of a house so closely in touch with Paris and New York designers is appreciated by discriminating women of Omaha and vicinity.

There is a Certain Metropolitan Air About Brandeis Apparel That You Seek For in Vain in Less Worthy Models

We have avoided the styles that are too extreme and brought on only models of refinement.

TROOPS ARE READY TO MOVE

General Smith Receives Orders to Leave for Mexican Border.

MAY LEAVE SUNDAY NIGHT

Supplies Are Being Made Ready and Cars Are Held on the Tracks Preparatory to Entering for South.

The troops at Fort Crook are practically ready to start for Galveston, in accordance with an order received from the War Department, but will be delayed on account of the want of cars. About thirty-three cars will be required to entrain the troops and equipment from Fort Crook

Practically all the freight cars necessary are now available, but no tourist cars can be had at present. It was said at army headquarters that the troops would probably not be able to leave Fort Crook before Monday or Tuesday. The troops at Fort Leavenworth, it was said, would probably get out sooner.

General Frederick A. Smith, Major F. D. Evans, Lieutenant Bruce Magurder and Clerk John Hitch are those of the army headquarters building here who will go. They are at present planning on leaving Omaha Sunday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock. All were busy packing in the army building.

The order was not received at headquarters until nearly 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, although the Associated Press dispatches flashed the order a few hours before. The officers proceeded to prepare their baggage on the strength of the press dispatch before they got the formal order. The order simply read, "Proceed to Galveston at once. All posts in the brigade have been notified."

Consists of Four Regiments.

The Fifth brigade, commanded by General Smith, consists of four regiments, the Fourth from Fort Crook, Eleventh from Leavenworth, the Twenty-eighth from Fort Snelling, and the Nineteenth, which it at present divided between Fort Meade, Leavenworth and St. Louis. Besides the four regiments, one-half the third artillery, stationed at Fort Snelling, is to accompany the brigade.

General Smith is familiar with Mexico and the southwest of the United States. He has done military duty in Arizona and the southwest in the past, and has traveled extensively in Mexico. He is familiar with every export on the west coast of Mexico.

Wyoming Lad Tries to Emulate Example of Geo. Washington

If it were not for the memory of George Washington and his hatchet, the state of Wyoming would have more fruit trees than it has this morning. As it is, Wyoming has three trees shy. Not all cherry trees, however, for little Guernsey Anderson is no expert on judging trees, especially in the winter when they are not bearing fruit as he "missed fire" and cut down a plum and an apple tree, as well as a cherry. In fruit telling, however, he held Father George level and almost went him one better.

Little Guernsey is a son of Guernsey W. Anderson of Rock Springs, Wyo. Guernsey W. is a son of Colonel William Anderson, clerk at the Hotel Home, Omaha. A telegram to granddaddy told of the Washingtonian mischief. The Washingtonian sentiment grew so thick and the sentiment so strong in little Guernsey's environment, where all the children are practicing for Washington entertainments, that the little fellow quietly got out his hatchet and went into the back yard. He did not wait for Papa "Washington" to learn of the damage, however, but toddled back into the house beaming with joy.

"Papa, will I be a president and a big general now?" he asked.

"Why, my son?" asked the parent.

"Well, I cut the trees down."

A search revealed the three slain trees set out last spring.

THIEF IS FRIGHTENED AWAY FROM PLUNDER

Early yesterday a negro broke into the David Alcorn residence, 1732 Leavenworth street, but was frightened away by Mrs. Alcorn while he was examining some valuable pieces of silverware.

The thief pried open a rear window. The noise awakened Mrs. Alcorn. Hearing someone moving around in the dining room she crept into the room and discovered the negro in the act of removing the silverware from a sideboard.

Her scream frightened the burglar, who ran from the house, leaving all his plunder behind. She furnished the police with a good description of the negro.

Arthur Johnson, colored, was arrested by Detective Rich. He is being held for investigation and is thought to be the same man who entered the Alcorn home.
