Tarpaulins at the harness shop.

I carry a full line of farm machinery.
G. H. TURNER.

Sioux county has seen its hard times and is now on the highway of prosperity.

Sanford Shores is doing the plastering on the new school house in district No. 31.

Last Saturday morning the snow was fully five inches deep, but it had all disappeared before the sun went down.

Robert Wilson expects his brother and family here in the near future. They will come to make Sioux county their home.

Geo. H. Turner has secured a contract for furnishing a large number of dressed beaves for use at Fort Robinson. He ships about three times a week.

J. H. Cook and Commissioner Green took a lot of fruit trees out yesterday to plant on their farms. A pretty thorough test will be made in tree growing in this locality this season.

We are in receipt of a copy of Science which contains an illustrated article by Prof. E. H. Barbour descriptive of the "Devil's Corkscrews" found in this locality, in which Prof. Barbour is so much interested. Just what the corkscrew formations are has not been determined but it is quite likely that the investigation will be continued until it is properly closed.

We are frequently asked in regard to what are called the "subscription laws." Some publishers have a fashion of sending their paper to people who do not order it and after a while ask for pay. The article from Printers' Ink which appears in another column covers the ground pretty fully, and is as authentic as any information obtainable on the subject.

From White River precinct it is reported that the small grain is looking fine. The acreage of wheat alone exceeds that of all kinds of grain combined in former years. There is also an increased acreage of oats and other small grain, but the acreage of corn will be somewhat reduced. The farmers appear to have come to the conclusion that small grain is the best paying crop for Sioux county.

For some time it has been noticed that the cut stone as well as some of the foundation of the court house was not withstanding the weather as well as it was thought it should and on examination it was found to be crumbling in many places. The fact that lead pipes have never been provided to carry off the water from the roof left it so that the foundation was liable to become undermined. It will be necessary to have the stone work pointed up and a coat of cement put on and also to have lead pipes to carry the water away from the foundation. The repairs needed will not cost to exceed two hundred dollars, and perhaps not more than half that sum, but at all events, it is necessary to have it fixed in order to prevent a much larger bill of expense. The regular meeting of the commissioners will occur in a few weeks, at which time the matter will be looked into, without doubt, for Commissioner Green was examining it on Tuesday. It is a case where the old saw "a stitch in time saves nine" will apply very nicely.

The work of surveying the new road from the valley has progressed far enough so that the grade stakes are set from the top of the hill to the point where the road reaches the water at a point about half a mile below W. R. Smith's house. Judge Barker informs us that the distance staked out is fourteen thousand, nine hundred feet. Starting at the point where the line reaches the water level and coming up the grade for the first fifteen hundred feet is five feet to each one hundred; the next eight hundred feet is a dead level, and from there to the top of the hill there is no grade which exceeds 4 feet to the hundred and much of it is less than three feet in a hundred. The new survey has a number of advantages. It does away with a number of bridges which are always a source of trouble and expense, it gets the road out of the creek bottom so that it will not be continually washing out, and it makes an easy grade and is so located that when a foot of elevation is gained it is not lost by going down a hill, but keeps working toward the top all the time. A little more work must be done in running the level and then the line will be ready for work. With that road completed it will make it so that the farmers in the valley can get the east and west roads leading to it fixed up and so have good roads on which to travel all the way to the county seat. The plan of established one good road to the trade center and then fix side roads leading to it is being advocated in the east by those who have investigated the matter, for it is found to be equally convenient and a great deal cheaper, and the building of the new road from the valley will give our people an opportunity to test the matter.

The farmers have been buying trees so liberally that Sheriff Reidy has but a few of those grown here left, and those who expect to get any of them should not delay.

Commissioner John A. Green was in town Monday and informed us that for more than a year he has not been able to hear from his son, John D. Green, who left Shelby, Iowa, in February, 1891, riding one pony and leading another. He probably had quite a sum of money with him as he had sold a lot of horses which he took from here. The horses he started to return with were branded K bar on left shoulder, and C on left jaw. Mr. Green would like to learn of his son's whereabouts. He was 22 years old, about 5 feet 10 inches tall and would weigh about 200 pounds. One of the ponies he had was a sort of blue-mouse color and the other a bay, and he used a large cowboy saddle.
