

velvet, with its soft ermine trimmings the tunic, the necklace, the bracelets, had all been exchanged for a simple grey serge robe and a long thick veil, which was now pushed back from her girlish face.

"Oh! Elizabeth, Elizabeth!" exclaimed the organist, and he sank at her feet and gazed wistfully into her troubled eyes.

"Why are you here, Bertram?" asked the princess.

I came to bid you farewell, and as I dared not venture into the palace, I gained access to the cathedral, and having taken the vacant seat of the dead organist, let my music breathe out the adieu I could not trust my lips to utter."

A low moan was the only answer, and he continued:

"You are married on the morrow?" "Yes," sobbed the girl. "Oh, Bertram, what a trial it will be to stand at yonder altar, and take upon me the vows that will doom me to a living death."

"Think of me," rejoined the organist. "Your royal father requests me to play at your wedding, and I have promised to be here. If I were your equal I could be the bridegroom instead of the organist; but a poor musician must give you up."

"It is raining body and soul under to part with you," said the girl. "To-night I may tell you this—tell how much I loved you, but in a few hours it will be always a sin. Go go, and God bless you."

She waved him from her as if she would banish him while she had the power to do so, and he—how was it with him. He rose to leave her, then came back, held her to his heart in a long embrace, and with a half-smothered farwell left her.

The next morning dawned in cloudless splendor, and at an earlier hour the cathedral was thrown open, and the sexton began to prepare for the brilliant wedding. Flame colored flowers nodded by the wayside, from the trees, and lay in light heaps upon the ground, and the ripe wheat waved like a golden sea, and berries dropped in red and purple clusters over rocks along the Rhine.

At length the palace gates were opened, and the royal party appeared, escorting the Princess Elizabeth to the cathedral where the marriage was solemnized. It was a brave pageant; far brighter than the unadorned blossoms and foliage were the tufts of plumes which floated from stately heads, and festal robes that streamed over the housings of superb steeds. But the Princess, mounted on a snow white palfrey and clad in snow white velvet, looked pale and sad; and when on nearing the church, she heard a gush of organ music, which, though jubilant in sound, struck on her ear like a funeral knell, she trembled and would have fallen to the ground had not a page supported her. A few more moments afterward, she entered the cathedral. There, with her retinue, stood the royal bridegroom, whom she had never before seen. But her eyes roved from him to the organ loft, where she expected to see the mysterious organist. He was gone, and she was obliged to return the graceful bow of the king to whom she was betrothed from motives of policy. Mechanically she knelt at the altar—mechanically listened to the services and made the responses. Then her husband drew her to him in a convulsive embrace, and whispered:

"Elizabeth! my queen! look up!" Trembling in every limb, she obeyed. Why did those dark eyes thrill her so? Why did that smile bring a glow to her cheek? Ah, though the king wore the royal purple, and many a jeweled order glittered on his breast, he seemed the same humble person who had been employed to teach her organ music, and had taught her the love of love.

"Elizabeth," murmured the monarch, "Bertram Hoffman the organist, and King Oscar are one. Forgive my stratagem. I wished to marry you, but I would not drag you to the altar an unwilling bride. Your father was in the secret."

While tears of joy rained from her eyes, the new made queen returned her husband's fond kiss, and for once two hearts were made happy by a royal marriage.

Emperor William's Income.
Epoch: William II. has no fixed salary as emperor of Germany, but there is about a million dollars that he can use if necessary. As king of Prussia, however, he has a civil list amounting to $3,550,000; but the taste for travel and other expenses incurred in the interest of the empire necessitates, it appears, an increase of revenue. So when the reichstag renews a proposal will be made to add several millions of marks to the imperial civil list. The emperor's recent journey to Vienna and Rome cost about $200,000. Among the presents that he distributed along his route were eighty diamond rings, thirty diamond and emerald necklaces, fifty scarf pins, thirty gold watches and chains, six scarves studded with diamonds and emeralds and a hundred boxes of cigars.

Lucy Parsons says that she will not marry.
Dr. Abernethy was once called in to attend a man who had a somewhat stormy altercation with his better half, and found the poor man with his face all bleeding and marked with the points of her finger-nails. The worthy doctor could not help remarking with the woman upon her conduct. "Madame," he said, "are you not ashamed of yourself, treating your husband like this—your husband, who is the head of the house—the head of all—in fact, your head, madame?" "Well, doctor," returned the virago, "and am I not at liberty to scratch my own head?"—Chambers' Journal.

Defenses Can't Be Cured
By local application, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; since cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Finding a "Lost Dog."
Every day you see one or more "lost dog" advertisements in the newspapers. If owners didn't love their dogs they wouldn't go to the expense of advertising for them. Most of these dogs have been stolen. The thief sells them to somebody else. Then his "pal" goes to the rightful owner and obtains a handsome reward for recovering the animal. Chicago Times.

It Might Have Been.
When Jones was at the theater the other evening he sat down by mistake on his neighbor's silk hat, and reduced it to a hopeless mass of silk and paste-board. The owner was madder than half a dozen March hares. "Well, calmly observed the culprit, "I was awkward, and no mistake; but," he added, with self-complacent pity, "when I think that it might have been mine it makes me fairly shudder."—Judge.

Program of Cremation.
Since the cremation movement was inaugurated, according to statistics up to August 1, collected in Berlin, 998 bodies have been burned in Italy, 554 in Gosh, 367 in America, 28 in Sweden, 16 in England, 7 in France and 1 in Denmark. Cremation societies have 8,013 members in Sweden, 1,295 in Denmark, 1,236 in Holland, 613 in Germany, 580 in Italy, 438 in Hamburg and 390 in Switzerland. There are 20 cremation furnaces in Italy, 1 in Germany, 1 in England, 1 in Switzerland, 1 in France and 26 (?) in the United States.

The Unprofitable Retort.
"The republicans have gained the election, Elisha," said Mrs. Greening this morning, "and I think you ought to get an office. You have been in nearly every parade, and have worked hard for the party." "What could I do?" growled Mr. Greening. "Why, Elisha, does a man have to know much to be a consul, for instance?" "No; the less the better," responded the affable Elisha. "Well," remarked the faithful office to perfection, "and she smiled in a knowing way, but she lost a seal-skin saccus in that smile."—Detroit Journal.

A Remarkable Experiment.
Mr. Friesse Greene, a British photographer, has actually produced a picture with only the light issuing from his eye. Having stared for fifteen seconds at a 3,000 candle electric arc only three feet away, he closed his eye and quickly brought it over a sensitive plate at a distance of one inch. The result was a very faint but distinct image of the arc and the carbons, due, probably, to the momentary phosphorescence of the retina. A second attempt failed, and gas lights proved too weak to produce effect.

A Want of Tact.
Nanine and Alphonse were chatting merrily about the coming nuptials. "How entertaining that cottage at Dijon! my dear," she exclaimed, "and the sweet little carriage, and the silver of your mother to go on the mahogany cabinet and—?" "My life's own does not mention me," broke in Alphonse. "Ah, wait till I get through," and she patted him under the chin as she rambled on—"and the good donkey to take me to the village, and—" but Alphonse had left the room.—Time.

Childish Logic.
A noted Sunday school worker living in Kansas was once asked to talk to the children of a Sunday school on the subject of temperance. He is very earnest in the cause, and wears a bit of blue ribbon as a badge of his principles. Rising before the school he pointed to his bit of blue ribbon, and said: "Now, can any of you children give me the reason why I am not a drunkard?" There was no reply for a moment, then a childish voice in the rear of the room piped out: "Cause this is a prohibition town!"—Youth's Companion.

Mr. Claver's Lucky Draw.
Murray (Globe News, Nov. 15).
Having interviewed Mr. John T. Claver in regard to his reported lucky draw in the Louisiana State Lottery, we find that he held one-twentieth of ticket No. 49,755, which drew the first capital prize of $300,000 in the company's drawing on the 9th of October last, and that he has received his money—$15,000—on the same. Mr. Claver's ticket cost him one dollar, and was the first and only money he had ever invested in that way.

By an agreement with Mr. William Foster of this place, who also held a ticket in the institution, that if either of their tickets drew a prize they would divide equally. Mr. Foster receives one-half the amount.

Mr. Claver and Mr. Foster are both well respected citizens of this vicinity, and whatever may be said pro or con of the Lottery itself, this amount of money will elevate them from moderate to well-to-do circumstances, and it is to be hoped that it will be invested in a way that will give it circulation in this city and community.

A new double-pointed nail is the invention of an ingenious woman. Nearly 20,000 men have been naturalized in New York city this year.

The oldest and largest tree in the world is a chestnut near the foot of Mt. Etna. The London Telegraph got 2,200 letters on "Is Marriage a Success."

There is a charming elasticity about a girl of eighteen springs. Irishmen of Minneapolis will erect a bank and call it the "Irish-American Bank."

A nettle thread sixty miles long only weighed 23 pounds. Lucy Parsons says that she will not marry.

Two Ways of Putting It.
Dr. Abernethy was once called in to attend a man who had a somewhat stormy altercation with his better half, and found the poor man with his face all bleeding and marked with the points of her finger-nails. The worthy doctor could not help remarking with the woman upon her conduct. The Greenland Expedition.
Dr. Nansen, the Danish explorer, and five companions, have succeeded in their attempt to cross Greenland, but the scientific results of the trip cannot yet be told. The party left their vessel in latitude 65 degrees on July 17, with the east coast in sight, but were twelve days reaching land over the pack ice. They crossed the narrow part of Greenland, far south of Nordenfjeld's attempted route, and reached Godthaab October 4, where, being too late for the last ship, they will remain until spring.

A Grave Mistake.
Druggist (playfully squinting some jockey club on Brown's coat)—"There, Brown, you're a whole flower garden all by yourself." Brown (in alarm)—"Great Scott! Man, do you know what you've done?" Druggist—"Nothing serious, I hope." Brown—"Serious? Why you've saturated me with jockey club, and my wife never uses anything but heliotrope."—New York Sun.

Lo as a Wood-Worker.
Carpentry was the trade of the American aborigines—Indians and mound builders. Mr. H. F. McLeod, of the Smithsonian institution, states that the tent poles of the Sioux Indians even now show pretty specimens of work, and the Moqui Indians, since long before the landing of Columbus, have known how to mortise timber, to make ladders, and to swing doors on hinges from the top. The chisel they push rather than hammer, and they work the board up and down on a fixed saw, but the results are creditable. The Aztecs made a good glass, which they used for their best cutting blades, swords, daggers, spears, saws, chisels and axes. They sharpened these by cleaving off the dull edge.

Offensive breath vanishes with the use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. A Rochester paper speaks of a tramp looking as seedy as a watermelon.

Leave hope behind, All ye who enter here! So ran the dire warning which Dante read on the portals of the Inferno. So runs the cruel verdict of your friends if you are overtaken by the first symptoms of that terrible disease, consumption. "Leave hope behind! Your days are numbered!" And the struggle against death is given up in despair. But while there is life, there is hope! Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has cured hundreds of cases worse than yours; and it will cure you, if taken in time. But delay is dangerous. No power can restore a wasted lung; the "Golden Medical Discovery," however, can and will arrest the disease.

A grandmother only twenty-five years of age is the chief curio in Hancock, Ind. Tennyson in his exquisite poem, dreams of a long procession of lovely women of ages past. This is all very well, but the laureate would have done the world a greater service if he had only told the women of the present how they could improve their health and enhance their charms. This he might easily have done by recommending the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Health is the best friend of beauty, and the innumerable ills to which women are peculiarly subject, its worst enemies. Long experience has proven that the health of woman and the "Favorite Prescription" walk hand in hand, and are inseparable. It is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturer, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.
