

PAINT AND POWDER.

Women Use Them and the Effect That They Produce.

here is no use talking, women do paint and powder, and the only way to do it is to accept the fact and, if possible, the cause, says the Philadelphia Times. It is not confined to the passé dame who stretches her withered hands after any girl that will give her even a glance of the youth that vanished so ago, but young girls and pretty women with complexions that need artificial enhancing are just as addicted to the use of rouge and powder puff as the elderly ogle, for whom there is some ex-ask one whose cheeks bear rosy tints against her, "why she does will bring no satisfaction, as has never yet been known a woman willing to acknowledge that any of her make-up is false. Before, one must draw their own conclusions and reason out the matter themselves.

age is used most undoubtedly for the sake of winning the admiration of the opposite sex, and there is a man who really admires the color of the lips in preference to the color of the face, and many masculines candidly admit when questioned on the subject: "Oh, we don't mind, so long as it is done artistically."

Ah, there's the rub, or rather too much of the rub, for so few women outside of beauty doctors and those having maids, realize how much they get on, causing the very marked difference between their face and their neck, which is certain to call attention to the daubing done by the unskillful hand.

Powder is as much of a part of a woman's toilet as her soap or her tooth brush is. It is not used to deceive anybody, but takes the shine off in warm weather, and at all seasons of the year gives that sweet and feminine finishing touch that has no more harm in it than when a mother uses the puff on her baby's soft skin after the bath.

Abuse of Cocaine.

Almost everything that is of use to man is capable of abuse, says the Youth's Companion. This is especially true of stimulants and sedatives. These drugs, in their elementary state, are generally violent poisons. Even tea and coffee are not exceptions to the rule. The abuse of such things consists in using them too much, or for improper purposes. Nature meant them for medicines, and used intelligently and carefully as such, they are among her best gifts to the afflicted.

Cocaine, obtained from the elementary principle of coca leaves is exceedingly valuable in minor surgical operations as a substitute for ether and chloroform; but already it is becoming fearfully abused. According to the London Lancet, approving a paper on the subject in the Journal of Mental Science, its special dangers are these: It is treacherous; it produces an early breakdown, both morally and intellectually; it is intensely poisonous and steady causes destructive tissue changes.

In chronic cocaine poisoning, general wasting appears early and develops with extreme rapidity. Convulsions also are not uncommon. In animals it is found to produce degeneration in the cells of the medulla and spinal chord, and also in the nerve cells of the heart ganglia and in the liver cells.

"The great danger of cocaine lies in the fact that it is the most agreeable and alluring of all narcotics. It causes no mental confusion, only a little more talkativeness than usual. There is no headache or nausea, and the pleasant effects are produced with a comparatively small dose; but symptoms of poisoning are rapidly developed, and within three months of the commencement of the habit there may be marked indications of degeneration, loss of memory, hallucinations and suspensions."

The author of the paper in the Journal of Mental Science, says that much harm has resulted from a recent tendency to use cocaine to break off the opium habit, and from a mistaken notion that this drug can be employed safely and advantageously for that purpose. The writer adds that cocaine is more insidious than morphine, fastens more readily upon its victim, and holds him in at least as tight a grasp.

Wanted to Be Sure.

The land lady was chopping up the turkey in the kitchen preparatory to distributing it around the table. "Now, gentlemen," she said, sticking her head in the door and addressing a long table of hungry expectants, "what part of the turkey will you have?" "Neck," spoke up the old boarder promptly. "Why," she said in surprise, "that is not a choice part."

The Reason.

Mme de Maintenon once asked Lord Stair why it was that the affairs of Government were so badly managed in France under a king and so well managed in England under a queen? "For that very reason," replied the English ambassador: "for when a man reigns, the women rule him, and when a woman reigns, she is ruled by men."

No woman trusts her husband's goodness and faithfulness to the extent that she would permit him to undertake the reform of some other woman.

JOHN L. BULLIVAN ought to go to Montana. Any new state is preferable to his present.

Spearing Salmon. Coville sportsmen are alert just now on account of the fine salmon fishing in Feather River. Harvey and Hancock were out on Monday and report excellent success. Fred Paul went down the river the other day with a big two-horse wagon to bring home the finny capture. Fred is a first-class sportsman and is willing to bet that he can hit a salmon as far as any man in the state.

I nearly days this river used to be stocked with salmon to such an extent that the Indians caught them in large numbers and dried them for winter use. Jack Crum once told the writer that in 1819 he attempted to cross the river a ford and the salmon were so numerous that they frightened him by driving between his legs, and that he could hardly get him across the river. Large numbers have been seen at the Golden Feather dam, and W. Smith has been the luckiest fisherman of the camp, he having captured it and, more than two hundred salmon during the present season at Coville Reg-ter.

Poor Spauld Professor.

The professors in the colleges of this state are miserably underpaid, often receiving no more than $200 per year. They endeavor to make a small profit on their text books, each requiring his own book to be used. These books are frequently in manuscript, or printed, or sold at un- a prices. The students also poor, resort in consequence to second-hand shops and the annual fair, where a specialty is made of college text books.

Mr. Fangle: "You used to call me your angel, Henry, but you never say so now." Mr Fangle: "No, my dear, I have found out the difference. Angels, you know, don't care anything about dress."

Voices at the telephone: "Major, will you please bring your family and take supper with us next Sunday?" Servant girl, replied back: "Master and mistress are not in at present, but they can't come to supper as it's my Sunday out."

Lily: "Dearest Sophie, do tell me what you think of my hat? Is this rose color or becoming to be?" "O yes, it is just the color for you, dear." Lily, an hour later, to the maid: "Take the rose-colored hat to the milliner's and tell her to change it to pearl gray."

The perfect woman is as beautiful as she is strong, as tender as she is sensible. She is calm, deliberate, dignified, leisurely; she is gay, graceful, sprightly, sympathetic; she is severe upon occasion, and upon occasion playful she has fancies, dreams, romances, ideas.

It is interesting to know that an intelligent hairdresser claims that blondes cannot be done away with; that blondes are essentially the bosom of civilization, and they cannot be driven away. He says that a blonde can dress more effectively, and that a well-kept blonde has ten years' advantage in the point of youthful looks.

"That unrivalled complexion," said a prominent New Yorker, alluding to a lady acquaintance, "was the result of using Garfield Tea."

GOODS WITH MERIT CAN BE SOLD.

In another column of this paper will be found the ad of Geo. Lee & Son's Lye which has been on the market only four years and yet has gone to the front so fast that they have been obliged to enlarge their factory every year and at last moved to Dubuque, Ia., to have better shipping facilities. But their goods are the finest made, that accounts for their success.

TWO KINDS OF WOMEN

need Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—those who want to be made strong, and those who want to be made well. It builds up, invigorates, regulates, and cures.

It's for young girls just entering womanhood; for women who have reached the critical "change of life"; for women expecting to become mothers; for mothers who are nursing and exhausted; for every woman who is run-down, delicate, or overworked.

For all the disorders, diseases, and weaknesses of women, Favorite Prescription is the only remedy so unfailing that it can be guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, the money will be returned.

He Wants' Position. The orthodox clergyman of a New England village recently placed in a trying position, acquitted himself with unusual caution, if not with perfect success. The occasion was the funeral of a Mr. Follet, the third husband of Mrs. Follet, a woman much younger than he. The Follet's regular clergyman was away at the time of Mr. Follet's death. In this emergency the family called upon the orthodox clergyman who was almost a stranger. A neighbor instructed him hastily as to the admirable qualities of the deceased and his family relations. During the funeral discourse no outsider would have suspected that the clergyman had not been a life-long friend of the late Mr. Follet. When he came to mention the widow in his prayer, however, it was evident that his data had become somewhat confused. He said: "And now we commend to thy care this widow and her maid who has been bereaved again, and again, and again"—then resting an instant he added, "and perhaps again."—Argonaut.

Exhausted. A barrister tormented a poor German witness with so many questions that the old man declared he was so exhausted that he must have a drink of water before he could say another word. Upon this the judge remarked: "I think, sir, you had better let the witness go now for you have pumped him dry."—Argonaut.

THE MODERN INVALID. Has tastes medicinally, in keeping with other luxuries. "Each Spoonful has done its Perfect Work." Is the verdict of every woman who has used Royal Baking Powder. Other baking powders soon deteriorate and lose their strength, owing to the use of inferior ingredients, but Royal Baking Powder is so carefully and accurately compounded from the purest materials that it retains its strength for any length of time, and the last spoonful in the can is as good as the first, which is not true of any other baking powder.
