50,823
State of Nebraska, County of Douglas:
Dwight Williams, circulation manager of The Bee Publishing Company, being duly sworn, says that the average daily circulation for the month of February, 1913, was 50,823.

Look up, lift up, is the motto now.
Those who escaped will never realize how lucky they are.

Unfortunately, it could not blow the mortgage off.
Coming through the rye makes many men stoney.

As business stagnators, tornadoes may be matched but not beaten.
Other business may be urgent and pressing, but it will have to wait.

Low clothes as well as low wages seem to cut something of a figure in this social progress.
The Phoenix rose only from its ashes. Omaha's sufferers will rise from the ashes beneath the snow.

The Flood Disaster.
In our own terrible affliction we can sympathize thoroughly with communities in Ohio, Indiana and other middle states, where floods have wrought havoc to life and property more far-reaching than our tornado destruction.

Save Us from Fakers.
Facts, no matter how appalling, are always too prosaic for the purposes of sensational journalism.

One Denver newspaper, for instance, publishes a home-made story declaring that Omaha's tornado struck the down-town district, leveling great steel structures, hurling their girders through the air as if they were splinters.

Omaha could not have been saved from the tornado, but it ought to be saved from the fakers. The wind chose a path whose nearest point was some miles from the tall-building section of the city.

Perhaps now that Willis L. Moore has resigned as chief of the weather bureau, we may get some better weather.
As they did in Moses' time, so many may have to do now—just wipe all debts off the slate and begin over again.

It is well not to blow one's own horn through another's misfortune. In other words, do not capitalize human misery for personal gain.
The Christian Science Monitor is right in pronouncing much of the so-called current humor inconsistent with the ideals of clean journalism.

To get those lawns, shrubs and trees back to their former glory will take a freer use of water this summer than those "extortionate" water rates will permit.

Looking Backward This Day in Omaha
MARCH 27, 1900
Thirty Years Ago—
The McCaull Opera Company in "The Queen's Lace Handkerchief," by Strauss, captivated a small audience at Boyd's.

Ben Hogan, the reformed pugilist, is earnestly working up a big meeting to be held at Boyd's next Sunday, when he is going to convert them all.

Twenty Years Ago—
Dr. Brevoort resigned as house physician at St. Joseph's hospital, where he has been visiting with his wife.

Tommy's Misadventure.
The teacher in looking around the room saw a new face. It pertained to a little boy. She called him to her desk.

Applied Advice.
"I want to buy one of those Do it Now cards," said the clerk, "but we're out of those cards. We'll have some printed next week."

People Talked About
Miss Sophie Irene Loeb, leader of a crusade for improved transportation facilities in New York City, is making progress. Through her efforts the board of aldermen promise to cut taxicab rates to 30 cents for the first mile and 18 cents for each succeeding mile.

Long Reach for Fame.
If the designer of the new nickel thinks that by putting the initials "E" on it he will make his name a household word, he underestimates the prodigious capacity of the human mind for forgetting names.

Twice Told Tales
Pathos and Jobs.
When Irving Bacheller, the novelist, was a city reporter on a New York newspaper, the Sunday editor gave him a hurry call for a feature story with these instructions:

Pat and the Apostles.
An English commercial traveler was one day driving past the general post-office in London.

Whip of a Wise One.
OMAHA, March 26.—To the Editor of The Bee: Here is a letter I sent to the offending paper which it has not had the fairness yet to print, so I send it to you, too.

Women's Activities
Nine young women students of Wellesley college have formed a Press board, and each has a Boston paper to which she writes or telephones the news of the college.

Editorial Snapshots
St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Byron died in Greece while trying to restore to the country some of its ancient dignity. The poet was no mere dreamer, for the cause marches on.

Chicago Inter Ocean: The smashing of sixteen presidents in twelve days in the White House would seem to indicate that President Wilson is what may be called a progressive democrat.

Philadelphia Record: Newspapers that are persistent in trying to create class animosities are wont to use cartoons and letter-press to represent child labor as the result of the greed of employers.

The Bees Letter Box
A Party with a Mission.
OMAHA, March 26.—To the Editor of The Bee: I saw an article in the newspaper of recent date where a prominent politician in New York City, a former bull moose, I presume, was advocating a scheme to unite both wings of the republican party under a new name.

Wrath of the Tornado.
Kansas City Independent.
All day the angry clouds had swept
Athwart a blurring sky.

Whip of a Wise One.

Breeze Trifles.
The reformed burglar, upon his release from jail, was inclined to be a bit facetious. "Simplicity," he remarked to a reporter who chanced to be in the vicinity, "that under no circumstances will I be a candidate for another term."

How do You feel this Morning?
Like This OR Like This
YOU have been asked that question. That's only courtesy. Most people can tell by looking at you how you really feel. A cheerful, healthy person with a sunny smile and bright eyes, clear skin, radiates health. The irritable person, with drooping mouth, sallow skin and lustreless eyes speaks of constipation. You can avoid that look. It is caused by a systematic poisoning due to constipated bowels and liver. DON'T wait till your "friends" suggest that you take something "to-morrow." Do it now and avoid a disagreeable day and night. If you take a 1/2 dram of KATHARIN JAMES WATER, the Natural Imported laxative, when you get up, or any time on an empty stomach, it acts within one hour or less. No waiting, no worrying and you'll "feel like a man." Get a bottle at any Drug Store to-day.
