One day, in advocating a more liberal cosening of the purse strings at the recent Methodist conference in Washington, D. C., Bishop W. A. The intelligent compositor got in his fine Italian hand, and when the article appeared it read: "We bray too loud and work too little," "I let it go at that," said the bishop; "the fact is, I believe the printer was right, and I never attempted to correct it."

INDIANS ARE SMOOTH.

Makes Money By Selling "Buffalo"

The Montana Indian is something of schemer himself. He comes to town and sometimes walks all over the place without saying a word to any one. At limes he brings in a few sets of poished and mounted cows' horns, which ever frequents saloons. He looks into lothing store windows, but never oucks the slot machines in cigar stores. He frowns as he passes a restaurant, but smiles while walking the sweetscented alleys back of cheap boarding f there's one to be taken, for he was never known to get the worst of such a bargain. The reason of this, howhe negotiations with nothing to lose and everything to win. However, he has a reputation of a schemer.

Where his schemes shine brightest is n the sale of polished "buffalo" horns. gets 50 cents from his wife each morn- He lives out near one of the slaughter houses on the south side, and there he secures his "buffalo" horns, all sizes, curves and consistencies. He picks out a set of ox horns of symmetrical proportions, scrapes the scales off and boils the horns in a solution of glycerine, wood ashes and water. This treatment softens the horns, so that a caseknife will easily remove all the exterior accumulation. Then fine sandpaper is used to give the first polish, followed by a thorough rubbing with a finnel cloth, slightly saturated with oil. A varnish or shellac is then applied and the horns are in condition for mounting. Then the work is turned over to the squaw, who does the really artistic work. Red flannel and braid, beads sometimes, and a strip here and there of buckskin, a few brass-headed tacks and the mounted "buffalo' 'horns are ready for the market.

Mr. Buck comes to town and the tenderfoot asks him where he "ketchem buffalo horns."

"In Yallowstone park," grunts the big "How much?" asks the intending purchaser.

"Two dolls."

"Too muchee."

"No, no; cheap; thue dolls, ugh!" The tenderfoot inspects the work and satisfies himself that they are really the horns of an almost extinct species of the majestic western animal, and he hands over the coin and walks away proudly with his prize.

The Indian moves off down the street, turns the first corner and disappears up an alley,-Anaconda Standard.

It was a one-horse wagon loaded with boxes and barrels, and the driver suddenly turned into the curb and got down and stood off a few feet and looked earnestly at the horse. Four or five pedestrians came to a halt, and one of them promptly called out: "That horse has got a chill and you

"Naw."

The Earth is Rigid.

Prof. John Milne of Japan, who has or a long time made scientific obserin view of determining the character of the earth's interior, has recently made known some reasonable facts which he believes that he has established.

Probably his most startling discovery is that the earth is at least twice as rigid as steel. This is determined by the rapidity with which seismic waves are transmitted.

Second, contrary to popular belief, the interior of the earth is much more rigid than the crust. This interior is so hot that it would become liquid if the pressure upon it were removed. As it is, it is not only solid, but extremely dense. This density is probably due to the fact that in the planet's earliest period of formation the elements of greatest specific gravity settled toward the center.

And as the earth has solidified under wo inuences, cooling at the outside, and pressure at the center, a cross secion of our planet would now reveal the ollowing arrangement: First, thin, rigd crust; second, small molten sea; hird, great rigid core.

THE WEEKLY MARKET REPORT.

OMAHA LIVE STOCK MARKET. Union Stock Yards, Omaha, Friday, Cattle-There were 200 cars of cattle cf kinds reported in the yards today, of which number about 150 cars consisted of corn fed steers. The market opened slow take advantage of the large receipts to act on the bear side. Sellers were invariably asking fully steady prices. While they would liked to have had them a little lower, buyers wanted the cattle too badly to hang off very long, and the market soon became fairly active with prices just about steady with yesterday. In to strike buyers' fancy by reason of their eing too heavy, or too coarse, or light and not fat enough, may have sold a little easier, but the general market was just about the same as yesterday, so far as rapidly and it was not long until pracically everything had changed hands. Cows and heifers were in active demand it steady prices, and the offerings were some very nice heifers among the offer low. Bulls, if good and fat, were good sellers at steady prices.

Stock cattle and feeders were in moderate supply and the market without any change of importance as compared with esterday. Such cattle as were to be had sold in good season and in the same notches as yesterday. There were a few ngs as will be seen from the table be notches as yesterday. There were a few very good stock helfers which sold just about as high as any time.

Hogs—Today's receipts of hogs were the largest of the year to date. Chicago and other selling points also reported a deciline, and these were the bear features upon the strength of which buyers proceeded to pound the market. Early bids were 5 to 10c lower but the hogs finally sold 56/13c lower than yesterday's general market. The demand was very good and the market active at the decline so that in spite of the big receipts practically everything was sold and weighed up at an early hour. A very large proportion of the receipts went at $5.00/25.02½ as against $5.05/25/20 yesterday.

It will be noted from the table of average prices that the hogs today sold on an average very much in the same notches as on Monday, the advance of yesterday having been wiped out. It will also be noted that the market is 20c lower than one week ago.

Sheen—There were eleven care reported.

noted that the market is 20c lower than one week ago.

Sheep-There were eleven cars reported in the yards but half of them were Oregon grassers. There were also a couple of cars of big heavy California sheep, and a few old ewes. In other words, there was nothing good here, or at least nothing that seemed very attractive in the eyes of buysers. The result was that the market was slow and dull. The feeling was that had there been anything at all desirable in the way of fat sheep or lambs the market would have been fairly active and steady, as buyers all seemed to want supplies.
