ARGUMENT
 All the argument in the world wont convince a man that any certain political or national policy is a good thing half as quick as a ten per cent advance in his wages under that same policy. A man's pocket book is the one portion of his anatomy you must reach if you want to convince him that your argument is good.
 We might argue through a newspaper every day for a year that the "NEBRASKA SPECIAL SUITS" for men were worth only $10.00 or as good as any $15.00 suit to be found anywhere. We can then for $10.00. But when you bump up against one that somebody else has bought of us, and compare it with your $15.00 suit you'll say "Our Newspaper Argument is Sound."
 Send for samples of these suits. You'll save a five dollar note on your purchase.
