In those days a prince who was to be a king was looked upon and treated as a person of great importance. His person was held to be sacred, and so it would never have done to punish him. If an English prince missed his lessons, was rude to his teacher sor committed any of the other naughty tricks common to saucy children, his whipping boy was flogged. THE WEEKLY MARKET REPORT.

Cattle—Receipts were large again today following the big run of yesterday.
With the number of cattle received in the two days so large and with Chicago reporting a weak market this morning it was to be expected that buyers at this point would ask for some concession.
True to expectations they started out adding prices that were generally a litile lower. Seliers, however, held on and the early market was very slow. Buyers evidentily wanted the cattle and a little later in the morning the market gradually took on more lifte and became quite aritive, so that the most of the cattle changed hands in a short time after the trading was once under way.

The market closed active and steady dition. A native engaged in the arsenal at Cape Town also scratched "For old Pol Kruger" on the largest shell in the place.

Needless to say, reminiscences of the music halls are frequently applied to untoward events with great appropriateness. For instance, John Christian, of the King's Royal Rifles calmly remarked when the top of his helmet was blown off by a Boer shell from Talana Hill, "Well, that's a little bit off the top."

When two battalions of infantry left Barcelona for the Philippines in 1896 we had in real life an instance of the "Minstrel Boy" going to the war, for every shop in the place was cleared out of its stock of guitars by the departing and musical troops. Tommy, however, prefers to serenade the Boers with a Maxim, or preferably a 4.7 inch naval gun, such as those taken to Ladysmith, mounted on Captain Percy with a Maxim, or preferably a 4.7 inch naval gun, such as those taken to Ladysmith, mounted on Captain Percy Scott's ingenious carriage just in the nick of time. The inscriptions Tommy writes on his guns are evidence of his fondness for a little joke. Upon one of the aforementioned naval guns is written, "Those who sup with me will require a long spoon." On another appears:

"Lay me true and load me light, And the Boers will soon be out of sight."

There were nine cars of sheep on sale, most of them heavy and just the kind that no one was anxious for. The market was slow, but still just about steady. Phere is a good demand at this point for lambs and it would undoubtedly have sold higher. Yesterday pretty good Colorado lambs sold on this market at $1.00. A shipper who went to $1.
