Religion and Politics.

There must be no compromise with evil. It is our duty to carry our convictions into all the walks of life, into our business and into our politics. The man who doesn't carry his religion into his politics, in my opinion, has a very poor kind of religion and a very poor kind of politics.-Rev. H. L. Huntingdon.

EFFECT OF TEA CIGARETTES. They Give One a Sensation of Thick One of the most injurious and dangerous of new fashions is the tea cigarette, says the Cincinnati Tribune. That this is no empty, baseless story of a new craze is shown by the application car last evening, says the Baltimore made last week to the commissioner of internal revenue at Washington for permission to manufacture tea cigarettes in Michigan. The applicant was told that, to engage in such manufacture, he must comply with the law governing the manufacturing of tobacco cigarettes, tea being a substitute for tosacco; that he must register, give bond and so on, and that the cigarettes when made, must be packed, stamped, branded and labeled, exactly as the tobacco cigarettes, before the government would sanction their removal from the factory for sale. Several descriptions of the tea cigarette have been printed, but these always intended to be a doctor? Ha, have erred in the presumption that the tea was taken as sold, rolled up in a religious associations. Here are Hot your own medicine, I can tell you. paper and smoked. This would be practically impossible, as the sharp edges of the tea would cut the paper ting off legs and arms and taking out in all directions, spoil the draft and the old 'insides' and putting in new render the cigarettes unsmokable. To make the tea cigarette one takes & grade of green tea which has but little dust, being composed of unbroken leaf, rapidly into a faint. The cigarettes are laid aside for a few days and are then ready to be smoked. The feeling of a tea cigarette in the mouth is peculiar. The taste is not so disagreeable as might be supposed, but the effect on the tyro is a sense of thickening of the head and a disposition to take hold of something or to sit down. If the beginner quits then, that settles it, he will not try tea cigarettes again. If, however, the smoker sits down and tries a second cigarette, inhaling it deeply, then the thickening feeling passes and is succeeded by one of intense exhilaration; the nerves are stimulated until the smoker feels like flying, skirt dancing or doing something else entirely out of the common way, This stage lasts as long as the smoke continues, which is until the reaction of the stomach sets in. Words cannot describe the final effect of the tea cigarette. The agony of the opium fiend in a shadow to that of the nauseated victim of the tea cigarette. It will be hours before food can be looked at, yet the first step toward cure is a cup of tea. An hour afterward comes the craving of the tea cigarette.

Brave Volunteers.

It is gratifying to know that if we had declared war with Great Britain we might have counted upon the alliance of at least one Kickapoo brave and one hero of the tribe of Sacs and Foxes, for they have written to the president asking for a subvention of blankets and expressing their readiness to take the war path immediately. Such a re-enforcepoint of numbers, to be sure, but its moral significance would count for something. The isolated condition of England has of late compelled attention. > A Belated "Messenger of Spring," There is a "lengendary and popular" chestnut tree in the garden of the Tuileries which about this time in watched with affectionate interest by all Parisian journalists. What the legend is or why the tree is popular very few people know but it is said to have been planted on March 20, 1680, and is usually referred to in the newspapera at this season of the year as the "fidele messager du printemps." As a matter of cold fact, it is at present as naked as the statues that surround it and no more betokens springtime than an outbreak of influenza; but the journalistic eye is on it all the same and it will blossom in the papers if nowhere else,-Paris Messenger.
