HEN the lights went out last evening, many funny things transpired in consequence, but the best of all that have come day. to my notice was the experience of a man out on West Harney street, who, still mindful of the tornado, thought at once of his daughter, who had gone to a church service down town.

When he stepped out on the porch and found that part of the city in the First, all of Omaha, were relieve darkness, he immediately got his coat and hat and started afoot for his Sunday night. Colonel Everly was all daughter. On Farnam street, near Thirtieth, he heard the voice of a relieved from the command. Lieutenas woman asking him if she might walk with him, as she was afraid in the Hot blushes of disappointment spread over his face and the dark-complected lady turned pink.

Another amusing incident was in the First Methodist church. Pastor Williams asked the congregation to keep seated while the cause was being ascertained. Then to relieve the monotony of the quietude the choir was asked to sing some familiar hymn. It is well known which is the favorite hymn of Mr. Kelly, the choirmaster, and in precise harmony with "Lead, Kindly Light," one of the ushers came out of the basement doorway with the First regiment of Stanton, D of the a candle, the only speck of illumination in the whole church.

At the Henshaw cafe, which was crowded with people for Sunday night supper, the guests began to get nervous when the lights went out. Mayor Dahlman started the popular song, "My Wild Irish Rose," and soon the orchestra began playing it and all of the guests in the cafe joined in the First of Osceola and K of the Second singing. In a short time candles were placed in impromptu candlesticks, of Schuyler, which were assigned to the such as cream pitchers-and the supper then went merrily on.
