A man came tearing into this office and stopped his paper a few weeks ago, claiming that he could not find time to read it. Since then one of his neighbors has been considerably annoyed by his borrowing the paper before it is read. As this is the only case of "stop," the man will know who is meant when he reads this item, and it is hoped will take a tumble and come in and renew his subscription, or at least wait until his neighbor has read the paper before borrowing it. - Kirkville Journal.

Again the Judge's "mental deformity" is brought to the front and discharged.

The Republican says that 282 votes were cast "for suspension of herd law," while the county records show that only 224 were cast "for suspension of herd law," and 289 "against suspension of herd law," leaving a majority of 85 for the former, as the Republican rightly quoted it on a former occasion. This does not include the 30 votes in Cottonwood precinct, "for herd law," nor the 3 "against herd law," but it does include the "suspicious 61" "for suspension of herd law" from Running Water precinct.

A Birthday Party.

The seven-teenth birthday of Miss Emelie Kroening was celebrated at the home of her sister, the Northwestern hotel, on Monday evening, the 19th. Her friends to the number of forty or over were present and spent an unusually pleasant evening. Amusing and instructing games was the order of the evening's entertainment, and many and long were the hearty laughs elicited by the remarkably amusing fines imposed for the redemption of "pawns," by judge Babcock; or from the novelty of the "chick-on game," or "scandal," or the many others engaged in. A delicious lap supper was served during the evening that was a credit to any compound of the viands for human sustenance. A great many useful and valuable presents were presented to Miss Emelie on this occasion among which were these: dress pattern, with buttons and trimmings; handkerchiefs, both linen and silk; ribbon; perfume; gold breast pin; plush card case; collar; hand painted souvenir with easel and many others. The packages and articles presented by the "Harrison Committee," bore, in the selection, the trace of persons experienced in combining the useful with the ornamental, and the donors are entitled to credit, in that respect, for their selections.

We would Like

- How nine men can cast 61 legal votes. -To know who runs the wheelbarrow express. -To see the B. & M. R. R. Come through Harrison. -To know if this weather isn't more like spring weather than fall. -To know when the new lumber yard is going to commence business. -To know if that really was a B. & M. man that bought Mr. Parish's claim. -To know why so many of our correspondents failed to arrive this week. -To know of a kinder hearted or better natured Irishman than Pat. Walsh. -To know of a person that is more ready to accommodate than Billy Belden. -To know of a more old-fashioned, comfortable, home-like place than beside Mr. Belden's fire-place. -To know if some one wasn't duck hungry at the party from the way they repeatedly called for that fowl. -To know how the great "I am" is progressing in his efforts to secure Mr. Guthrie's discharge by the Buffalo Gap Lumber Co. -To know who has borrowed some of Thomas Reidy's lumber without his consent. The person will please return it at an early date.

What It Is Coming to.

If the causes for which people commit suicide increase in trivialty, we shall expect soon to read newspaper items like the following:

A man named Gopherim shot himself yesterday because a pair of shoe-strings that he had bought did not fit him.

John Smith stubbed his toe as he was going into the house the other night, and the circumstances so worked upon his unusually sensitive nature that he took an overdose of Rough on Rats.

"I cannot survive this disgrace," cried a young and handsome stranger on Fifth avenue yesterday, when a lady he had never known or even seen before passed him without speaking. Then he went down to the Brooklyn bridge and jumped off.

Wives cannot be too careful. A woman on Hester street, who takes in washing to support her husband, incautiously requested him to bring in some kindling wood. He went out without saying a word, but the poor woman says she never can forget the look he gave her to her dying day. Rendered uneasy by his prolonged absence she hastened out and found his lifeless body on the woodhouse floor. He had blown his brains out with the saw-buck. -Texas Siftings.

Mr. John Nolan secured a fine young bull dog while at Van Tassel one day recently, and brought the animal to Harrison where his wide jaws, short tail and brind color attracted the admiration of Otto Tietze, the result of which was that Tietze started home with the dog and Nolan with $10 of what had formerly been Tietze's money, and both were happy until the man with the dog met one of W. R. Smith's sons who informed him that the dog was theirs and proceeded to take the animal home. An amicable settlement will probably follow as the parties are innocent of intentional wrong.

Don't Forget

That we want several several more correspondents. Some may think they are not competent; that a person must be able to write and spell every thing correctly. Not so. Send us the news as best you can and we will correct it and make it readable. If not already so. Try it once or twice.
