HAVING investigated this Horse and Cattle Food, and having become convinced that it was superior to any preparation on the market today, I have consented to take the general agency for the Middle and Western States. It is now being used by many of the leading horse and cattle men, some of whom testify to its worth and money-saving qualities. Among the number who have endorsed it may be mentioned: Robert Bonner, Esq. of the New York Ledger; William Lockhart, Esq., Veterinary Surgeon; Dan Mace, the famous trainer and driver, and H. E. Bonner, Esq., Veterinary Surgeon, all of New York; H. M. Hosick & Co., Tallow, Hides and Wool; The Lincoln Park Commissioners John Ford, Metropolitan Market; Armour & Co., Packers; Miller & Armour, Packers; J. C. Pennoyer & Co., Teaming; Gen. Torrence; Lincoln Ice Co.; A. H. Revell; William Thompson Ice Co.; Gen. Newberry; Consumers Pure Ice Co.; E. K. Bond Packing Co.; Thos. J. Lipton & Co., Packers, and others, of Chicago.
 This Condiment is recommended by a dairyman who says his cows gave one-third more milk while he used it during the winter. It is just the stuff to build up all stock, and is a great feed-saver on account of its nutritious qualities.

THE JESUITS.
 They Aim at the Destruction of Human Liberty.
 The following questions are asked and the accompanying answers are given:
 Q. From whither do you come?
 A. From the bend of the Jordan, from Calvary, from the Holy Sepulcher, and lastly from Rome.
 Q. What do you keep, and for what do you fight?
 A. The holy faith.
 Q. Whom do you serve?
 A. The holy father at Rome, the pope, and the Roman Catholic church, universal throughout the world.
 Q. Who commands you?
 A. The successor of St. Ignatius Loyola, the founder of the Society of Jesus, or the soldiers of Jesus Christ.
 Q. Who received you?
 A. A venerable man in white hair.
 Q. How?
 A. With a naked dagger, I kneeling upon the cross beneath the banners of the pope, and of our sacred order.
 Q. Did you take an oath?
 A. I did. To destroy heretics and their governments and rulers, and to spare neither age, sex nor condition; to be as a corpse, without any opinion or will of my own, but to implicitly obey my superiors in all things without hesitation or murmuring.
 Q. Will you do that?
 A. I will.
 Q. How do you travel?
 A. In the bark of Peter, the Fisherman.
 Q. Whither do you travel?
 A. To the four quarters of the globe.
 Q. For what purpose?
 A. To obey the orders of my general and superiors, and execute the will of the pope and faithfully fulfill the conditions of my oath.
 Go ye, then, into all the world and take possession of all lands in the name of the pope. He who will not accept him as a vicar of Jesus and his vicegerent on earth let him be accursed and exterminated.—Recopied from Liberty.

Roman Catholic Rumsellers.
 In all the large cities of the United States nine-tenths of the saloonkeepers are Roman Catholics, who are the best supporters of the "holy church." They have always ready money, and plenty of it, and they give liberally for all church purposes. In some churches in New York saloonkeepers are trustees and treasurers of the church funds. If surprise should be expressed at this state of things, the answer will be that Archbishop Corrigan's father was a rumseller and dealt in very bad whisky, known as "Jersey lightning," in Newark, N. J., where he made a fortune at the business. Many other bishops and priests also had, and have, near relatives who accumulated wealth by selling liquor. The readers of Father Lambert's paper—the Lambert who wrote so well against Ingersoll—will find in its columns every week advertisements of whiskey, wine and beer for sale by pillars of the church in Philadelphia. To such extent has this nefarious traffic been carried on by Roman Catholics that Archbishop Ireland was constrained to say in one of his addresses while at the conference of archbishops: "I have walked through the streets of the city and looked over the doors of business and banking houses for Catholic names, but I am sorry to say I found very few. But oh, great God! what sorrow and bitterness came to my heart when I looked over the doors of our saloons and found on nearly all of them Catholic names." This melancholy confession should bring the blush of shame to every decent Catholic.
 At the celebration of Father Matthew's birthday in Chicago a letter was read from Satoli in which he "expressed regret that so many Roman Catholics are engaged in the liquor traffic." But the persons who follow this business are not so much to blame as the church that sanctions and profits by the traffic.—Converted Catholic.
 Education must be controlled by Catholic authorities, even to war and bloodshed.—Catholic World.

The Burlington's New Short Line.
 The Burlington Route is a notable exception to the general run of western railroads.
 During a period when railroad building in this country has been almost at a standstill, it has been steadily pushing forward its northwest extension and now takes much pleasure in announcing its completion to Billings, Mont., 893 miles from Omaha.
 At Billings connection is made with the Northern Pacific Railroad, and, under a traffic agreement with that company, business of all classes is exchanged there, or more properly speaking, routed through that point to and from every station on or reached via the Northern Pacific and Burlington Systems.
 This New Short Line—for that is exactly what it is—reduces the distance between Omaha, Kansas City, St. Louis and the territory south and southeast of those cities on the one hand, and Montana, Northern Idaho and Puget Sound points on the other, all the way from 50 to 473 miles. It thus becomes an important factor in bringing the vast scope of country served by the Northern Pacific into closer relation-

An Arch of Gold Coins.
 A novelty in the way of triumphal arches was seen when the governor general of India visited Rangoon not long back. One structure, very handsomely decorated to begin with, was still further enriched by being covered with gold mohurs and real sovereigns—valuable coins in India—worth over $50,000, each mohur being equal to fifteen rupees. The coins were stuck to the red cloth with a glue that had been specially prepared for the purpose, and was no doubt sufficiently strong to keep the gold pieces quite safe from any attempt to steal them.

WHERE TEAKWOOD GROWS.
 The Coming of the White Man Meant a Nation's Fall.
 In the heart of untrodden jungles, on thick-wooded hillsides, leaning over the banks of precipices, where tropical creepers twist like snakes choking the life out of younger growths, where orchids flaunt aloft, and strange vines bloom, there the teakwood grows. Against its corrugated bark tigers and leopards sharpen their claws, and under its thick shade strange beasts rest by day.
 That atom of animate destruction, the white ant, has passed it by, says the Century. Other growths have reared their heads out of the jungle around it, have grown, have lived their day, died, and rotted back to the roots which supplied them with life. In comparison man has been a midge, a mote in the sun, hunting his fellow animals with flint-headed arrows and stone axes, flitting, passing, gone; but the great oaks have grown, have spread their arms benignantly over the dust of tiny shapes beneath, and, planted in dignity, have stood as emblems of strength and power in meditations lasting one, two, three, five and six hundred years. They have secreted the units of time in their hearts as a maiden hides the thoughts of her first love. Days have come as thick as the snows that fall on Kunchinjina, or as the waves crowding one another to the shores of the Bengal sea. And then, as if to give color to the superstition of the hill-man long since gone with his tribe to the land where shadows fall deeper than those cast by the teak-tree in the jungle, out of these emblems of strength has grown a weakness that has overthrown a nation.
 The first oak of Burmah to be felled by a white man was symbolic of the nation's fall, and when the visitor to Mandalay is shown the king's palace, and reads the inscription on one side of a bungalow-like veranda: "King Theebaw sat in this opening with his two queens and the queen mother when he gave himself up to General Prendergast on the 30th day of November, 1885," if he cares to continue the fancy, he will notice that on each side of this opening the oaken carvings are broken and defaced, as if the events which changed a dynasty had leaped upon the teakwood, and it had fallen beneath the weight.

RAISED A WHIRLWIND.
 The Gentleman Who Meant Nothing But Said a Good Deal.
 On one occasion a member of the house of commons made use of the phrase, "King, lords, and commons," or directing his gaze toward Mr. Pitt—"as that right honorable member would call them, Commons, lords, and king." Mr. Pitt rose with great deliberation, and called to order. "I have frequently heard in this house doctrines which have surprised me," he said, "but now my blood runs cold. I desire the words of the honorable member may be taken down." The clerk of the house wrote the words, "Bring them to me," commanded Mr. Pitt, in a voice of thunder. By this time the offending member was thoroughly frightened. "Sir," he said, addressing himself to the speaker, "I am sorry to have given offense to the right honorable gentleman, or to the house. I meant nothing. King, lords, and commons; lords, king, and commons; commons, lords, and king; king, lords, and commons. I meant nothing. Indeed I meant nothing." Mr. Pitt then rose, and said gravely: "I do not wish to push the matter further; the moment a man acknowledges his error he ceases to be guilty. I have a great regard for the honorable member, and as an instance of that regard I give him this advice—that when ever he means nothing, he will say nothing."

 He—Your husband is abroad, I am told?
 She, stockbroker's wife—Yes, he's traveling in South America.
 He—Oh, indeed! And do you expect him home shortly?
 She—Well, I can't exactly tell. You see, these extradition arrangements take up such a lot of time.—Half-Holiday.

For the Spanish Navy.
 The Viscaya, the belted cruiser lately completed at Bilbao for the Spanish navy, attained in her trials under natural draught only a speed of 18.6 knots. The shipyard where she was built is in a remarkably favorable position for the raw ore can be brought in at one end and a fully equipped war vessel turned out at the other.

 Maine is justly proud of the fact that only a native can pronounce the names of her lakes trippingly on the tongue, but the names of Maine are easy besides those and others from the Canadian Province of Ontario: Lake Misquabish, Lake Kashagawiganog and Lake Kahwambejowagmag.

Errors of Youth.
 SUFFERERS FROM
 Nervous Debility, Youthful Indiscretions, Lost Manhood, BE YOUR OWN PHYSICIAN.
 Many men, from the effects of youthful indiscretions, have brought about a state of weakness that has reduced the general system so much as to induce almost every other disease, and the cause of the trouble scarcely ever being suspected, they are deceived for everything but the right one. During our extensive college and hospital practice we have discovered new and wonderful principles. The accompanying prescription is offered as a certain and speedy cure, hundreds of cases having been restored to perfect health by its use after all other remedies failed. Perfectly pure ingredients must be used in the preparation of this prescription.
 R—Erythroxylon, med. 4 drachms.
 Strychnine 1 drachm.
 Helonius, Prunella, 4 drachms.
 Gallicum, 8 grains.
 Est. igneus sinensis (alcoholic), 2 grains.
 Est. leptandra, 2 scruples.
 Glycyrrhiza, 5.
 Make a pill. Take 1 pill at 8 a.m., and another on going to bed. This remedy is adapted to every weakness in either sex, and especially in those cases resulting from indiscretions. The recuperative powers of the restorative are astonishing, and its use is followed by a short time changed to the liquid and solidated, services continue in use of renewed life and vigor.
 To those who would prefer to obtain it of us, by sending $1, a sealed package containing 50 pills, carefully compressed, will be sent by mail from our private laboratory, or we will furnish 5 packages, which will run out most cases, for $5. All orders necessarily confidential.
