Atlas of the World

Especially prepared to meet the wants of Farmers, Merchants, Mechanics, Clerks, Students, Women, and all who desire a complete work at the minimum cost. Nearly 70 Comprehensive Maps, 140 New and Superb Illustrations. A Whole Library of Itself, of vital and absorbing interest to every member of the household. Population of each State and Territory, of all Counties of the United States, and of American Cities with over 5,000 Inhabitants.

IT CONTAINS much special information regarding any Nation, Province, State, City, Town or Village desired. The knowledge is rarely obtainable from a school geography, which necessarily has only a few general facts and the location of important cities. Railroad maps are notoriously incorrect and misleading, hence the puzzled truth-seeker, where large libraries are inaccessible, is without relief unless he is the happy owner of a knowledge-satisfying, pleasure-giving People's Atlas. All Countries on the face of the earth are shown. Rivers and Lakes are accurately located. All the large Cities of the World, the important Towns and most of the Villages of the United States are given on the Maps. It gives a classified List of all Nations, with Forms of Government, Geographical Location, Size and Population. This beautiful Atlas is bound in heavy paper cover, and will be sent to you 50 CENTS, any address upon receipt of

BELIEVE IN MATRIMONY. Women Who, Marrying in Haste or in Leisure, Never Regret. Four mothers were discussing the present training and possible futures of their children, says the New York Times. "The height of my ambition," said the first, "is to get my four daughters married by the time they are 18." "Yes," chimed in the second, "Dr. Parkhurst is exactly right. There is no career like marriage for a woman." "If I didn't think there was a good man growing up somewhere for my little girl I would be miserable," said No. 3, as she patted the golden curls of a tiny maiden at her knee. "You are right. No woman doctors and woman lawyers for me," said the fourth matron, with dignified emphasis. To any one familiar with the histories of these women their opinions would furnish food for serious reflection. The first speaker had married a man who had never made a living for his family, except in rare and brief intervals of good luck. From the affluence of her maiden days she had descended to such depths of poverty that at one time she was forced to sell cakes on the streets to keep her children from starving. The husband of the second was a man whose salary gave his family a comfortable living for the first ten years of their married life, but he was stricken with paralysis before the prime of life. The eldest child, a boy of great promise, died at the age of 12, the father followed him in a few years, and the wife was left to support three young children and herself as best she could. The third was the widow of a brilliant professional man. She had $20,000 in her own right. Her husband ran for some office, was defeated, took to gambling and drinking and died of delirium tremens in a few years. She, too, had to solve the problem of making a living for herself and two small children. The fourth woman had married rather late in life a widower of small means and mediocre talents, and, after six years of wedded life, she had put on widow's weeds and entered the lists of the breadwinners on behalf of four children, all girls, and one of them a helpless idiot. All four had laid health, beauty and happiness on the shrine of Hymen, yet not one could be induced to declare marriage a failure and all were anxious to secure husbands for their daughters. These women represent the hopelessly conservative class—a class that will always exist, no matter how much women may be emancipated, and that will continue to furnish long-suffering wives to the sons of men as long as the sons of men choose to marry. No possibility or even certainty of disaster can deter them from matrimony. It is their vocation, and they enter it as trustingly and devoutly as those who take the black veil.

A Nice Question of Law. A wealthy German, intent upon a day's outing, wanted to hire a horse dealer's best horse and trap, but not knowing his man the horse dealer demurred at trusting them in his hands. Determined to have his drive, the German proposed paying for the horse and vehicle, promising to sell them back at the same price when he returned. To that the other saw no objection, so his customer's wants were supplied and off he went. He was back in time at the stables, his money reimbursed according to contract, and he turned to go. "Hold on," exclaimed the dealer, "you have forgotten to pay for the hire." "My dear sir," was the cool reply, "there is no hiring in the case. I have been driving my own horse and trap all day," and he left the astonished man to his reflections.—Exchange.

English Estates Passing. The policy of disposing of unentailed estates has been introduced in England by the titled gentry, who need the money more than they do the ownership of the soil. During the spring or early summer between 3,000 and 4,000 acres of Countess of Warwick's Essex estates will be put up for sale by auction. The vast property, which includes Newenham Hall Farm, on which are three of the famous hills or barrows known as Bartlow Hills, where numerous antiquities have been found, will be submitted as a whole. But, anticipating the tendency of the times, the vendor has agreed, if not successful, to have it put up immediately afterward in lots arranged, as far as possible, so that the tenants will have an opportunity of acquiring the freehold of their holdings.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Leaving Him to His Fate. "John," she said, "there's a burglar trying to get in the house." "Is there?" was the uninterested reply. "Yes. Aren't you going to do something about it?" "No, Maria. I'm a humane man, but if that fellow falls over Johnny's tin wagon and steps into a toy drum and gets frightened by treading on a rubber doll that says 'papa' and barks his shins the same as I did when I came in here in the dark to-night, it'll be all his own fault. I don't feel called on to interfere with my advice or to offer a helping hand, for it won't be a deserving case."—Washington Star.

Fatal. "Wot are you a-cryin' for?" "Me teacher kep' me in an' called me a ass." "Cheer up, ole man; that ain't nothin' to cry for!" "Oh, I ain't a-cryin' for myself; I'm a-weepin' cause it's so rough on me father!"—Truth.

Real Fire Is Invisibile. No eye, says a scientific writer, has ever seen real fire. The flame is leaping in strange, fantastic form, fifteen or twenty inches upward from the coal and with it is a good deal of black, sooty smoke. The sooty smoke and the flames are one and the same, with only a difference of temperature. The soot which forms the flame is red hot. Every particle of the flame is red hot coal or a particle of the carbon. The real fire we do not see. The instant that the carbon atoms become really burned, eaten up by the oxygen of combustion, they are invisible. In burning three pounds of carbon, the heated state of which gives us flame, the fire work is done by eight pounds of oxygen. The oxygen we do not see. The carbon we only see just before it is burned; and the result of the burning is eleven pounds of the compound of oxygen and carbon which is invisible.

Sunday. There must be a place of worship or there will be no worship. Hence, the church. There must be a time for worship, or there will be no worship. Hence the obligation of the Sabbath.—Rev. W. H. Moore.

Not Overpopulated. As a means of showing how far the world is from being overpopulated, economists assert that the entire population of the United States could live comfortably in the single state of Texas. The "Silent Ten" is the same of a club of women at Wellington, Kas.—Exchange.
