It would be difficult to find a happier man on Manhattan island than Police Sergeant "Billy" Blair, who is attached to the city hall station. "Billy," as his companions style him, has fallen heir to a fortune of $50,000, left him by his uncle, Lewis R. Blair, and yet when seen the other evening he was as assiduously delving into the depths of the Police Manual as though nothing unusual had happened.

"Will I leave the department?" remarked the sergeant. "No, sir. Fifty thousand dollars will make no difference in me. I'll cemain right here. I'm too fond of my duties and companions to permit such a trifle as $50,-000 to change my course of life. By the way, that puts me in mind of something. Say, do you know that almost to an angle of forty-five demy uncle. Lewis, was a son of Robert Blair, of Marlborough, Ulster county, N. And if ever you visit the parlor of my humble abode you will find Robert Blair's honorable discharge by George Washington framed and given a prominent place in my collection of valuable paintings.

"How many years have I been on the force? Well, I guess you may say 35. One of the old volunteer fire laddies? Yes, sir, and proud of the distinction. I haven't got the $50,000 yet, for I understand that Surrogate Arnold's decision is to be appealed from. But it will make no difference. Nothing but old age will drive me from the department. What's that? Purchase a racing stud? No sir-but excuse me. I must attend to my duties," and Sergeant Blair proceeded to answer a hurry call on the telegraph instrument.

A Plan to Make the Rankest Smell Like a Fragrant Flower.

Boarding house inmates, whose nostrils are offended by the scent of rancid butter, can thank their stars that they will not have to suffer much longer. One of themselves-J. V. Bannister, of New York, whose sense of smell was long since blunted by boarding house butter, has discovered a cheap way to give foul smell-From 1862 to 1866 Professor Asaph ing butter, butterine or oleomargarine the scent of the most fragrant flower. This discovery will at the same time be a priceless boon to boarding house keepers, who are pestered half to death by the plaints of their prisoners.

So, if Mr. Bannister succeeds in bringing his discovery into general use in boarding houses the inmates thereof are likely to hail him as a Newton, a Davy and a Franklin rolled into one. His plan is to treat raneid butter with essential oils. By this means, he says, he can give the most Professor Hall showed him the various offensive butter any scent that may

AMERICANS, AWAKE!

Rome Hates Everything American, From the Flag Down to the A. P. A.

Under the caption "Awake Patriotic Americans," a writer in the Independent Leader of Bridgepori, Conn., says:

Wherever you find a Protestant country you find progress. Wherever you find a country governed (misruled is nearer to the truth) by popery you will find poverty-the more popery the more poverty. Rome robs and grows rich. To stop this robbery is to make Rome howl.

"Through Cardinal Rampolla the corruption of Tammany, the investigation of the Lexow Committee, the dealings said to go on between influential Tammany men and even more influential members of the papal priesthood have been explained to the pope, who has been much concerned at these disclosures."

These holy [?] robbers are all down on the A. P. A .- It is so un American that Leo, the unlucky, would like very much to massacre them in the good old St. Bartholomew style, which caused Gregory YIII. to proclaim a jubilee to celebrate "the triumph over heresy." Rome has always been willing and eager to kill or convert heretics-and as she never changes, the no danger squad had better follow the good example set by mummies-and keep quiet. Mummies do not seem to be thoroughly alive to the dangers that surround us, but they, [the mummles] do not keep repeating "no danger" in an imbecile manner. Neither do they appear to be weak-kneed-possibly this is owing to the bandages they are so wrapped up in. As specimens of "brotherly love," mummies are as good as the best-better today than they were 4,000 years ago. Ever since that little misunderstanding between Cain and Abel, brotherly love has not been what it should have been. This is one of the subjects on which some should keep 'mum;" also about liberty and freedom. What liberty of freedom have Protestants in papal countries? Would it not be the same here if Rome had ..... power? You see Rome " ... es everything American-from the flag and school-house down to the A. P. A. who are fearlessly opposing foreign influ ence, of every kind whatever. Some are foolishly afraid of Rome's boycottforeign influence again. Americans should not scare at this bugaboo-its bark is worse than its bite in nearly if not all cases. Is being forced to do some silly action against one's honest convictions, liberty or freedom? Decidealy not.
