Editors may Come and Editors may go, But the Policy is Just the Same.

In the last issue of the Herald Commissioners Green and Knott are treated to a lampooning because that paper was not given the county printing. A few weeks ago when the name of the present editor first appeared at the head of the columns of that paper he stated in his "salutatory" that he would not stoop to mud-alinging. All went well for a few weeks unter that paper failed to get the county printing and then the two old members of the board were attacked by the Herald, and the argument used was the same as has always been the policy of that paper and consisted chiefly of ame-calling.

Within less than the twelve months last past that paper has been under four different editors, all but one of whom used the same tactics and that one who was the exception remained as editor but a few weeks, and it is clearly indicated that no matter whose mame appears as editor of the Herald, the management and sontrol of the paper is in the same lands that it always has been. That paper must have a fight on its bands or it cannot live. The only demand for its existence is to keep up a turmoil, to the detriment of the town, the county and the general prosperity.

The Herrid generously offers space for the Herald simply remarked, "That shows who owns the Herald."

-The work for a mill is still going on The work for a mill is still going on.

The party with whom negotiations were pending was evidently looking for a snap and has been dropped, but correspondence is being had with other parties and some of them will likely accept the proposition. A mill at Harrison will prove a good investment and some one will be found to put one up before another cropiss ready for markst. Grammercy Items.

This is cold enough for winter.

Big snow and good crops this year.
We think it will pay the farmers to sow large quantities of small grain.
Mr. J. H. Brown has been on the sick list, but is getting along nicely now.
Mr. G. H. Turner has got his cattle up and he expects to feed now as long as the and he expects to feed now as long as the winter lasts.

We learn that Sanford Shores has got a house on his claim. Sanford says he expects to plaster it up in good shape

Some people say it never rains in Sioux county, but they can't say it never saows for this is the thirteenth snow we've had this winter. Look out for big crops this

As corn continues to go down the scale in price it will be conceded that a bunch of well-bred steers is about as good a form of corn orib as one can devise, for the various conditions that confront the farmer that lives a long way from mar ket. On an average it obtains for him a better figure than anything else.
