Dated July I, 1891. M. GAYHART,

Communicated. EDITOR JOURNAL:-In reply to the edisocial in the Herald of the 4th just. I wish to demonstrate that the Herald's statement in regard to the fee for the defense in the Coker trial is decidedly il-+ Some parties have wanted the aulogical and misleading. This is shown when the Herald quotes the Statute in reference to the matter. The language of the Statute as given by it is as fol-"No bill, claim or account shall be al lowed by the board until the said bill, claim or account has first been examined and allowed by the court before whom said trial was had."

The Statute plainly says that the bill must be allowed by the court before whom the trial was had. The supreme court has decided that the county commissioners have no discretion in the matter and that their duty is purely to carry out the command of the court.

As required by the Statute above quoted the court before whom the trial was had endorsed on the claim bill of Chas. E. Holmes the following:

"The sum of one hundred twenty-five dollars is allowed for the the within described services.
M. P. KINKAID, Judge."

As the law of Nebraska imposes this duty upon the court, of what avail to the attorney that he should "stand in" with the county board? The fact is the county board had nothing to do with the matter except to order the warrant drawn for the claim as allowed by the drawn for the claim as allowed by the court. Suppose the commissioners had ordered a warrant drawn for a smaller amount. The case would have been appealed to the district court, a court which had already rendered judgment in the matter, and which would have nothing to do but to confirm his own ecision. Surely the supposition of the Herald is wrong.

In regard to the size of the fee the taxpayers should remember that the actorpayers should remember that the actor-ney for the defense in the Coker case was employed from early in November until the February term of court. For the amount of labor involved and the ex-penses incurred the fee surely is not
