

NOT DOWN ON THE BILLS

Dramatic Incident at the World's Fair Fourth.

MAYOR HARRISON'S BY PLAY.

Waving Aloft the Sword of the Hero of New Orleans, He Enacts a Fledge From the Multitude Present—Other World's Fair News.

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, CHICAGO, July 5.—The World's fair was ablaze with patriotism. It was the centre theme which the patriotic pulse of a liberty loving people, enjoying the manifold blessings of a land of the free and a home of the brave, beat through the nation. There were many in the White City whose minds went back to that glorious Fourth of July of the centennial year in the Quaker City, when commencing with the tolling of the midnight hour the patriotic pulses of a people ran riot for more than half a day. Men and women, old and young, native and alien marched almost without a break up Chestnut street and saluted with bare heads and ringing shouts the old landmark of liberty in Independence square; when Sherman and Sheridan and Don Pedro, all now numbered with those that have gone, stood arm in arm before the old liberty bell and bowed their heads in reverence and honor. Seventeen years have elapsed since those stirring scenes were enacted, and the metropolis, the second World's exposition of the republic, gave occasion for a still greater demonstration of love of flag and country, one which in its magnitude and impressiveness kept pace with the growth of the country in the intervening years.

The Mayor Awoke Their Enthusiasm. A very dramatic incident occurred during Mayor Harrison's address. Stepping toward the table, he picked up a small bunch of red and white carnations, and waving them in the face of the multitude, he exclaimed: "Here are flowers from the grave of Thomas Jefferson, a mighty hero of the days of American independence." Then laying down the flowers, and picking up a sword with a magnificent gilded scabbard, he continued, with increased dramatic effect, as he waved it around his head: "Here is the sword of another great defender of America, Andrew Jackson."

A great shout went up from the throng, and at this moment big raindrops commenced to fall, the sky having been gradually overcast from the commencement of the exercises.

"It is going to rain," shouted the mayor, "but do you think that our forefathers who died for you cared for the rain?"

A mighty shout of "No!" came in response.

"The supreme moment is at hand," continued the mayor—whose watch denoted that it was within a minute of noon. For a moment the multitude stood breathless. Venerable Mrs. Stafford, shaking and trembling in every limb, uprose and grasped the cord of the flag pole.

Unfurled the Sacred Emblem.

"The moment is here," shouted the mayor. A roar of cannon and then, with palsied fingers, the old lady drew the cord toward her and Paul Jones's flag, old and faded, but still a priceless emblem of liberty, went up to the top of the pole in full view of the throng. Simultaneously Mayor Harrison again grasped the Jackson sword, and brandishing it over his head, shouted aloud toward the flag: "Here is the sword of our forefathers who died for you. It is the sword of our forefathers who died for you. It is the sword of our forefathers who died for you."

Forward to the stand, like the roar of a tidal wave sweeping inland, came the voices of tens of thousands of resolute men, and the weaker voices of thousands of the gentler sex, "Yes! Yes! We swear! We swear!" From the balconies of the structures, behind and before, and to the north and south, down from the dome of the Administration building came like an echo the deep, earnest roar, "Yes! Yes! We swear! We swear!" Still the mayor stood with the sword pointing toward the flag like Ajax defying the lightning. The moment was dramatic and intense, one of those moments that are experienced but once in a lifetime. There was not a man or woman in the vast throng, but at a call from country, would have marched at the moment to the defense of the flag.

Sounded the Columbian Bell.

Meanwhile another interesting feature of the program had been in progress. Just as the flag was hoisted, Mrs. Madge Morris Wagner of San Diego, Cal., and then Miss Minnie F. Mickle, presided the electric button upon the president's table. The Western Union had connected a wire from the stand to the foundry in Troy, N. Y., where the new liberty bell was recently cast, and immediately thereafter the following message was received: OFFICE CLINTON & MENELLY BELL CO., TROY, N. Y. To William O. McDowell, Chicago: The Columbian liberty bell was sounded at the instant you closed the circuit at noon of this grand independence day, and this ringing was followed by the playing of national and patriotic airs on the grand chime made by us for St. Patrick's cathedral, New York City. Thousands upon thousands of patriotic citizens have called to see this historic bell, many coming long distances. The glorious day, bright and clear, seems to have been granted as a special favor to liberty lovers. You can announce to the 250,000 friends who have made such splendid offerings to this bell, that their gifts have crystallized into grand form, and that the new liberty bell has been set ringing to aid peace and good will throughout the whole world.

dark, and by the time the display of fireworks began the thirty acres of ground in front of the Grand plaza and to the east of Manufacturer's building was a dense mass of spectators. The fireworks, which included thousands of rockets, bombs, floating stars, various set pieces and other notable devices, were magnificent. Both electric fountains were going smoothly, and the immense search lights on the tops of the various buildings gave added brilliancy to the beautiful scene. The day, which is noticeable for almost double the attendance of the largest previous day, closed with great cheering for the Fourth at the World's fair as the people started for their homes.

It is Feared That of the One Hundred and Forty-five Men in the Mine, None Will be Saved—The Paris Riots—Foreign News.

LONDON, July 5.—Great excitement has been caused in Thornhill, Yorkshire, by an explosion that occurred in Ingram's colliery. One hundred and thirty miners are entombed, and it is feared that the loss of life will be heavy. Rescuing parties are hard at work, and four bodies have been recovered and brought to the surface.

About the middle of the evening the gas had cleared sufficiently to allow the work of rescue to proceed, but only for a short time. About 119 are supposed to have been killed. The men and boys missing number 145. The bodies were found lying in heaps and many were brought to the surface. Unremitting efforts are being made to reach the few miners who may still be alive.

STUDENTS STILL RIOTING.

Paris Police Unable to Disperse the Mobs.

PARIS, July 5.—Riotous demonstrations were made by students at St. Germain des Pres and the Rue Jacob, near the hospital La Charite. The police were unable to disperse the mob. Eventually a large detachment of cavalry charged and scattered the students. The municipal councillors have decided to send a deputation to the funeral of M. Neger, the clerk who was killed in the encounter between the police and the students in the Latin quarter on Saturday.

The disorder in the streets increases hourly. The whole district bounded by the Boulevard St. Germain, the river and the Rue de Seine is in an uproar. Students with crowds of roughs fill the open spaces. Omnibuses and trams are stopped by the mobs, and the passengers are turned out and the vehicles are upset. On the Boulevard St. Germain Quai Voltaire and the Rue St. Peres traffic has been suspended. The Rue St. Peres has been barricaded. Pedestrians are maltreated. The charity hospital has been surrounded with curriers to keep off the students, who threatened to attack the building. The ministry of public works, the marine department and the echole des beaux arts are guarded by militia. Skirmishing is reported intermittently from the Rue Jacob, the Voltaire Quai and the Play St. Germain. The students are trying also to repeat the scenes in the neighborhood of the palais de justice and procure depots.

At 11:30 the whole district between the Rue St. Peres and the Colloge de France, two blocks east of the Boulevard St. Michael, was full of riot. The critical situation is complicated by the demonstration of the workingmen. Three thousand of them met in the Labor exchange and decided to remain in the building all night to prevent the authorities from executing their threats to close it.

The names of the 20 men severely injured in the riots of the night have not been reported. Twelve of the injured are in hospitals. M. Lese, prefect of police, tendered his resignation to the government, but the government declined to accept it until after the restoration of order.

At 1 o'clock the report from the Latin quarter said that most of the windows were broken, the lamp posts were lying across the streets and broken furniture and half smashed vehicles lay there on the pavements. A police brigadier is said to have been severely wounded with a revolver.
