FOR CHARTER CONVENTION

Interest in Election to Choose the Members is Picking Up.

NEXT TUESDAY IS THE DAY

So Far It is a Go-as-You-Please Between Thirty Primary Nominations for Fifteen Places to Be Filled.

Interest is picking up in the coming charter convention election scheduled for next Tuesday. At the primary at which the candidates were selected less than 4,500 votes were cast altogether, distributed among forty-two entries, but the wise ones figure that this will be considerably increased for the final heat, and possibly doubled.

This time each voter will again mark his ballot for fifteen, but will have only thirty to choose from, and the fifteen highest will get certificates of election.

The official canvass of the primary returns showed that Victor Rosewater, editor of The Bee, was high man with 248 votes and Dr. Holovitchner second with 246 votes. Mr. Rosewater had more than twice the average vote, and nearly four times the vote of the low man, while the thirtieth in the list had just 15 votes more than his closest defeated competitor.

Of the candidates now running five are socialists running in a group and the only ones making an active campaign. For the primary the socialist slate contained ten names of which half fell by the wayside. The socialists have about 5,000 votes of their own which they refuse to give to any one not belonging to their organization and are scoring for a record.

Heafey Has Howell's Proxy.

Prior to the primary the Commercial club procured the filing of several candidates and gave them its endorsement, and so did the Real Estate exchange, but they were not all successful in getting under the wire. It is understood that neither of these organizations will exert itself further except by individual preference of members in the next round.

The Retailers' association, on the other hand, is represented in the list by its secretary, James W. Metcalfe, and has an active campaign committee at work to promote his interests.

For the Water board R. B. Howell filed P. C. Heafey, one of the board members as their particular champion, and the vote for Heafey is expected to represent the strength of Howell the same as if Howell were running himself instead of by proxy. Organized labor is also represented by C. L. Shamp and L. V. Guey, who have been active in the Central Labor union and have its endorsement, but are not allied with the socialists.

A lot of "singles," of all kinds and combinations, were out in the primary, and it is presumed more of them will be in evidence for the election, but so far it has been every man for himself with the exception of the socialists, as above noted.

HARVESTER CASE CONTINUES

Hearing is Still Going On in Federal Court in Omaha.

METHODS ARE BEING SHOWN UP

Dealers Testify as to the Methods Employed in Getting Dealers to Handle International Goods.

Theodore C. Coffey, an implement dealer at Greenfield, Ia., testifying in the suit brought by the United States versus the International Harvester company, said that in 1902 he was approached by a representative of the harvester company and asked to sell the International company's binder exclusively or not at all. Coffey said he told the representative to get out and instead of handling the McCormick binder handled the Acme for two years.

In 1904 Coffey said he sold the Keystone. In 1905 he gave the Keystone up and agreed to sell the McCormick and Deering binders, and signed the contract, which, at that time did not contain the exclusive clause. He now operates eleven stores in various Iowa towns and handles the International in addition to competing makes. He stated that he sold more McCormick and Deering binders than any of the others.

W. N. Coates of Stuart, Neb., said he operated in conjunction with an implement store, an undertaking establishment, sold furniture and ran a country newspaper.

In enumerating the lines of business he was in Coates did not mention the newspaper. In cross-examination the fact was brought out that he did own a newspaper and when asked why he did not name it among his other businesses, he said, "Oh, I don't count that, because it just breaks even."

In cross-examination he also admitted he carried advertising for the International company and re-direct he also carried advertising from the John Deere company.

F. D. Stearns of Logan, Ia., said there were two implement dealers in his town, his competitor, handling the Deering harvester line, and himself the McCormick. In cross-examination he admitted that 95 per cent of the binders sold in his territory were products of the International company, and that 65 per cent of the mowers were made by the same company.

H. J. Lowe of Mullen, Neb., said that 100 per cent of the harvesting machinery sold in his territory was that of the International company.

A. A. Gaines of Newport, Neb., and H. O. Anderson of Sturris, S. D., gave the same testimony as did the other witnesses.

BURLGLARS DO BAD JOB AT CRACKING A SAFE

Whether It was safe crackers or blacksmiths that forced entrance into the Harmon-Weath office at Sixteenth and Charles streets, Thursday night, Detectives Ring and Van Deusen are unable to say at this time, but which ever it was, the officers are certain that they were not topnotchers in their line of business.

A watchman hearing a noise of hammering called the Dodge street police station and the officers responded. They found a heavy sledge hammer, a blacksmith's rasp, a long-handled sledge and a huge punch lying before the safe. The combination, the knob and hinges were battered off and even the corners showed signs of being hit by the amateur thieves.

Nothing else was disturbed, but it will take dynamite or some other high power explosive to open the safe because of the bungling work. It contains only office records which are of no particular value.

WOMAN'S FEDERATED CLUB HERE FOR HOUSEHOLD SHOW

Probably the most important movement made the last ten days in behalf of the Omaha Household show by Mrs. Charles W. Hayes was the enlistment of the co-operation for this great enterprise of the second district Nebraska Federation of Women's Clubs. In deciding to hold their annual second district meeting some time during the Omaha Household show, which is to be held at the Auditorium from May 3 to 10.

Another arrangement, also decided upon, was to have a program of the convention rendered on one afternoon at the Auditorium during the session of the Omaha Household show. Mrs. C. W. Hayes, president of the household show, attended several meetings this week and brought forward the proposed subjects and the distinctive woman's work that will be undertaken and successfully carried out through the Omaha Household show.

The car shortage has eased up to some extent, and while there is no large supply of cars on hand, the roads are finding enough to handle the business and meet the demands made.

Burlington Will Move Offices from Lincoln to Omaha

From Lincoln comes the report that Omaha is to have partial compensation for the loss of the Burlington auditing department by the eventual removal here of certain Burlington offices now maintained at Lincoln. According to this information, Omaha is eventually to get the headquarters of the district superintendent, the engineering work and the real estate department, although perhaps not all of them at once. This is said to be in line with the general movement of concentration, of which the transfer of offices from Omaha to Chicago is a part, and the first addition to the local Omaha headquarters will be in force after the legislature adjourns.

WIFE-SEEKING RANCHMAN FLOODED WITH LETTERS

Some time ago Rev. Charles W. Savidge was visited by William Rasmussen of Burke, S. D., who said he was very much in need of a helpmate. Rev. Savidge at once started the ball a rolling and things are now coming Rasmussen's way, for the postmaster of Burke has written that he is being flooded with letters for Rasmussen.

The postmaster's name is A. M. Church and while he blames Rev. Savidge for the extra work that has been heaped upon him in his official capacities, he says he is performing it cheerfully and that he would do anything in the world to spread the "zeitgeist" of capnular felicity.

DEWEY HOTEL FIREMAN FAILS TO GET LICENSE

Shirley Smith, who was fireman at the Dewey hotel at the time of the fire, failed to qualify for such position when he came up before the board of engineers on an application for a license to run the furnaces of hotels. The board, consisting of Henry Schroeder, James Anderson and City Boiler Inspector R. U. Wolfe, met at the city hall last night to hear three applicants.

"Smith would be able to care for a second rate furnaces in a small hotel or lodging house, but he is not capable of handling a first class furnace," said Wolfe. "We permitted him to work at the Dewey because they had the kind of a furnace he could handle."
