

THE FIRST HE REMEMBERS

Edward Everett Hale Describes an Early Thanksgiving

"What is it dear? Who is it?"
"What has happened?" he asked.
"Thanksgiving," he answered. "You are asking now."

"Ah, I remember," he broke in,
He closed his eyes. In a moment he opened them again.

"Rachel," he said, "will you please look in the inside pocket of my coat and see if there is a little—pass book in it?"

She smiled.

"Will you please—read to me the last entry in it?"

Among the friends standing silently about the bed was one who seemed to sustain a cordial relation to the dead man. To him she handed the little book, and he opened it and read aloud as follows:

"The lesser members of God have failed us; we have not been courageous. The word of the Lord abideth forever. It speaketh to us through his presence as far as it goeth, as far as it can reach through his divine Word. Who can measure the rule of the universe? Who can fathom the depths of infinite wisdom? His word is truth. It was said, 'A great work unto the Lord, for thy mercy endureth forever.'

In compliance with the customs of our fathers we meet once each year to express our gratitude to the giver of all good and renew our covenant with a man we know. Now, therefore, I, John Hendrickson, Governor of this State, do hereby declare and let appear Thursday the 26th day of November, the houses that with parent affection are built, the seats of plenty and well-deserved rest, the friends that home and affection have brought—Thanksgiving!

—American Rural Home.

THE THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

passed a long time ago. Once great while some one of the oldest institutions in exploring the chambers of memory, brings it from some dark corner—dusty, covered with cobwebs, and gray with age; houses in and tries to restore its old-time grandeur to gratify the curiosity of an irreverent grandchild who wants to "know." It happened away back East.

A tall, dignified man with iron-hair and beard, with clothes of improbable cut, and a general air of culture and ill-preserved about who sat looking somewhat weary of the car window was traveling on Eastern railway. He had been West—merely on a visit.

Was a raw, chilly day in November, and the sky was overcast with clouds. However, one may remember, Bunker Hill Monument Charter Oak, the old mill at New Haven, and the memory of the Pilgrims, there is seldom anything attractive in a New England landscape December, and it is no wonder the himself often gets tired of looking at it, puts a veil of clouds over his eyes, and hastens on to the golden elderly, dignified traveler soon tired of the bleak landscape lying before him.

He took a paper from his pocket and began to read, as was an article on the editorial written in the edit's realest and most pessimistic vein, that attracted attention. The country—the old ad—was going to the dogs, up had been a failure. The national cause were at a low ebb. The state government. It had been a year since, and the editor could see no hope ahead.

Was small satisfaction to the traveler to note that the paper was nearly dead. If things were so desperate as they appeared to be they surely did not have improved much in one year. He laid the paper on his knee, and from his pocket a memorandum, wrote rapidly as it was in some notes, pondering awhile, joined what he had written, added a few words, recited the book in his pocket, and bowed his head in reverie.

The voice that disturbed him was that of a man individual on the seat next on my way to the state capital," he replied courteously. "Oh business, mebby?" balanced the sensitive man.

The elderly traveler did not reply, had a sed into reverie again.

"Anything tickler on your mind?" "Why, sir," and an a used smile lit for a moment the serous, preoccupied face of the gray-haired man.

He had been wondering if there is really anything to be thankful for this year.

"Anything to be thankful for land goodness American, sir?"

"Yes."

"Good health."

"Alive, anyhow, ain't ye?"

"Unquestionably. But look at this man, and he handed him the paper just been reading."

"Yes," said the other, as he slowly

his eye down the column. "I saw day fore yesterday. It don't amount to nothing."

"It's one of the ablest papers published in the State."

"And it's published at the capital."

"That don't en't nigg'r. It's an edition sheet. Why, look hys-

in God, d'nt?"

"Yes," reverently replied the elder traveler.

"An' the promise that all things work together for good to his adversary."

"Yes."

"What might be yer name?"

"My name's Hendrickson."

"Way, you're—

"Oral."

Without a moment's warning the train in rounding a curve had dashed into a "wild" freight train coming from the opposite direction.

The visible effects of a railway disaster were not disposed of as quickly as now, but the accident had happened within a few miles of the capital, and a relief train was quickly despatched to the scene.

Four hands are held for the wounded and dying, and the lifeless remains of those whose eyes had closed forever on this world were gathered up for transportation to friends.

Down at the bottom of a heap of fallen timber in the wrecked car at the foot of the embankment they found a elderly, graying traveler, alive and insensible.

Later in the day he opened his eyes, and was in his own home in the capital city. A sweet-faced matron was bending over him.

—Ray Brown.

THE THANKSGIVING DINNER.

Oyster Soups Cranberry Sauce Apple Sause

Boast Turkey Baked Spare-rib Chicken Pie Cucumber Pickles Sweet Potatoes Parsnips

Gravy Mashed Potatoes Turnips

Pumpkin Pie Cranberry Pie

Thanksgiving Pudding Prune Pudding Chocolate

Tuna Fish Cranberry Jelly

Roast Turkey or Baked Apples

Roast Duck Chicken Salad Cabbage Chow-chow

Mashed Potatoes Baked Squash Sweet Tomatoes Lima Beans

Pumpkin Pie Celery Apple Pie

Ice Cream Coffee

Tea Coffee Hot or Cold Lemonade

Heart to Heart.

TURKEY.

"A turkey that is hatched from an egg is of few days and full of trouble.

He cometh forth like a flower and is cut down, he feeth also as a shadow and continueth not.

As for the hen turkey her days are as grass as a flower of the field, so she flourisheth. In the morning she is alive and clucketh, in the evening she is cast into the oven.

Even so is it with the gobbler. Today he plumes himself, he struts abroad and draggeth his wing on the ground as if one should say "Aha!" To-morrow he falleth a prey to the carver, his flesh is parted asunder and his bones are distributed among the spitters.

In his pride he eateth corn and waxeth fat, saying to himself, "All things are made for my enjoyment." When his fat cometh there is none who remembers the day of his triumph, and all mock him.

The hen tu key thinketh in secret she will raise a young brood, and layeth eggs, but when she is served upon a platter the carver lays to, and she passeth away.

The young turkeys, even the little ones, in the spring, hide themselves in the stubble and strive against the wind and the storm, for life is sweet to them.

But when they are become large and fat, and the voice of Thanksgiving is heard in the land, a deadly their clucking ceaseth and they become a part of the people.

Even in those simple dresses whose nearest approach to elegance can be seen in the dress of the Queen.

—Ray Brown.

A TURKEY.

"Weet my love, our souls shall singe aye.

Not on the mighty powers above, our fond hearts can ever—

When cruel fate our lives did snare,

It was his blithe, not his mark, Met hers—within the dressing.

—Ray Brown.

KNICKERS AND NEW CORSET WAIST.

SLEEVES GET LARGER

YARDS AND YARDS OF MATERIAL USED.

How to Simplify Dresses the Simple Way

as Assorted of Their Size as These Were a Part of the Most elaborate Gown.

Gotham Fashion Group
New York Correspondence

OWNS and jackets are now displaying remarkably rich cutwork and trimmings of the most elaborate gown. In the costume of this second picture, whereof the material is old green woolen smiting, the puffs are very wide and made of square pieces of the goods. For the rest, the dress is simplicity itself, the wide gored skirt being trimmed only with band, as shown. Above, the bodice is fitted, hooks in front and has a seamless blouse back. Its turned down collar is plain, but the front and sleeve cuffs are finished with band in military style. The tailor dresses, too, do not escape the call for big sleeves, which are a distinctive feature of them, only second to the lap seams which are apparently a necessity. Tailor-made gowns of oyster-colored brocade are made with strap seams outlined with piping of gray satin, but they don't look well.

A tailor-made cloth gown with its

two inches apart, from which hang in graduated curves strings of cut set, the whole being set on a narrow band of fur. Point de Venise is shown in ribbon strips by the yard, the ribbon being set at intervals with a rosette of lace, from which hang mink tails. The lace itself is liberally spangled with jet and gold. Disks of point de Venise are a sparkle with jewels and attached to each other at intervals by ropes of ribbon. Mink heads are set close together on a foundation of jet, the whole being mounted on gray guipure. A fringe of otters' tails is set on a wide heading of guipure, along which at intervals otters' heads show, each surrounded with a little frill or rosette of lace. All these trimmings come at high prices, but give unmistakable elegance to a gown.

Following the lead of these highly wrought trimmings, galloon and passementerie have deserted their more simple forms and are offered in an abundance of most showy sorts. Three inch bands of galloon are used to trim the fronts and bottom of jackets, and two inches apart, from which hang in graduated curves strings of cut set, the whole being set on a narrow band of fur. Point de Venise is shown in ribbon strips by the yard, the ribbon being set at intervals with a rosette of lace, from which hang mink tails. The lace itself is liberally spangled with jet and gold. Disks of point de Venise are a sparkle with jewels and attached to each other at intervals by ropes of ribbon. Mink heads are set close together on a foundation of jet, the whole being mounted on gray guipure. A fringe of otters' tails is set on a wide heading of guipure, along which at intervals otters' heads show, each surrounded with a little frill or rosette of lace. All these trimmings come at high prices, but give unmistakable elegance to a gown.

Following the lead of these highly wrought trimmings, galloon and passementerie have deserted their more simple forms and are offered in an abundance of most showy sorts. Three inch bands of galloon are used to trim the fronts and bottom of jackets, and two inches apart, from which hang in graduated curves strings of cut set, the whole being set on a narrow band of fur. Point de Venise is shown in ribbon strips by the yard, the ribbon being set at intervals with a rosette of lace, from which hang mink tails. The lace itself is liberally spangled with jet and gold. Disks of point de Venise are a sparkle with jewels and attached to each other at intervals by ropes of ribbon. Mink heads are set close together on a foundation of jet, the whole being mounted on gray guipure. A fringe of otters' tails is set on a wide heading of guipure, along which at intervals otters' heads show, each surrounded with a little frill or rosette of lace. All these trimmings come at high prices, but give unmistakable elegance to a gown.

Following the lead of these highly wrought trimmings, galloon and passementerie have deserted their more simple forms and are offered in an abundance of most showy sorts. Three inch bands of galloon are used to trim the fronts and bottom of jackets, and two inches apart, from which hang in graduated curves strings of cut set, the whole being set on a narrow band of fur. Point de Venise is shown in ribbon strips by the yard, the ribbon being set at intervals with a rosette of lace, from which hang mink tails. The lace itself is liberally spangled with jet and gold. Disks of point de Venise are a sparkle with jewels and attached to each other at intervals by ropes of ribbon. Mink heads are set close together on a foundation of jet, the whole being mounted on gray guipure. A fringe of otters' tails is set on a wide heading of guipure, along which at intervals otters' heads show, each surrounded with a little frill or rosette of lace. All these trimmings come at high prices, but give unmistakable elegance to a gown.

Following the lead of these highly wrought trimmings, galloon and passementerie have deserted their more simple forms and are offered in an abundance of most showy sorts. Three inch bands of galloon are used to trim the fronts and bottom of jackets, and two inches apart, from which hang in graduated curves strings of cut set, the whole being set on a narrow band of fur. Point de Venise is shown in ribbon strips by the yard, the ribbon being set at intervals with a rosette of lace, from which hang mink tails. The lace itself is liberally spangled with jet and gold. Disks of point de Venise are a sparkle with jewels and attached to each other at intervals by ropes of ribbon. Mink heads are set close together on a foundation of jet, the whole being mounted on gray guipure. A fringe of otters' tails is set on a wide heading of guipure, along which at intervals otters' heads show, each surrounded with a little frill or rosette of lace. All these trimmings come at high prices, but give unmistakable elegance to a gown.

Following the lead of these highly wrought trimmings, galloon and passementerie have deserted their more simple forms and are offered in an abundance of most showy sorts. Three inch bands of galloon are used to trim the fronts and bottom of jackets, and two inches apart, from which hang in graduated curves strings of cut set, the whole being set on a narrow band of fur. Point de Venise is shown in ribbon strips by the yard, the ribbon being set at intervals with a rosette of lace, from which hang mink tails. The lace itself is liberally spangled with jet and gold. Disks of point de Venise are a sparkle with jewels and attached to each other at intervals by ropes of ribbon. Mink heads are set close together on a foundation of jet, the whole being mounted on gray guipure. A fringe of otters' tails is set on a wide heading of guipure, along which at intervals otters' heads show, each surrounded with a little frill or rosette of lace. All these trimmings come at high prices, but give unmistakable elegance to a gown.

Following the lead of these highly wrought trimmings, galloon and passementerie have deserted their more simple forms and are offered in an abundance of most showy sorts. Three inch bands of galloon are used to trim the fronts and bottom of jackets, and two inches apart, from which hang in graduated curves strings of cut set, the whole being set on a narrow band of fur. Point de Venise is shown in ribbon strips by the yard, the ribbon being set at intervals with a rosette of lace, from which hang mink tails. The lace itself is liberally spangled with jet and gold. Disks of point de Venise are a sparkle with jewels and attached to each other at intervals by ropes of ribbon. Mink heads are set close together on a foundation of jet, the whole being mounted on gray guipure. A fringe of otters' tails is set on a wide heading of guipure, along which at intervals otters' heads show, each surrounded with a little frill or rosette of lace. All these trimmings come at high prices, but give unmistakable elegance to a gown.

Following the lead of these highly wrought trimmings, galloon and passementerie have deserted their more simple forms and are offered in an abundance of most showy sorts. Three inch bands of galloon are used to trim the fronts and bottom of jackets, and two inches apart, from which hang in graduated curves strings of cut set, the whole being set on a narrow band of fur. Point de Venise is shown in ribbon strips by the yard, the ribbon being set at intervals with a rosette of lace, from which hang mink tails. The lace itself is liberally spangled with jet and gold. Disks of point de Venise are a sparkle with jewels and attached to each other at intervals by ropes of ribbon. Mink heads are set close together on a foundation of jet, the whole being mounted on gray guipure. A fringe of otters' tails is set on a wide heading of guipure, along which at intervals otters' heads show, each surrounded with a little