Right Sort of a Girl.

The Cincinnati girl who married a poor young man who thought her poor also and then informed him after marriage that she is worth $500,000 seems to be of the good old American variety of girl who was not in the market for counts of no account.

Distilled Alcoholic Drinks.

Alcoholic beverages are distilled from bananas, the milk of coconuts, rice, and peas. The Japanese distill spirit from plums, peaches, and the flower of the motherwort. The Chinese make an alcoholic drink from plums.

Charge for Table Napkin.

On the continent of Europe the table napkin is charged to you, put down in cold pencil on the check brought by the waiter—two cents in our money, whatever it may happen to be in centimes or pfennigs.

Hot-air Fan.

An electric fan that heats the air current that it delivers has been devised by M. de Mare, a Belgian electrician. The apparatus consists of an electric motor and a rotating fan, the blades of which are of mica. Upon thermic blades are fastened resistance coils, which are heated by the passage through them of a current of electricity.

Albatross is Polite.

Should one enter a group of albatrosses which have been recently engaged in this diversion and begin to bow very low the birds will sometimes walk around in a puzzled sort of way, bowing in return, a curious fact which F. H. von Kuhlitz thus recorded as early as 1834: "When Herr Isenbeck entered, he used to bow to it, and the albatrosses were polite enough to answer, bowing and cackling."

Catbirds Defeat Snake.

A writer in the Scientific American says: "I witnessed a pair of catbirds making a bold defense against a blacksnake bent on devouring the contents of their nest. At first the snake was inclined to disregard the distressed birds as they fought to drive it away, but the blows of their wings and bills became so annoying that the thief had to seek refuge in flight. On reaching the roots of a tree from which the river had washed the dirt, the snake started to climb, only to be driven beneath them and then out to an old stump, under which the baffled and beaten reptile took refuge."

What Might Have Been.

An undertaker and a certain girl were engaged to be married. For some unknown reason, like many cases of first love, they drifted apart, and both married in different directions. Years rolled on. One night the undertaker was officially sent for, and found himself in the home of his former sweetheart, who was weeping over the remains of her husband, who had just died after a long illness. He stepped softly to her side, and with hand on her shoulder offered his sympathy in the most serious loss that could befall a woman. She ceased crying for a moment, dried her eyes, looked up in his face, and said: "Just think, Charlie, this might have been you."—Cleveland Leader.

THE APPETITES OF BIRDS.

Feathered Songsters That Work Hard for Their Living.

If a man could eat as much in proportion to his size as a sparrow is able to consume he would need a whole sheep for dinner, a couple of dozen fowls for breakfast, and six turkeys for his evening meal. A tree sparrow has been known to eat 70 grass seeds in a day. Birds can and do work far harder than human beings. A pair of house-martins when nesting will feed their young on an average once in twenty seconds—that is, each bird, male and female, makes sixty journeys to and from an hour, or perhaps 1,800 a day. It must be remembered that on each journey the bird has the added work of catching an insect. Even so tiny a bird as the wren has been counted to make 110 trips to and from its nest within 40 minutes, and the prey it carried home consisted of insects much larger and heavier than was used by swallows.

PLEASANT MEMORY FOR KING.

Lismarck's Advice to the Ruler of Little Roumania.

King Charles of Roumania, addressed to his premier, M. Sturdza, an effusive telegram in acknowledgment of his people's congratulation on the anniversary of "the memorable day upon which, a quarter of a century ago (during the Russo-Turkish war), I and my much beloved army set foot on the territory of the Deboucha, which, by the blood of our heroes, has been joined forever with the kingdom of Roumania. That is a memory which must have made King Charles think of the advice that was given him by Bismarck, when in the spring of 1866, the young prince of the Catholic Hohenzollern, the serving as an officer at Potsdam, went to him for advice as to whether he should accept the crown of Roumania which had been privately offered to him. "Do so, by all means," said Bismarck, "for even if you don't stay it will always remain a pleasant memory for you."

Growing Gray.

A little more toward the light, My muscun, here's one that's white. And one that's turning. Adieu to song and "sund days." My Muse, let's go at once to Jay's And order mourning.

We must reform our rhymes, my dear, Renounce the gay for the severe—be grave, not witty. We have no more the right to find That rhyme's hair is neatly twined, That Cane's a pretty.

Young Love's for us a farce that's played Light, gambol and romance. No more may tempt us. Gray hairs but in accord with dreams. From aught but sour dialect themes Our years exempt us.

"A la bonne heure! You fancy so? You think for one white streak we grow At once an'rich? A fiddlersuck! Each hair's a string To which our graybeard muse shall sing A younger lyric.

Our heart's still sound. Shall "cakes and ale" Grow rare to youth because we rail At schoolboy dishes? Perish the thought! The cure to sing 'Trough neither Time nor Tide can bring Relief with wishes. —Austin Dobson.
