MIDLAND BREEDING FARM. 55 HEREFORDS 55 AT AUCTION SALE. Plainview, Pierce County, Nebraska, March 25th, 1914.

Thirty (30) Bulls of 2 years old, Fifteen (15) 2 year old bred Heifers, and a number of choice young cows, mostly bred at our well equipped farm, a majority of the pedigrees running back to ANNEBY 1012204 through the blood lines of the "A. H. H.," "L. B. Brand," "B. B. K.," and "A. H. H." The "Royal of Sheldahl" and "The Grey 31" are strongly represented. This is not a dispersion sale, but is made up of the Very Best of the young stock of my herd, being of a very uniform type and color, with plenty of quality. They are a very choice and desirable lot of cattle. They have not been impured and are not fat, but are in good thrifty breeding condition, are just about right; have been raised in pasture and open yard and they will certainly prove profitable and satisfactory to the owner and make him money. This will be an excellent chance for farmers and ranchmen in North Nebraska and South Dakota to buy good breeding cattle at their own prices, delivered at their own doors.

EQUAL TO THE EMERGENCY.
Colored Water Overcome the Deficiency in His Early Education.
A little story illustrative of the ingenuity of some colored waiters when they are really "up against it" is told by Monroe Burke, secretary to Engineer Commissioner Biddle at the District building.

"I went into a new pie garden the other day," says Mr. Burke, "and ordered a sandwich and cup of coffee. It is one of the rules of this food emporium that the waiter shall write the order on a little slip of paper and put the pieces opposite. The check is then paid to the cashier at the desk.
"When I had finished my light repast I picked up the slip placed on the table by the waiter and, glancing at it, saw written thereon:
"Pie, 5c.
"Coffee, 5c.
"I called to the waiter in civility: 'Boy, John, I didn't have any pie, I ate a sandwich.'
"That's all right, boss," he replied, "the pie sandwich is both the same price, and I ain't so good on spelling as you 'wah."—Washington Star.

Two Brother Giants.
A race is going on between two brothers named Beaupre, French-Canadian, out in the far West, as to who shall be the taller. The elder one, who is now twenty-two years of age, has reached a height of 7 feet 9 inches (without boots), while the other brother, who is several years younger, stands 7 feet. Both are still growing but on last year's growth the younger brother seems to have had slightly the advantage. The older giant weighs 272 pounds. The parents are said to be ordinary sized people.

Interchange.
The oracle says in the apple tree:
The sick girl lay on her bed, and her head
The tumultuous note of the glad wild bird,
And, "Ah!" she sighed, "to share with thee
Thy fragrance, exquisite and strong;
Thy hope, thy eager energy,
Thy fragrance and its song!"
The oracle swayed in the apple tree,
And he sang: "I will build, with my love, a nest.
Fine as a bird's nest, a birding guest;
Like a peacock's blossom, secure yet free,
It shall hang from the bough above me there.
Bright, bright with the gold that is combed for me
From the sick girl's auburn hair!"
Then he built the nest in the apple tree;
And, hunched over, a ball of fluff,
It seemed and shone in the sick girl's sight.
And she gazed upon it wonderingly.
"But when the bird had forever gone
They brought the nest from the apple tree
To the bed where she lay alone.
"Oh, builder of this mystery!"
The wide and wistful eyes grew dim,
And the soul of the sick girl followed him.
"Dear God! I have had part, through thee,
In the life for which I long and long:
Have shared its hope, its energy,
Its rapture and its song!"
—Florence Earle Coates to Harper's Magazine.

THE QUESTION OF SUPPER.

Difference of Opinion as to Benefit of Late Meal.
As old Italian proverb has it that "Who goes to bed supperless all night rambles and tosses." A Portuguese saying is, "If you would be ill, sup and then go to sleep."
It is plain, American Medicine concludes, that the "potted wisdom" of proverbs will give no decisive rule as to digestion during sleep. The custom of an after dinner nap is common in almost all Italian and Oriental countries, but it is contradicted by an old Latin proverb which the Germans and the English in turn have translated: "After dinner sit awhile, after supper walk a mile."
As a rule, the northern, and especially the Anglo-Saxon, races incline to think that digestion is not the best during sleep.
As to drinking, the people's experience is that "he who goes to bed thirsty rises healthy." As age comes on digestion grows more difficult, so that the Spanish say, "Who steals an old man's supper does him no wrong." "An egg, and to bed," accentuates the advice.
