(From a Staff Correspondent.) WASHINGTON, April 26,-(Special Telegram.)-Although on the surface there appears to be little ple for the democrats because of the slowness of the president in making appointments, there is considerable movement in the underground sections of the departments where the chief, that is, the secretary, is all powerful and does not have to ask

Secretary Bryan, not to be outdone by his fellow cabineters, has made several important changes in the personnel of his office, and among those changes scheduled for May 1 is that of Ben G. Davis, who will become chief clerk of the State department on that date. vis, who has been a resident of Washington for twenty-five years, was Mr. Bryan's secretary when the Commoner represented the First Nebraska district

Mr. Davis went into departmental life when Mr. Bryan left congress and he has been a clerk in the War department ever since until Mr. Bryan became secretary of state, when Davis was made confidential secretary and now becomes chief clerk, which is going some.

Mr. Davis was born in Illinois and educated in the public schools of Mount Morris, Lincoln and Carthage college, Illinois. After his college work he removed to Omaha, where he engaged in business until he came east with Secretary Bryan. Mr. Davis comes to his present position through the civil service.

Dinner for Dr. Bessey. About thirty former graduates of the University of Nebraska gave a luncheon at the New Ebbett today in honor of Dr. C. E. Bessey, dean of the Nebraska institution. Dr. Bessey has been attending the gathering of scientists in session here during the week and has been the guest of Dr. Haver Metcalf, a former instructor in Lincoln. IT'S THE LARGEST SCRAPHEAP

Material Doomed for the Dump.

The wreckage of hundreds of thoubiggest scrapheap in the world. Yet it every year.

The scrapheaps of the railroads grow larger and larger every year, owing to 20-21-22. the steady expansion of business. They are composed of used-up locomotives, machinery and material of every sort and description. Even at the small prices a ton or a pound at which this :netal waste is sold it brings in milmens of dollars every year.

Of all the vast amount of material that a railroad purchases every twelvemonth, 90 per cent eventually finds its way into the scrapheap. In no other business are the odds and ends that are no longer serviceable collected with so much care. Everything from the frames of tin lanterns to the ponderous driving wheels of locomotives, reaches the scrap dock in the end.

But before anything is "scrapped" it has to be passed upon by about a dozen experts. They look it over to see if militant organization is full of spies, no there is a possibility of its being used in any other way before it is sold to the junk man. On one of the eastern railway systems, a few years ago, a large quality of steel freight car bolsters were found to be unavailable for the type of car for which they were originally intended. One by one the mechanical experts shook their heads and voted that they be sent to the scrap dock.

But one of the examiners suggested drilling an extra hole in the condemned bolsters and using them on a different lass of truck than that for which they were intended. This was done at little cost and their journey to the junk pile was delayed. After the material gets to the scrap lock another set of experts goes over There was a time when the junk lealers knew more about the value of scrap metal than the railroad men. The dealers bought craftily and at low prices. because the scrap was sorted into only a few classes when it was offered for sale. After buying the material the dealers resorted it and made big profits. Many of them grew very rich. "

Nowadays the Railway Storekeepers' association is as wise to the value of the scrap as the dealers. The members of the association have been studying it year after year and discussing it at their annual meetings. At present scrap is classified into more than 199 different grades and varieties. Each has its market price. There is no longer a chance for speculation or guessing. The rail-average is between $15 and $16 a ton. Harper's Weekly.

HERE, NOW, CAN YOU BEAT IT Coffins Greatly Admired and Ac cepted as Presents in

Someone who knows Chinese people very well once told a tale to show that they do not permit themselves the luxury of nerves. She said she had gone one day, before the Boxer riots, to visit an old lady who lived out in the country, far beyond Wel-Hsien. When the American woman arrived the old lady was out, but presently she came in, and announced that she had just been out "watching the men dig her grave, but as it began to rain she had told them to wait for a pleasanter day." She did not die for years after that, but she had the comforting assurance that her grave was ready for her, without any unseemly haste whenever she cared to occupy it. The same American had the experience of sleeping in a room with a very large coffin when she was visiting a Chinese friend, and the next visiting a Chinese county grand jury's white slavery inves- grandfather of the family called her at-
