FANNING DISCARDS RED TIE

Finds that Camels Hate Them as Badly as American Bulls.

RETURNS FROM HONEYMOON

Heard News of Omaha Tornado in Paris—Says Wooden Block Pavements Used Extensively in France.

Colonel and Mrs. Charles E. Fanning are back to Omaha—"heat city in the world"—after three months' honeymoon trip through the far east. While in Egypt Colonel Fanning was taught the gentle art of camel riding by a descendant of the Pharaohs. On a hot, dusty day he was visiting at the pyramids, engaged in a scientific search for the specific for making the artificial stone out of which the pyramids are built—hoping to apply it to the business of street paving.

So engrossed did the colonel become in this search that he stumbled inadvertently against the fortified side of Ramesses X, the camel which had been assigned to him as a beast of burden and for transportation purposes. Ramesses lifted his padded hind foot and kicked. The kick hit the colonel on the side and the Omahian at once proceeded to lambast the Ramessesid dynasty and all Egypt in choice English. "Camels hate red ties."

The colonel said he couldn't see the point, nevertheless he hurriedly yanked off the red necktie and thrust forth a green one which he was in Egypt. At Shepherd's hotel, Cairo, Colonel Fanning saw J. Pierpont Morgan, who sat on the porch of the hotel and smoked big, black cigars in apparently keen enjoyment. He said the magnate did not appear to be very ill and apparently enjoyed Egypt even more than other tourists.

Colonel Fanning spent some time in France, Italy and England. In France he observed that the city's streets were paved with creosoted wood block, nothing else being used about the hotels and in residence district, where sound was offensive.

First news of the Omaha tornado was received in Paris through the Paris edition of the New York Herald, which carried a column and a half story describing the storm and mapping the route it followed.

MOTHER OF GEO. DUNCAN TO RECEIVE $24,000 INSURANCE

Stop Court to Have Juror Vaccinated

A smallpox scare in Judge Lead's district court resulted in work being suspended while Henry Paepfer, juror, was taken in charge by police officers, who fumigated his clothes, had him vaccinated and returned him to the court. Paepfer had been staying at the home of a friend on Sherman avenue during his service as juror. His home is near Benson. The house where he was staying has been quarantined and officers interrupted court proceedings to secure him. Paepfer is again serving on the jury. Neither the judge, the other jurors nor the court officials are afraid of smallpox.

THE $3,000 IS LOST Only 12 Days Left, Please Get Them In YOUR RENEWALS COUNT. WON'T YOU HELP?

Imagine the situation of W. H. McMain of Derby, Iowa. Back broken two years ago, paralysis from waist down, no power of retention, terrible wounds. Think of the heroism of Mrs. McMain, who in addition to the tremendous burden implied by the care of her husband and small children, night and morning, necessarily does six washings a week—the task is beyond a woman's strength. With their own home and $10 a month they could live.

Win. Hurrell, a victim of our frequent mine disasters. Picked up twelve years ago, terribly crushed, spine broken. All these years he has lain with body lifeless from hips down. Destitute, with his wife and small children—but for an occasional notice by "Uncle Charley" in "Comfort" they could scarcely have survived. In addition to her other duties, Mrs. Hurrell took charge of a large garden, their main support, until two years ago, she succumbed. $10 a month would enable this man to spend his last days with his children in his own home, which is his only wish.

How many know the story of C. E. Crowe, the wheelchair printer of St. Paul, Neb.? Illness in childhood left him totally deaf, and without any use of his limbs. Can only stand with the aid of crutches. Educated himself, learned printing, for years he published a little paper. Of necessity he could not provide shelter for his blind mother and aged father. He was a man to pay the mortgage on his machinery, else he will be deprived of his only means of support.

In her letter, last June, our secretary spoke of a woman slowly dying from dropsy, who necessarily supported her family of young children on $20 a month, the wages of the oldest boy. The mother has since died, leaving these five children (3 girls) to govern their own home, with scant help or guidance. $5 a month is recommended, but if the oldest boy could be awakened to a pride in his responsibility, $10 would be advisable.

Mrs. Daiklen is another of Miss Camerind's wards. For half a lifetime, this aged woman, now greatly enfeebled, has labored to provide shelter for her blind mother and deformed and legless son. $5 or $10 a month would be money incalculable.

In a mountain valley lies Mrs. Lizzie Fox, aged 67, terribly crippled with rheumatism, bed-ridden and nearly blind. She seldom sees a woman. Her care depends wholly upon her aged husband, who being necessarily absent during the day, does their housekeeping night and morning. She asks $3 a month.

Mrs. Alquist, city missionary, recommends aid for Mrs. Denlow, aged 51. For nearly 4 years Mrs. A. has paid for a room for this lone woman, whose only reliance is monthly credit of $5 for groceries. Mrs. A. says an additional $3 would insure frugal comfort.

Mrs. Selma Johnson, a woman in years, with a child's body. Strange as it seems, this girl must support herself and mother, aged 69. Illness in infancy deprived her of growth and the use of her limbs. Her mother lifts her into her chair, where she spends the day making artificial flowers; occasionally, weather permitting, she sells trifles in her wheel chair on the street. Mrs. A. says Selma must have $10 a month.

This provides for an expenditure of $80 a month. Success will permit a distribution of over $150 a month. Space forbids the entire list, but among them all NONE are in greater grief than myself, because NONE are friendless. Except those merely aged, all have mother, wife or husband to lean on, or they could NOT have survived. I AM UTTERLY ALONE.

Imagine my difficulty, without functional control, with incurable wounds, unable even to sit erect, to be compelled to advertise for a woman to keep house and take care of me for $5 a week—the truth is, dependent wholly on strangers. I NEVER know the hour when I may be DESECTED.

IT IS AN UTTER ABSURDITY to suppose a paralytic could make a livelihood under small order conditions. GRAVITY PROHIBITS. But if the public could be educated to give me their order to earn $2000 a year, for THE INVALID'S PENSION ASSOCIATION, I would be certain of a profit of Seven or Eight Hundred a year, necessary to support, nurse and treatment. Otherwise I will be left without either nurse or help within a year.

Now, I must have 145 subscriptions by April 30th. Millions read these magazines. Thousands purchase the Saturday Evening Post on news stands who could save $2.15 a year.

I wrote 1,000 last April, surely 145 will place their renewal at once to save this $3,000 prize. PHONE DOUGLAS 7163. Always address
