AMUSEMENTS.

Under the spell of the irresistible eloquence of the greatest prose poet who ever spoke the English tongue, people are indifferent to the subject which Robert G. Ingersoll makes the vehicle for his exquisite melody of words. No matter, the sentiment of the song is there, and to the Christian his language is as musical and delightful as an opera sung in a foreign tongue. Orthodox and heterodox alike revel in the wit of Ingersoll's voice, and both classes will be represented in the big audience that will gather at Boyd's New Theatre, Sunday evening, December 1, to hear the famous agnostic's new lecture, entitled "The Bible."

In this lecture, for the first time, Colonel Ingersoll reviews the entire Bible, from Genesis to Revelation, displaying, it is said, a most profound knowledge of the Scriptures. "The Bible" has been termed the grand climax of Ingersoll's numerous assaults upon revealed religion. Upon the occasion of the initial presentation of "The Bible," in New York, Colonel Ingersoll prefaced his lecture with the following unique and characteristic statement:

"Ladies and Gentlemen—Somebody ought to tell the truth about the Bible. Ministers dare not do it; they would be driven from the pulpit. The presidents of colleges dare not do it; they would lose their places. Politicians dare not do it; they would be defeated. The editor dare not do it, for fear he would lose circulation. The rich man dare not do it, for he would lose caste. Merchants dare not do it, fearing they would lose trade. Even a clerk dare not do it, for he would be discharged—so I thought I would do it myself."

The old favorites are always sure of a hearty welcome at the hands of the Omaha theatre-goers, and if indications go for aught young J. K. Emmet will be greeted by one of the largest audiences of the season at Boyd's tomorrow (Sunday) night. There are few comedians who occupy a warmer place in the affections and esteem of the theatre-goers of Omaha than "Our Fritz," who has both danced and sung his way into the hearts of the people. In "Fritz in a Madhouse" he presents a lovable German hero to the best possible advantage. The play is an uproariously funny one, but entirely free from horse-play or buffoonery. Mr. Emmet is this year supported by a company of superior excellence, and numbered among the cast are such well-known artists as Miss Emyline Barr, Laura S. Howe, Kate Eckert, Kitty Francis, Mr. L. F. Hicks, Willard Newell, Gilbert Braithwait, Chas. Stewart, Charles A. Prince, little Baby Spencer Sinner and others.

There are fourteen characters in William H. Crane's new play, "His Wife's Father." Principal among them is Buchanan Billings, a fussy, testy, meddlesome old man, who will be portrayed by Mr. Crane in the presentations of the play at Boyd's Theatre on Monday and Tuesday evenings. Miss Anne O'Neill will be seen as the old man's daughter Nell, and Mr. Edwin Arden will be his son-in-law Frank Hamilton; Miss Eleanor Barry will play the part of Mrs. Canary, a widow with an only daughter; Miss Dallas Tyser will be the daughter, Kitty Canary; George F. Devere will be Maynard Langdon; Joseph Wheelock, Jr., will be Ferdinand Langdon, and Percy Brooke will be Matt, an old and "faithful" servant. Mrs. Kate Denin Wilson, Miss Blanche Burton, Miss Maud Carlisle, William Boag, E. D. Tyler and Gus V. De Vere will be in the cast.

The management of the Creighton

Theatre will present to their patrons that gorgeous and most successful production, the famous Tompkins' "Black Crook," for four times, commencing Sunday matinee, November 24.

The unequalled success of this great legendary drama is due, aside from the strong moral inculcated, to the lavish expenditure on the part of the owners, inasmuch as a spectacle it is unrivaled in either the old or the new world. The company visiting this city comprises the most talented artists of the famous New York run of twelve months at the Academy of Music. The "Stalacta" is in the hands of Miss Leslie Mayo, accorded the most beautiful and finely formed lady on the American stage. The two premiers, Miles, Maveroff and Kraskoe, are most talented and graceful exponents of Terpsichorean art, and especially engaged from the leading theatres of Berlin and St. Petersburg. These ladies are supported by a bevy of beautiful coryphees, and in the three leading ballets their refined and graceful art will be apparent. The novelties introduced have been specially selected, and comprise the famous Brothers Rixford, from the Circus Cisinelli, Paris, and the wonderful Breton, in his marvelous changes, as well as a host of other vaudeville entertainers. A notable innovation are the Musical Marionettes and the famous Spanish Sereaders. The troupe is accompanied with an electrical plant. Hundreds of incandescent lights of variegated hues are employed in the three grand ballets and the dazzling Amazonian March, while the grand finale, the sumptuous transformation scene, will be a revelation of the costumers', electricians' and scenic artists' skill, equaling the fabled Oriental gorgeousness and splendor.

The attraction announced for the last three days of next week, beginning with a special matinee Thanksgiving afternoon at the Boyd, is Mrs. Musgrave's very successful English farcical comedy, "Our Flat," in which the talented young actress, Emily Bancker, will assume the role of Margery Sylvester. Miss Bancker is well known here through her three years of association with Rosina Vokes, and is also remembered for her clever comedy work in "Gloriana" and other Frohman productions. In "Our Flat" she has made the hit of her career, and has a part that seems to fit her like a glove. The merry comedy ran for nearly 800 nights at the Strand Theatre in London, where it was originally produced, and has recently been revived there with great success by Willie Edouin. Miss Bancker is surrounded by an excellent company of comedians, and her performance is enlivened by the introduction of several high-class specialties.

Commencing Monday, December 2, the Bostonians, the most popular organization producing English opera in America, will open a four-days engagement at Boyd's Theatre. Two new operas have been added to their repertoire since they appeared here last, the latest of which is entitled "A War-Time Wedding." Barnabee, McDonald, Jessie Bartlett Davis, Frothingham Cowles, Josephine Bartlett, and Sykes, of the old-time favorites, are with the company, while Helen Bertram, the well-known soprano, and a number of the high-class artists who have been added since, will also be seen.

The New York Morning Journal records the following story, which will be of interest to many people who will take in Rice's "1492" when it appears at the Creighton for three nights, commencing Tuesday matinee, November 28: For some time past a stout, expansive, clean-shaven gentleman, with dark, soulful eyes and exquisite clothes, has attracted no little attention in Wall street on fine afternoons. His dainty and deliberate ways were so out of keeping with the fevered and boisterous activity of the street that he became an object of whispering comment whenever he appeared. Brokers and operators who find no time during business hours for the amenities of polite society, jostled him rudely, cabbies took malicious delight in nearly running him down at the street crossings, and irrepressible office-boys stared at him in open-mouthed wonderment; but none of these misadventures succeeded in banishing the placid smile from his lips. These "in the know" were aware that the handsome stranger was no less a person than Richard Harlow, the buxom and stately Queen Isabella of E. E. Rice's "1492." Mr. Harlow's bank account is the envy of his professional brothers. They aver that he can not only append his signature to a check running into half a dozen figures, but that—that is infinitely more important—he can actually get it cashed in hard "bones." The brokers who have done business for him vow that what he does not know about stocks is not worth learning, and that underneath his dainty and regal exterior he cherishes a secret passion for "the roof of all evil," together with a surprising aptitude for accumulating the dross. In fact, rumor credits to Mr. Harlow a snug little fortune as the result of the "little flyers" which he has lately taken in Wall street.

Ellis Ellsler has this season adopted the legitimate drama almost exclusively, and during her forthcoming engagement at Boyd's Theatre on December 6th and 7th, will be seen in "Romeo and Juliet" and "As You Like It." At her Saturday matinee "Camille" will be the bill, and at this performance every lady in the audience will receive a handsome Paris panel as a souvenir of the occasion.

In the second week of next month Eddie Foy comes to Boyd's Theatre with the big "Little Robinson Crusoe" Company, the largest spectacular production traveling.

CITY AND STATE

The annual meeting of the East Nebraska Teachers' Association will be held at Omaha on November 29 and 30.

A new trial has been asked in the Creighton will case, wherein Mrs. Shelby, daughter of the late Joseph Creighton, was awarded a verdict setting aside the latter's will.

Most of the new mains have been put in by the water-works company in the business part of the city. This company will expend nearly $85,000 in labor in Omaha before it completes the work.

The Omaha Street Railwa Employees' Benefit Association will give its second annual ball at Washington Hall on Thanksgiving night. Plenty of good music and a good time generally are in store for all who attend.

There is some talk of a contest of the councilmen-at-large. It is claimed that fraud was committed in several precincts by which the defeat of our friend Robert D. Duncan, one of the Republican candidates, was compassed.

A little son of John MacDonald, sheriff elect, met with a painful accident on Wednesday. In attempting to cross the motor track on North Twenty-fourth street, he was struck by a south-bound train, knocking him down and cutting several gashes about the head and face, which will probably disfigure him for some time.

The Supreme Court of Nebraska has ordered a new trial in the case of Barney McGinn, convicted of the murder of Edward McKenna. People generally believe that the jury in this case rendered a righteous verdict, and that McGinn richly deserves the death penalty. A new trial has been granted on the ground of an alleged error of the lower court in passing sentence.

Ex-Senator Lobeck attended the Methodist national conference at Denver last week, and, not having a copy of this paper with him, read the Denver American on Sunday. He reports a lively and interesting session. Many important subjects were considered by leading Methodist clergymen, who were a unit on the great question of popular education and on the subject of the maintenance of American institutions.

Notice to Non-Resident Defendant.

To Sarah G. Foote, Lysander W. Talley, trustee of Emily T. Barry; Herman C. Fechtelner; Frank Thompson, executor, and Joe R. Lane, administrator with will annexed of the estate of James Thompson, deceased, non-resident defendants. Take notice that on the 14th day of August, 1895, Philip L. Johnson, plaintiff, filed his petition in the district court of Douglas county, Nebraska, against The Briggs Place Building Association, the above named defendants, and others, the object and prayer of which is to foreclose a certain tax certificate dated November 10th, 1892, covering lot seventeen (17), in block ten (10), Briggs Place, an addition to the city of Omaha, Douglas county, Nebraska; that there is due upon said tax certificate and subsequent taxes paid thereon the sum of one hundred and seven ($107.00) dollars, with interest from September 23d, 1894, at the rate of 10 per cent per annum; attorney's fees amounting to 10 per cent of the decree and all costs. Plaintiff prays for a decree that defendants may be required to pay the same, or that said premises may be sold to satisfy the amount found due and that each of the defendants be declared from thereafter claiming or asserting any interest or title to said real estate. You are required to answer said petition on or before the 30th day of December, 1895. PHILIP L. JOHNSON, Plaintiff. By Saunders, Macfarland & Dickey, his attorneys. Dec. 22, No. 32. 11 22-4
