

LAUGHED INTO THE GRAVE.

The Singular Death of a Young Girl From Hysteria.

A young lady who resided on Madison street received a letter recently from a relative in Nashville, Tenn., says the New York Herald, which contained an account of a peculiar case of hysteria which resulted in the death of a 16-year-old girl.

The victim was the daughter of Hiram Wathen, a prosperous farmer, who lives a few miles south of Nashville. She has been suffering from a complication of nervous disorders for several years and frequently had attacks of hysteria which invalidated her for several days at a time.

An older brother visited Nashville on the day of her death with several companions and returned home in the evening considerably under the influence of liquor.

The young girl began to laugh at his misadventures and continued about twenty minutes. At the end of that time her mother rebuked her. She endeavored to control herself, but failed, and then made signs to her mother that she was in pain.

By the time the latter arrived the girl was rolling upon the floor screaming and shouting. She was completely exhausted, and when convulsions, which caused all of the muscles in her body and limbs to twitch in a shocking manner, set in she became unconscious.

The doctor made a thorough examination and pronounced her case to be one of extraordinarily violent hysteria, and said that had he been summoned when the singular attack first began he would have been able to have saved the girl.

He insisted on viewing the Autopsy of His Wife's Body. A coroner sees many curious sights.

He not only wanted the autopsy, but he wanted to see it performed. The body was placed on the table and the doctor began work. The husband watched every movement very closely.

Finally the liver and the heart were exposed, and the heart was found to be greatly enlarged. The husband, more deeply interested than ever, stepped forward and took hold of the heart with his fingers.

Overreached Himself. A shoe manufacturer in New England, becoming dissatisfied with the efforts of his salesmen, started over the route of one of them (without his knowledge) to see what he could do in the way of selling goods.

Believe in Rain-Making. In Upper Burma they have faith in the efficacy of rain-making expeditions. A while ago Lieutenant Pitcher was ordered to ascend a hill 1,500 feet high and fire off two heavy charges of gun cotton of thirty and forty pounds each.

Advice to a Young Man. "What do you say to a lady when you are at a ball?" asked a young gentleman who went to a ball for the first time.

SCARCITY OF WHALEBONE

Will the Coming Woman be Able to Secure Any of It?

Arctic whalers made a remarkable advance last week to $3.25 a pound for choice quality, says the New York World. This is the highest price remembered by the trade. Fully 10,000 pounds were sold at $4.70 to $5 a pound, and the commoner kinds, such as Japan sea and northwestern, brought $4.15 to $4.35 a pound.

There are many useful substitutes, but none seem to satisfactorily fill the place for best purposes of poor Greenland baleen, or as the witty dressmaker remarks: "Nothing else has such staying excellence."

Worth and a host of foreign and American gown contractors of renown are extremely particular in selecting this material, and cannot be induced to experiment with the best imitations.

Nowhere, save in the wilderness beyond the frontiers of civilization, can such perfect privacy be enjoyed as in a large city. The denizens of a busy metropolis have enough to do in attending to their own affairs.

A Joke is No Joke. Writers and censors in Russia do not see where the joke comes in, but have an altogether serious time of it. According to a letter from St. Petersburg a Russian newspaper published and the press censor overlooked a joke about the czar recently.

A Very High Church. Phillips Brooks was telling of European travels. "Did you climb Mont Blanc?" asked a lady of high church tendencies.

Afraid He Would Miss Him. There was a pistol duel between Smith and Jones. Jones fired and missed Smith, whereupon Smith raised his weapon to take aim and said pleasantly to his opponent:

The World's Population. Europe's population on Jan. 1 was 380,200,000. The population of each of the other continents was estimated as follows: Asia, 850,000,000; Africa, 127,000,000; Australia, 4,780,000; North America, 89,250,000; South America, 36,420,000; polar regions, 800,000. The total would then be 1,787,600,000.

He Was a Good Little Boy. He must have been a very bright boy, a very bright little boy, who said to his mother: "I wish a lion would eat me up."

Practice versus Preaching. He taught his wife the sin of dress with eloquence and power. And then played billiards all day long at sixty cents an hour.
