Mrs. Charles Oliver Norton, state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, returned Monday from Henry, Neb., where she attended the unveiling of the state line monument on April 4. Mrs. Norton reports a fine dedicatory service, including a parade and a number of addresses. Colonel H. G. Leavitt of Scott's Bluff was master of ceremonies and in charge of the Boy Scouts from Scott's Bluff, who participated in the exercises of the day. Several hundred people from the surrounding country were present and the occasion was a memorable one.

Mrs. Norton left for Washington on Thursday, where she will attend the national congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution, which convenes the week of April 19. Later Mrs. Norton will go to Wilmington, Del., to attend the annual conference of the United States Daughters of 1812. After spending some time in New York, Mrs. Norton will go to Boston to remain with her son, who is attending the Massacusetts Institute of Technology, returning to Kearney early in July. Mrs. Norton reports the largest delegation from Nebraska ever sent to the national congress.

Wednesday evening, March 26, Mrs. C. O. Norton of Kearney, Neb., state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, organized in Callaway the David Conklin chapter, named after David Conklin, a colonel in the American revolution, also one of the first signers of the Articles of Association, preceding the Declaration of Independence. This chapter bears the distinction of being the first and only chapter of the kind in Custer county, and numbers fourteen members. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. R. E. Brega, organizing regent.

Mrs. Norton gave a very interesting talk on the motives of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Then came a very interesting practical talk on instructions, after which the meeting was turned over to the local officers.

Friday evening the members of chapter M., P. E. O., and their husbands and friends were most agreeably entertained at the home of Dr. and Mrs. William Berry in South Omaha. Miss Lida Wilson gave an illustrated lecture on the works of the artist, James McNeil Whistler.

The next program in the series of art lectures given by chapter M will be on April 26, when Mrs. Z. T. Lindsey of Omaha will speak at the home of Mrs. Thomas Parker in South Omaha.

Mrs. Lulu B. Mathews is president of chapter M and Mrs. C. F. Oliver has done excellent work this year as chairman of the program committee.

Thursday evening, April 24, at the First Presbyterian church in South Omaha, Miss Alice Virginia Davis will give an illustrated lecture on Paris to aid the relief fund for the Easter tornado sufferers. Miss Davis returned last October from two and a half years' study of piano with Wager Swayne in Paris, and while in that famous city she visited art galleries, museums and various places of great interest. Miss Davis studied these things with the enthusiasm of youth and American enterprise, and her lecture will be both entertaining and instructive.

The Fourth District Nebraska Federation of Woman's clubs will hold its eighth annual convention at Beatrict, Neb., April 16 and 17. The social hour at 5:30 follows the meeting, to which all young women are cordially invited. Miss Chase will act as hostess.

The monthly association party will be on Monday evening, April 14. It will be a mock wedding, in which all the parts will be assigned to the guests after they arrive. All young women are cordially invited to attend. Come promptly at 8.

The first aid to the injured lecture on Tuesday evening will be given by Dr. Joseph M. Aikin on the subject, "The Brain and Nervous System: Unconsciousness from Different Causes."

The next number of the entertainment course will be Monday evening, April 21. Admission is free to members upon presentation of membership card. Complete announcement will be made later.

The tenth annual convention of the Third District Federation of Women's clubs at West Point was a distinct success, notwithstanding that a severe storm raged there during the whole of the time occupied by the sessions. Among the distinguished visitors and delegates present were: Mrs. F. H. Cole, Omaha, general state secretary; Mrs. F. A. Long, Madison, district vice president; Dr. Susan LaFlesche Picotte, Walthill; Miss Elva Greef, librarian, Fremont; Miss Alice Loomis, home economics department, state university; Miss Anne Grumman, registrar and instructor, Brownell Hall, Omaha; Mrs. H. L. Keefe, Walthill, recording secretary, Women's clubs; Mrs. J. T. Gist, Falls City, president of Nebraska State federation; Prof. Lawrence Fossler, LIncoln, head professor German language and literature, state university. The officers elected were: President, Mrs. O. A. Williams, Neligh; vice president, Mrs. F. A. Long, Madison; secretary, Mrs. George Christoph, Norfolk.

The convention moved to support the Board of Control and sent a telegram to the governor asking him to use his influence for the same.

The convention also offered its support of bill No. 390 before the present legislature, concerning the tract of land along the Missouri river to be used for public park and educational purposes.

Prof. Fossler of the state university gave an interesting illustrated lecture on his travels through Germany.

The sessions were characterized by the greatest harmony and all were delighted with the entertainment accorded them. The only drawback to a most perfect meeting was the extremely inclement and unseasonable weather, which made locomotion very difficult and completely precluded any outdoor enjoyment.

The Miller Park Mothers' club of North Omaha will give a benefit show at the South Omaha High Schol auditorium Friday, April 1, and the proceeds will be turned over to the Ralston relief committee.

The play, "Madam Jarley's Wax Works," will be given, and the following South Omaha people have very kindly consented to assist: Dorothy Lord, Blanche Bush, Jane Fisher, Catherine Clow, Adeline McCulloch, Isabelle Sullivan, Georgiana Davis, and the Keno quartet, with Mr. Harry Peterson as accompanist. Admission will be charged at the door, but any one wishing to contribute further, the same will be thankfully received.

Creighton Pupils Lame After Day in Cleaning Up Zone

A number of the Creighton arts department students are still suffering slightly from bruises and accidents received on "clean up" day. Several stepped on nails, but none were sufficiently injured to prevent attendance at school. Cromer Coady, promising candidate for second base on the varsity base ball team, stepped on a nail and has been incapacitated during the last week. He feels extremely fortunate that rain had prevented the practice of the varsity team. Leo Cusack, a student rooming at St. John's hall, also stepped on a nail, which gave him some trouble.

Loyola university of Chicago was returned the winner in the Intercollegiate English contest held between the Jesuit colleges of the Missouri Providence recently. St. Louis university of St. Louis, Mo., won second place.

James MaCauley, a senior in the arts department of Creighton university, won eighth place.

The annual oratorical contest held by the Nebraska Peace association will be held at Omaha university April 17. This contest was to have been held on April 4, but was postponed because of the tornado. Paul Harrington will represent Creighton.

The second preliminary elocution contest between the students of the Fourth high classes, was held in the assembly room of the arts college Saturday. Those who participated are: John W. Brennan, Cromer Coady, Henry Bongardt, Philip Daly, Charles Kanne, Bart Kruger, Harry McGuire, Paul McGuire, James Martin, Stephen Mulvihill, Leo Pfaff, Edward Svoboda, Earl Torrey, Joseph Wunderlich and Francis Walker.

Dean Paul Martin of the law school, has recovered from a recent sickness, which forced him to stay at home for a week.

A special clinic is planned by the medical college for April 24 at St. Joseph's hospital in honor of the alumni of that department. This is an annual affair which is attended by alumni throughout the country. At these clinics special cases are presented by recognized specialists for the benefit of the visitors.

The program will begin at 8 a. m. and continue until 5 p. m. In the evening a banquet will be given to the alumni.

The Easier Task.

Miss Beatrice Harraden, the well-known English writer, praised at a luncheon at the Colony club in New York the beautiful Easter hats that in countless numbers beautified the restaurant.

"You'd scarcely believe it," a woman journalist said to Miss Harraden, "but many of us American women make our own Easter hats."

"An Englishwoman can't make her own hats—but she can pick other women's hats to pieces," Miss Harraden answered, with a smile.—New York Tribune.

Trust Companies in Many Ways Protect Funds and Property

An effort was made recently to compile the records of probate, civil and criminal courts in order to ascertain approximately the amount of money and property annually diverted from rightful heirs and owners through mismanagement of estates and dishonesty of individuals who betrayed their trusts. The effort to obtain figures was abandoned because of the great mass of evidence which the court records revealed of losses suffered by beneficiaries of estates, especially where the custody was given to so-called "confidential advisers," former associates or personal friends of the maker of the will. Coupled with this evidence are many instances of rank dishonesty, of exposure leading to suicide and tragic instances of the evil consequences of speculation. No adequate idea can be given of the diversion of funds of property because of the fact that for every one case of exposure there are scores of cases of mismanagement and of defalcations which are compromised out of court and which never come to public attention. But the available records nevertheless show the frailty of human nature when subjected to temptation, when offered opportunities to make use of estate and trust funds for selfish gain.

In Pennsylvania recently a prominent officer in the state national guard was charged with a shortage in his accounts held for the benefit of a number of estates left in charge. He was in full charge of estates valued respectively at $100,000, $70,000, $52,000 and a number of smaller trusts, some of them averaging not more than $5,000. Among his business associates and friends he was looked up to not only as a man of unbending integrity, but as being particularly skilled in safely managing the estates of widows, orphans and minors. With exposure came arrest and, while the defaulter was being taken to prison to answer for the charges against him he seized a favorable opportunity on the train to elude the watchful officer and commit suicide. Then all the facts became public and it was found that his defalcations from estate funds amounted to over $200,000.

The principal point of interest about these illustrations of betrayal of trust is not to show that human beings are liable to temptation and yield to attractive opportunities to misuse trust funds in their possession, but the fact that such losses might have been avoided by the testator. For it is clearly proven by experience and court records that the principle of corporate administration of trusts of all descriptions is the only safe alternative.

It is the substitution of a responsible corporation, controlled by able officers and directors, subject to constant supervision, endowed with perpetual charters, for the perils and unavoidable dangers which surround the individual. The necessity for the application of the elements of corporate trusteeship in our modern corporation and business affairs has called into existence a type of institution called the "trust company."

Further proof of the absolute safety of entrusting estate funds to trust companies is moreover shown by the fact that the habit is growing among men of large and small means of appointing trust companies in their wills to administer their estates in the event of their death. Distinguished men like the late Chief Justice Melville Fuller of the United States court, the late United States Senator Elkins and the late merchant prince of Chicago, Marshall Field, have transferred the management of their estates and execution of the provisions of their last testaments to trust companies.

Plumbing that Gives Satisfaction in Home

Modern plumbing is as much a matter of getting sanitary conditions as it is of getting good materials and efficient workmanship. The plumber who thoroughly understands his work will see that every precaution is taken to assure sanitary arrangements, by which he will have no leaky basins, but clean, everflushing lavatories and good looking bath tubs and piping. Henry Hornung, 1822 Farnam street, is one of Omaha's plumbers who secures the best success in placing plumbing in the home. He understands thoroughly the conditions which should be brought about and his particular attention to details assures satisfaction.

FATHERS AND SONS TO BANQUET NEXT FRIDAY

The third annual "father and son banquet" of the boys' department of the Young Men's Christian association is to be held next Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock. George F. Gilmore, president of the association, will preside and State Superintendent of Public Instruction James E. Delzell will deliver the address of the evening on "Chums." Just previous to this address there will be two musical numbers by two of the boys—Edmund Booth and Earle Ticknor. There will also be two toasts. The first, entitled "Our Guests," will be made by Ralph Douglass, representing the boys, and the second, "Our Hosts," by Judge Bryce Crawford, representing the fathers.

The idea of the banquet is to draw the father, the son and the Young Men's Christian association closer together. At two previous banquets the idea was popular and the fathers entered into the spirit of the occasion with enthusiasm. Invitations have been issued to men who have sons in the boys' department, but the banquet is open to any father and son who desire to come.

Boys who find it impossible to be present with their father can secure substitutes from among the directors and secretaries of the Young Men's Christian association by leaving their names with the boys' work director. Acceptances must be in his hands before the day of the banquet.
