QUEER MOTTOES ON BELLS.

Curious Inscriptions Copied from the Metal in England.

In the Newbery Magazine there is an interesting article on "Bell Inscriptions." A bell at Bentley, N. H., is inscribed

"John Eyer gave twenty pound To meck me a losty sound."

Several inscriptions on bells are of an amatory character. A very common inscription is the following, found in Coventry, Knaresborough, Northampton, and other places;

"In wedlock's bonds all ye who join With hands your hearts unite.

So shall our tuneful tongues combine To laud the nuptial rite."

On a couple of Lincolnshire bells-one of 1807 and the other of 1808-we have the following:

"When female virtue weds with manly How do you like to have the melting snow dripping down in front of the chicken house in the yard? We always build houses that pitch to the rear and carry off all drainage that way. Are we right?

HOUSE-For a bill which was opposed by only two votes in the senate out of a total of thirty-three, and will get hardly a larger proportional vote in the house, the anti-oleomargarine bill consumed a great deal of time and attracted a great deal of attention. The knowledge that it was to be a special order in the house not only drew a large lobby and waked the Douglas delegation with a wild ungovernable frenzy, but filled the lobbies and the gallery.

Immediately atter the house was called to order a motion was made by Burch to suspend the rules and take up bills on second reading. The object of this motion was to get senate file No. 78 the anti-oleo bill, before the house for consideration in committee of the whole. Sutton and Rickett raised a feeble protest, but the motion was carried by an overwhelming vote. Very often the happy pair are reminded of the transitoriness of human existence and of the end of all things. Here is a specimen of this kind of inscription from Bakewell (1798): "When men in Hymen's band unite Our merry peals produce delight:

But when death goes his dreary rounds Kesson, relates to payment of registered We send forth sad and mournful sounds."

> A very suggestive inscription is that on the bell at Hough-on-the-Hill, Lincolushire. It is dated 1138, and runs as

> When you hear this mournful sound. Prepare yourself for underground." Each bell in a peal at St. Michael's, Coventry, if we are to judge from the mottoes, had a special use of its own. Thus No. 4 was evidently the workmen's bell:

"I ring at 6 to let men know When to and from their work to go." No. 7 was the bell for summoning worshipers to church:

"I ring to sermon with lusty bombe, That all may come and none stay at home.

No. 8 was the fire bell, of which, too, we have a specimen in the church at Sherborne

"Lord! quench this furious fame. Arise, run, put out the same." One bell in All Saints', Northampton, BRYS: "I mean to make it understood, That though I'm little, yet I'm good."

Whilst another at St. Ives says, "Arise and go about your business."

Punning inscriptions are not often to be met with. The following, found at Towchester, North Hants, may be held as belonging to this class:

"Pull on, brave boys, I'm metal to the back.

But will be hanged before I crack."
