wild work

It is passing strange that this great and wealthy nation must hire the pope of Rome to educate the wards of our nation. Must the people of this free and entightened country hire a forelgner to educate our children?

If the United States might only reserve the right to mark out the line of study to be pursued by their own children, even then it would be bad enough: but to turn over $300,000 annually to enough in the country to become the pope of Rome to educate our children in any way he may choose is simply abominable; and yet that is just what the current Indian appropriation the house this week. It appropriates about $300,000 to the Romish hierarchy to educate Indian children, for which money the hierarchy is not expected to give any account whatever!

In these Indian Romish schools scarcely anything but catechism, prayers and hail-marys is taught. The older pupils are put into industrial schools, so-called, that is, they are made to be very industrious at some hard work, either on the farm or at some manufacturies, whose products go to enrich the coffers of the pope.

In any event these pupils are never taught anything that could, or ever did, make them independent and selfsustaining citizens. They are simply Romanized and made to be blindly obedient to the pope during the balance of their lives. As well might congress make an appropriation to the pope to teach the children in the District of Columbia.
