There are two reasons, either one of which ought to be conclusive with Powder to be, as I believe, the greatest w. O. COX, every American citizen.

First:-The trip from Denver to Utah via Rio Grande Western, "Great Salt Lake Route," is the grandest to be Dr. Kay's Lung Balm for coughs, colds found anywhere on the continent. No European trip of equal length can compare with it in variety and grandeur of scenery and wealth of novel interest.

Second:-You should go because, when you have made this wonderful trip, you will find Utah at the end of it-Utah, one of the world's famous spots, and a land of gold, silver, copper, iron and City Ticket Office, coal; of lofty mountains and fertile vaileys; of vineyards, fruits and flowers. Salt Lake City, the capital, is of great 300,000.00 interest on account of its historical and Thermal Springs, Warm Springs, Sulphur Springs, Sanitarium, Parks, Drives, Canyons and the most healthful climate on earth. Great Salt Lake, 68 1-20. with the new and beautiful Saltair Beach Resort, of Moorish design, has no equal in America. Write to F. A. WILD HORSES IN AUSTRALIA. The Methods Employed to Capture These

As a rule the herds number from ten to twelve, made up of mares and one stallion will allow another stallion in occur between horses owing to this. The beaten males, after being expelled, ioin herds exclusively of stallions. On any herd being sighted by hunters, a good idea can generally be formed by he experienced man as to which route the animals will take in their way to the rugged hills, for which they invariably make when disrupted. A scheme is mapped out to cut them off, if possible, and the party scatters, each to take up his allotted position. Of course, while doing this, every advantage is taken of the natural inequalities of the ground, so as to escape observation. When the alarm is given, however, all need for caution is at an end, and each hunter puts his steed to full gallop. The stallion, the head of the herd, boldly comes out to meet him and endeavors to distract attention from the

In some rare instances he is lassoed and captured at once, but he generally manages to rejoin his wives, which by this time have trooped into single file, with his favorite mare in the lead. Should the herd be turned and get into difficulties, the stallion takes up his position in the van, and the great object is to cut him off from the rest. Should this be accomplished, both he and the mares become confused, and tural resources than any other state. or three per man. Instances have been the lassoers often manage to take two violent jerk to the animal's tail when When this quarry is brought down, lasso, the rider jumps from his steed, whips a "blinder" (a handkerchief is used when there is nothing else procurable) over the prostrate horse's eyes and straps up one of his forelegs se-

> Should a man be so unlucky as to capture a branded horse or a foal running with a branded mare, he cannot keep it, but all others become the property of the hunter, and after they undergo a rough-and-ready process of breaking in, are sold at prices ranging from 25s. to £25. The latter figure is, however, seldom reached, unless in the case of exceptionally fine stallions. Great numbers of these horses die from starvation in the winter time, but still the herds show no signs of diminution.

A Fox's Fatal Leap. Two months or more ago a Bloomfield man brought Fred Dow, the Church street groceryman, a young fox. It was placed in a box in the store cellar unpopularity. Many agents sell 15 copies til thoroughly "wonted" thereafter being allowed the run of that miscellacount is given of the massacres of the neously-filled apartment, being fed from the cracker barrels and meat stalls above. It had come to be quite at home, had grown big and fat and was the pet of all who had occasion to go into the cellar. The fox is naturally drowsy during the daytime, and, although the door was always open by day, it never had attempted to peer out into the big world that was only a couple of bounds away. If it had cared to do so by night the closed door prevented. Saturday had been a busy day and the tired attendants forgot to close ping away, whose ambition is at its the cellar door. Just when the fox discovered the oversight of course no one and the senses dulled, when you feel knows, but it must have been before dyspeptic, and lose your self-respect, the outside door to the apartment house above the store was closed for the night. Early yesterday morning, while the delivery wagons were being loaded, a queer "swishing" noise was heard, and before the boys had time to look up the fox landed on the pavement among and vigor coursing through your sys- them, its breath being knocked too far tem; you will feel the old-time grip in away ever to return.
