

A MONKEY'S LANGUAGE.

The Linguistic Accomplishment of a Little Capuchin. In the room where the monkeys are kept by a dealer in Washington there is a cage containing a young, white-faced rhesus of more than ordinary intelligence.

A QUEER SIGHT IN A BIG CITY.

What a Chicago Crowd Found to Entreat. It was at an hour when the intersection of Clark and Randolph streets was a jam of people, street cars, busses, carriages and wagons.

CHARLEY'S PRECIOUS HAIR.

Heartless Deception of a Trusting Maid by a Bald Young Man. He had the air of a man of the world. His dress was becoming and not too showy.

The Confessional Not Necessary.

In a lecture in Queen's Hall, Montreal, recently, Father Chiniquy said: "While a priest in the confessional, I was tormented by the voice of some one crying shame upon me for obeying the order of the Church of Rome by asking questions of women and maidens which could not fail to pollute the hearer."

HE'S A JOLLY GOOD FELLOW.

Origin of a Tune Associated With a Popular Song. The tune to which this song is sung is "Marlborough," which was once a national air in France. In "Marlborough" the death and burial of Queen Anne's great captain are burlesqued, and, in what some French critics have considered it scathing satire, the disasters of Blenheim and Ramillies are believed to have been avenged.

VILLAINS REAL AND UNREAL.

How a Deep-Dyed Criminal Witnessed a Melodrama. "I was shadowing one of the worst ruffians on the East side," said a New York detective the other day. "He was a leading light in one of those groups of thugs which make certain parts of the city unsafe for drunken men to wander into after dark."

A SHREWD FOOL.

Perhaps Sandy Was Not so Simple as He Was Supposed to Be. An old gentleman, a resident of New York city, and who in his early manhood visited Sir Walter Scott at Abbotsford, tells the following story apropos of the Wizard of the North:

Bear in Mind

The fact that to Chicago and the east, the Burlington Route offers the best possible service.

The "Vestibled Flyer," which leaves the Union depot, Omaha, daily at 4:45 p. m., is a marvel of beauty, comfort and speed. It is composed of Pullman Sleeping Cars, (which are easily the peer of any similar cars in the world), elegant Reclining Chair Cars, (seats free), comfortable day coaches and the famous Burlington Dining Cars. W. F. Vail, City Ticket Agent, 1223 Farnam Street, Omaha.

A Grand Mission Field

than any region known in the populous east exists in the heart of the continent far to the westward. It is a field intended to make a new man of you, to develop your appreciation of the glory of this country of ours, and is reached only by the great Union Pacific, the Original Overland Route.

TO HORSE BUYERS.

A Tip That May Be Useful When You Are at an Auction. "Let me give you a tip," said a prominent horse dealer to a prospective buyer yesterday. "When you go to a sale with the intention of picking up a bargain, read your catalogue carefully before you buy."

Waiting on Themselves.

The county farm is raising two calves that are being brought up to help themselves, and as a consequence, require less care. They are kept in the barn, near a well, from which water is taken by means of a common cistern pump.

Going to Extremes.

Mrs. Newwed: "My dear, as you said we must do everything possible to economize, I have been at work turning my old dresses, and I can make most of them do another year. It won't take me over six weeks to get through, and then I'll reshape and retrim my old bonnets."

Managing a Boy Baby.

Tired Woman (in a railway car)—"Please, sir, will you please hold my baby awhile? He's crying so I can do nothing with him."

Male Passenger—"Um— what is he crying for?"

"Nothing at all, sir."

"Well—er—what good will it do for me to take him?"

"Then he'll have something to cry about."

"Oh, he will?"

"Yes, sir; he'll be crying for me then, and the longer you hold him the louder he'll yell."

"I presume so."

"Yes, sir. Then, when he is real sure it is only me he is crying for I'll take him and he'll stop."—Good News.

Told of the Duke of Clarence.

Prince Albert Victor, when a boy, wrote to his grandmamma for supplies, and the autograph letter of denial and advice which he received in return was sold by the youthful spendthrift for thirty shillings. When he was at Cambridge Dr. Thomson of Trinity showed him, among other pictures, a portrait of himself. "Another old master?" the prince inquired, with apparent innocence. At another time, in making a speech at a sexcentenary banquet, he gravely declared that the only thing which marred the pleasure in being present on that occasion was the reflection that he would not be present at the next.—Argonaut.

A Lesson in Pronunciation.

Some what distinguished elocutionist used to say that the opening line of Tennyson's "In Memoriam" was a grand test for the pronunciation of the letter o. The line is:

"Strong Son of God, immortal love,"

Here are four sounds of o. In "of" it has one sound, in "immortal" another, in "Son" and "love" another, and in "strong" and "God" another.

A nice ear might seek to distinguish between its sound in Son and love. Very little attention is paid to this subject of pronunciation in schools, and we have small sympathy with those who think that it is affectation to try to speak correctly. Instead of objecting because teachers try to show our children what correct usage requires we ought to be very glad of it.

Well, He Has a Poetic License.

Twynn—The Chinese had the bicycle long ago.

Triplet—Oh, yes; if there is any thing the Chinese didn't have long ago I'd like to know what it is.

Twynn—But this is true. You know Tennyson speaks of a cycle of Cathay.—Jester.

Pictures in Sulphur.

In demonstrating that sulphur melted at about 115 degrees can be cooled in paper, a chemist recently happened to use a lithographed card, of which the edges were turned up. Upon taking away the card he discovered that the lithographed characters were clearly and distinctly impressed upon the cooled surface of the sulphur, and remained after hard friction and washing. By repeated experiments he was able to get very fine results.—The Great Divide.

No Grounds for Complaint.

Hostetter McGinnis—The safety matches I bought here are no good. Clerk—What's the matter with them? "They don't burn. You can't light one of them to save your life."

"Well, you can't get any better safety matches than those, can you?"—Texas Siftings.
