Wan, Weary and Worn Out

If You Feel Fagged to a Finish and Utterly Used Up Here is Quick Relief.

Half the people you meet complain of weary muscles, stagnant brain, jangled nerves, and a wonderful desire to lay down and just quit. Most of these people have been using medicines that spasmodically flare up the nerves only to die down again, as die they must. Avoid nerve stimulants. Bear in mind that this worn out feeling is due to poor blood, to bacteria in the water you drink; to the multiplying of destructive germs in the blood faster than they can be overcome by the white corpuscles; and to what is known as auto-toxemia, that condition where the venous or impure blood accumulates faster than it can be replaced by the red arterial blood.

REST FOR RELIEF WORKERS

Needs of Tornado Victims Supplied; Sunday Given Over to Rest.

WORKERS IN SIGHT FOR ALL

Work of Reconstruction to Begin in Earnest and Rebuilding the Destroyed Homes to Be Rapidly Pushed.

One policeman guarded the stock of goods valued at thousands of dollars at the central relief station at the Auditorium yesterday and not a relief worker was at his or her desk. This was the first day since the tornado that the relief workers have not been on the job.

Several hundred regulations were filed Saturday and the needs of those in the afflicted district were well cared for over Sunday. This morning all the relief workers will be back on the job again.

The several days of severe rainstorms have been a good thing for the relief work, according to F. I. Ellick, assistant director of relief. He admits that this may be a peculiar way to view the matter, but says it has given the people several days to sit by their stoves and collect their wits.

Can Now Talk Business. "We can talk sense and business to them now," says Ellick. "They have had time to sit down and think things over. They have collected their wits and now when they come in they know what they want. They know what they have lost and they know what their immediate necessities are. Before the rains came, people flocked in on us and didn't know what they wanted. They talked incoherently and in a confused way, and it was always hard to get at exactly the essential facts in the case and decide what was the thing to do for them first."

This will be a week of energetic building in the tornado swept district. It is expected that over fifty carpenters will report for duty this morning to the construction committee. They will be divided into squads or teams of five men each and will be placed in the field to rebuild and repair homes that have been recommended for construction by the relief committee. About forty cases have already been recommended by the relief committee; that is, the relief committee will pay for the lumber and the carpenter work on this number of buildings.

Admiration Given Citizens of Omaha For Their Courage

Mel Trotter of Grand Rapids, Mich., missionary worker, told an audience of men and women at the Young Men's Christian association building that Omaha's message to the world that in this hour of trial, it would stand alone and care for its sufferers had won the admiration of all, inspired confidence and bound it as friend to friend with every citizen.

"I have been over your tornado district," he said during his sermon. "It is in an awful condition. I saw an old man who lost everything he had—and who believes he is too old to begin over again, looking sorrowfully at the wreck of his home.

"And I said, you don't need a Billy Sunday here, nor a Gipsy Smith, for this thing has put the fear of the Lord in the people's heart and if we work right we can help many to look more cheerfully on life, inspire them with hope and give them help."

Speaking of the ruin wrought by wind and flood during the last month, Mr. Trotter pointed to the fact that fraternal societies had done more to help sufferers than the church.

"Fraternalism never sprang up," he declared, "until the church went down. When the churches do their duty we will have no more use for the fraternalism. I want to see the church stiffen up its back and help."

"The problem of this town now is not the reconstruction of the wrecked homes, but getting the people on their knees, and then they will have the right spirit and will rebuild their homes.

"Remember, too, when you're doing good deeds that the brightest light does not show the lamp. What is needed is a mission that will help put the love of Jesus in men's minds."

Mr. Trotter took his text from the utterance of Obadiah, governor of King Ahab, who had "served the Lord since his youth." He attacked hypocrisy and cant and creed, asking that we have no "law except the law of love and no creed but Christ."

"There is no difference between high-tone and low-tone sin," he said, "because it's all rotten. I'd just as soon go to hell drunk as sober. I'm glad to see you're cleaning up things here. I notice a bunch of high-tone sinners were caught in a raid last night. Let them have it."

What he wanted, Mr. Trotter explained, was for the men who had served the Lord before they came to Omaha to return to their earlier virtue. "Men go from bad to worse. And there are crooks, who associate with a man of known honesty and soon the people say he can't be a crook because he associates with that man. Don't believe it."

"But let me tell you. When men actually love Jesus they can live in Omaha or Lincoln with politicians and do good work, but they must have in their hearts the fear of the Lord."

Police Resent Having Force Cut Down to Twelve Men

What would happen if Omaha had only twelve policemen? "If you could only have listened to the discussion of the question at midnight yesterday in police headquarters just before patrolmen's roll call, the question would be solved for you and would be ahead of sundry laughs and thrills.

"One thing that would happen," chimed in one 30 pounder, "is that the bum joke smiths in town would die of starvation."

"Ye-ah," added another 20 lb., but each of the twelve would be a harness bull, a sergeant, detective and lieutenant, all rolled into one.

"That's all that guy thinks of," excitedly exclaimed a thin officer, nudging a comrade as he pointed to the last speaker. "He wants to be a sergeant so he can hike off to a warm firehouse and go to sleep all the time."

"Business of scuffling, not printable fabric mastication, etc., before discussion resumes."

"Suppose the chief's brother's college alum's sister got married and there'd be no bull to stand watch in the kitchen.

the wreckage. Their efforts were fruitless in the case of some of the victims, whose bodies were so firmly wedged in the shattered remains of the coaches that it took a wrecking crew hours to release them.

Tornado Produces Shock That Causes Death of Mother Rock

Mother M. Rock, abbess of the convent of the Catholic order of Poor Clares, Twenty-ninth and Hamilton streets, died at St. Joseph's hospital yesterday afternoon, aged 24 years. The death of Mother Rock is attributed to the shock following the tornado of three weeks ago. She had been in fairly good health up to that time, but immediately thereafter her nervous system broke and medical skill was unavailing in restoring her to her normal condition.

The abbess had been at St. Joseph's hospital several days and failed constantly. The funeral will be held in the convent chapel Wednesday morning and the body will be temporarily placed in the receiving vault.

So far as known, Mother Rock had no relatives in this country. She was born in Ireland and came to America when a child. She took the veil and became a member of the order of Poor Clares many years ago and had been a resident of Omaha since the establishment of the convent, thirty years ago, having come here with Mother Constant, abbess, who died in January, 1902.

Excursion Train Wrecked; Fifteen Hurt, Seven Dead

MONTREAL, April 14.—Seven persons are dead and fifteen were injured as the result of the derailment of an excursion train this afternoon on the Montreal Chamby branch of the Central Vermont railway, about four and a half miles out of St. Lambert.

The train was carrying about 700 passengers, who had taken advantage of the free trip given by a real estate firm to prospective purchasers of lots at Albany subdivision, and was returning to Montreal at a speed of between twenty and thirty miles an hour, when from some cause as yet unknown the engine and the first three coaches left the track.

Bishop Scannell Discusses Illness of Pope Pius

Bishop Scannell, Catholic bishop of Omaha, is closely watching the dispatches telling of the condition of Pope Pius X. The bishop is inclined to be optimistic as to the final outcome of the illness, thinking that the news cabled from Rome may be somewhat exaggerated.

In this connection, however, Bishop Scannell paid a compliment to the accuracy of the reports sent out by the Associated Press. "I am acquainted with the man in charge of the Rome office of the Associated Press," said he, "and he is an able person. He has access to the Vatican."

The last occasion on which Bishop Scannell was received in audience by the pope was in January, 1909. He commented on the fact that the pope then appeared robust—being a man of medium height and strongly built.

The pope's condition is considered more serious because of his advanced age. The college of cardinals, for the most part, is composed of old men. Twenty-seven cardinals are past 70 years of age; twenty-two others are past 60; ten others are past 50 and one is under 50.

"The death of the pope," said the bishop, "may be compared to that of a king, though of greater international importance, in respect to the manner in which the work goes on through the succession of a new ruler."

Bishop Scannell will leave today for Cheyenne, where he will attend the consecration of Bishop Duffy, bishop of the new diocese of Kearney, to be held Wednesday. Bishop Duffy was elected last year. He will be installed in Kearney next week.

Archbishop Keane of Dubuque will be consecrator and Bishop Dowling of Des Moines will preach.

Prisoners in Raid Released on Bond

Every one of the 152 prisoners taken by the police Saturday night in sensational raids on five chop suey cafes and a cheap underworld hotel, were released on bonds within a dozen hours after their arrest. Many obtained their release immediately after being "booked" at headquarters, but others remained in the cells until friends could raise bond money for them.

In the majority of cases, the bond for prisoners was only $10, but for some of the notorious characters taken, Captain Hettfeld demanded a larger amount. The keepers were all released upon bonds of $100 each.

Scores of prisoners taken in the raids on the chop suey parlors were indignant when brought to headquarters. They said that they were not drinking, but came there only for some of the Chinese delicacies. A number of traveling men and theatrical folk, the police admit, were only eating in the place and were innocent of the fact that liquor was being sold in defiance of the law. However, the fact remained that liquor being sold illegally made the cafe a "disorderly place" and everyone therein an "inmate."

All of the prisoners, as they were released, were instructed to appear in police court this morning.
