ORDINATION OF REV. HARDMAN TO THE PRIESTHOOD

On Sunday morning last at Grace Episcopal church this city, the very interesting and impressive ceremony of raising the Reverend Samuel Hardman from Deacon to Priest of the church was performed.

At 10 a. m. Morning Prayer was read by Mr. Hardman after which Miss Beatrix Florance was confirmed by Bishop Beecher. At 10:30 the Ordination Service proper began with the Processional Hymn—"Fight the Good Fight With all Thy Might." The Rev. J. M. Bates, M. A. whom we all know and love from his long residence amongst us preached the sermon, taking as his subject "The Spiritual titles assumed by Jesus Christ as shown in the Gospel according to St. John," his text being—"I am the bread of life"—St. John 6:35.

The Rev. A. D. Jones of McCook read the Preface to the Ordinal and the Right Rev. Geo. A. Beecher, D. O. Bishop of Western Nebraska examined and ordained the candidate. The Service of the Holy Communion completed the services of the morning.

At the evening service Bishop Beecher spoke most interestingly upon his experiences during his recent visit to Haiti and the Panama Canal Zone, dwelling particularly upon the new work of our church at Haiti which is progressing so well under the energetic leadership of the Right Rev. Harry R. Carson, Bishop of Haiti and the Very Rev. Albert R. Lloyd. An offering was taken for this most interesting work and is to be sent at once to Bishop Carson.

The Rev. Samuel Hardman will continue in charge of Red Cloud and adjoining missions. A definite constructive program of work is being planned by the various organizations of the church under his energetic leadership, and soon we hope Red Cloud will be really on the map as a positively progressive unit of the church.

Mr. Hardman was the happy recipient of a number of gifts among which were a private communion set, a marble fontlet, a solid gold cross, a fine linen surplice, set of communion linens, Life of Christ by Papini, and Christ and other Masters by Hardwich, and two dozen carnations.

EARLY-DAY IMPROVERS

Foremost among the men who built the throne and brought about the crowning of corn as a king among American agricultural plants were J. S. Leaming of Ohio, James L. Reid and S. B. Perry of Illinois, James Riley of Indiana, and Nims Bros. and H. J. Goddard of Iowa. Leaming, Reid and Riley were the Bakewell, Cruickshank and Bates of our modern breads and types of dent corn. None of the early improvers was a public monument, and all died poorly blessed by fortune, but each enriched the world with a markedly improved type of corn, and the example of a life nobly and usefully lived. They did not devote themselves to getting but giving; giving themselves, in thought and work, to the common cause of better corn. The serene childhearted Quaker poet Whittier said that the way to be useful and contented was in youth to dedicate one's life to a cause, and confidently and fervently champion it.

Read, Leaming and Riley never made "much ado" about their efforts and accomplishments, but on every occasion, when invited to do so, they would say something, simply and seriously, about seed corn, and explain what they had done and why and how they did it with a view to producing higher yields and a better quality of corn. They expressed themselves and found durable satisfaction in their patient, careful methods of improving corn. To grow corn that was better to look at, and more useful than the common, unimproved types of their day, was more to their liking than aggressively and coldly trying to grow wealthy. Idealists are seldom successful, in a pecuniary sense, but their words and works increase the cents and sense of the world.

This community has received plenty of rain the past few days which makes the farmers and everybody feel better and no doubt some will be growling if more moisture falls within the next few days.

This Bird is Fat.

Young abattores are so laden with their own fat that one of them may go five months without taking any nourishment, says the American Forestry Magazine. This is likewise true of young pigeons and certain sea fowl.

Raisin Muffins.

Beat well and stir in one cup of seeded raisins floured. Bake in greased gem pans in a hot oven twenty-five minutes.
